GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT, 1935.

[25 & 26 GEO V, CH 42]

An Act to make further provision for the government of India. [2nd August 1935]

Be it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows -

PART VII

FINANCE, PROPERTY, CONTRACTS AND SUITS

CHAPTER III

PROPERTY, CONTRACTS, LIABILITIES AND SUITS

176,-(1) The Federation may sue or be sued by the name of the Federation of India and a Provincial Government may sue or be sued by the Suits and pro name of the Province, and, without prejudice to the subsequent provisions of ceedings this chapter, may, subject to any provisions which may be made by Act of the Federal or a Provincial Legislature enacted by virtue of powers conferred on that Legislature by this Act, sue or be sued in relation to their respective affairs in the like cases as the Secretary of State in Council might have sued or been sued if this Act had not been passed

Section 176

(2) Rules of Court may provide that, where the Federation, the Federal Railway Authority, or a Province sue or are sued in the United Kingdom, scryice of all proceedings may be effected upon the High Commissioner for India or such other representative in the United Kingdom of the Federation, Authority or Province as may be specified in the rules

179.-(1) Any proceedings which, if this Act had not been passed. might have been brought against the Secretary of State in Council may, in the case of any liability arising before the commencement of Part III of this Act or arising under any contract or statute made or passed matters before that date be brought against the Federation or a Province, according to the subject-matter of the proceedings, or, at the option of the person by whom the proceedings are brought, against the Secretary of State, and any sum ordered to be paid by way of debt, damages or costs in any such proceed-

Legal proceedings as to certain ings, and any costs or expenses incurred in or in connection with the defence thereof, shall be paid out of the revenues of the Federation or the Province, as the case may be, or, if the proceedings are brought against the Secretary of State, out of such revenues as the Secretary of State may direct

The provisions of this sub-section shall apply with respect to proceedings arising under any contract declared by the terms thereof to be supplemental to any such contract as is mentioned in those provisions as they apply in relation to the contracts so mentioned

(2) If at the commencement of Part III of this Act any legal proceedings are pending in the United Kingdom or in India to which the Secretary of State in Council is a party, the Secretary of State shall be deemed to be substituted in those proceedings for the Secretary of State in Council, and the provisions of sub-section (1) of this section shall apply in relation to sums ordered to be paid, and costs or expenses incurred, by the Secretary of State or the Secretary of State in Council in or in connection with any such proceedings as they apply in relation to sums ordered to be paid in, and costs or expenses incurred in or in connection with the defence of, proceedings brought against the Secretary of State under the said sub-section (1)

(3) Any contract made in respect of the affairs of the Federation or a Province by or on behalf of the Secretary of State after the commencement of Part III of this Act may provide that any proceedings under that contract shall be brought in the United Kingdom by or against the Secretary of State and any such proceedings may be brought accordingly, and any sum ordered to be paid by the Secretary of State by way of debt, damages or costs in any such proceedings, and any costs or expenses incurred by the Secretary of State in or in connection therewith, shall be paid out of the revenues of the Federation or the Province, as the case may be

(4) Nothing in this section shall be construed as imposing any liability upon the Exchequer of the United Kingdom in respect of any debt, damages costs or expenses in or in connection with any proceedings brought or continued by or against the Secretary of State by virtue of this section, or as derogating from the provisions of sub-section (1) of the last preceding section

(5) This section does not apply in relation to contracts or habilities solely in connection with the affairs of Burma or Aden, other than habilities which are by this Act made habilities of the Federation, or to contracts or liabilities for purposes which will, after the commencement of Part III of this Act, be purposes of His Majesty's Representative for the exercise of the functions of the Crown in its relations with Indian States

CHAPTER I.

THE FEDERAL COURT.

200.—(1) There shall be a Federal Court consisting of a Chief Justice of India and such number of other judges as His Majesty may deem necessary, but unless and until an address has been presented by the Federal Legislature to the Governor-General for submission to His Majesty praying for an increase in the number of judges, the number of pulses shall not exceed Six.

(2) Every judge of the Federal Court shall be appointed by His Majesty by warrant under the Royal Sign Manual and shall hold office until he attains the age of sixty five years.

Provided that-

- (a) A judge may by resignation under his hand addressed to the Governor-General resign his office
- (b) A judge may be removed from his office by His Majesty by warrant under the Royal Sign Manual on the ground of misbehaviour or of infirmity of mind or body, if the Judicial Committee of the Pravy Council, on reference being made to them by His Majesty report that the judge ought on any such ground to be removed.
- (3) A person shall not be qualified for appointment as a judge of the Federal Court unless he—
  - (a) has been for at least five years a judge of a High Court in British India or in a Federated State or
  - (b) is a barrister of England or Northern Ireland of at least ten years standing or a member of the Faculty of Advocates in Scotland of at least ten years standing or
  - (c) has been for at least ten years a pleader of a High Court in British India or in a Federated State or of two or more such Courts in succession

Provided that-

- (i) a person shall not be qualified for appointment as Chief Justice of India unless he is or when first appointed to judicial office was a barrister, a member of the Faculty of Advocates or a pleader and
- (11) in relation to the Chief Justice of India for the references in paragraphs (6) and (c) of this sub section to ten years, there shall be substituted references to fifteen years

In computing for the purposes of this sub-section the standing of a barrister or a member of the Faculty of Advocates, or the period during which a person has been a pleader any period during which a person has held judicial office after he became a barrister a member of the Faculty of Advocates or a pleader as the case may be, shall be included

(4) Every person appointed to be a judge of the Federal Court shall, before he enters upon his office make and subscribe before the Governor-General or some person uppointed by him an oath according to the form set out in that behalf in the Fourth Schedule to this Act

201. The judges of the Federal Court shall be entitled to such salaries and allowances, including allowances for expenses in respect of equipment and travelling upon appointment and to such rights in respect of leave and pensions, as may from time to time be fixed by His Majesty in Council

Section 201. Salaries, &c, of judges Section 201.

Provided that neither the salary of a judge nor his rights in respect of leave of absence or pension shall be varied to his disadvantage after his appointment

Section 202 Temporary ap pointment of act ing Chief Justice

202. If the office of Chief Justice of India becomes vacant, or if the Chief Justice is, by reason of absence or for any other reason, unable to perform the duties of his office, those duties shall, until some person appointed by His Majesty to the vacant office has entered on the duties thereof or until the Chief Justice has resumed his duties, as the case may be, be performed by such one of the other judges of the court as the Governor General may in his discretion appoint for the purpose

Section 203

203. The Federal Court shall be a court of record and shall sty up Seat of Federal Delhi and at such other place or places if any, as the Chief Justice of India may, with the approval of the Governor-General, from time to time appoint

Section 204 Original jurisdic tion of Federal Court

204,-(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the Federal Court shall. to the exclusion of any other Court, have an original jurisdiction in any dispute between any two or more of the following parties that is to say, the Federation, any of the Provinces or any of the Federated States, if and in so far as the dispute involves any question (whether of law or fact) on which the existence or extent of a legal right depends

Provided that the said jurisdiction shall not extend to-(a) a dispute to which a State is a party, unless the dispute-

- (1) concerns the interpretation of this Act or of an Order in Council made thereunder, or the extent of the legislative or executive authority vested in the Federation by virtue of the Instrument
- of Accession of that State, or (11) arises under an agreement made under Part VI of this Act in relation to the administration in that State of a law of the Federal Legislature, or otherwise concerns some matter with respect to which the Federal Legislature has power to make laws for that State, or
- (iii) arises under an agreement made after the establishment of the Federation, with the approval of His Majesty's Representative for the exercise of the functions of the Crown in its relations with Indian States, between that State and the Federation or a Province, being an agreement which expressly provides that the said jurisdiction shall extend to such a dispute,
- (b) a dispute arising under any agreement which expressly provides that the said jurisdiction shall not extend to such a dispute

2 Applicability of the Order to execution proceedings

There is a conflict of opinion as to whether this order directly applies to execution proceedings. According to one view this order applies only to mit and not directly to execution proceedings and therefore the fract that no awardism addition is appointed for a minor party in such proceedings will not visual the proceedings if, in substance, his merests were represented by the their parties on the record and if no injury lass resulted to him by such non-representation? Another view is that proceedings in execution are a continuation of the suit that this Order applies to such proceedings and that a compromise entered into by the guardian in execution proceedings is not

This rule provides that every suit by a minor plaintiff shall be brought in his name hi a next friend 1 The reason why no proceedings can be taken by a intant without the assistance of a next friend is on account of the int but 5 su mosed want of discretion and his mability to bind himself and make hins If Lable for c sts. 5 Suit on behalf of an alleged minor who is not a minor in fact

Supposing a suit is filed through a next friend on the allegation that the plaintiff is a minor and it is subsequently found that the plaintiff was in fact I major even on the date of the suit, what is the proper procedure to be tollowed in such a case. The High Court of Mahabid in the undermentioned cases held that the suit should be dismissed the reason given being that there is no valid plant before the Court. This view has, however, been overruled by a Special Bench dees on of the same High Court which holds that where the mustake in filing suit is due to a bona fide doubt as regards the age of the mmor, the defect is a formal one not affecting the ments of the case and can be cured by amendment 2 The High Courts of Calcutta 3 Labore,4 Madras,5 the Chief Court of Oudles and the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Nagpures have all held that the defect in such a case can be remedied by amending the plant and by removing the next friend

7 Objection in appeal to authority of next friend

If the miner plaintiff has the right to sue objection as to the want of is defect in the authority of the next friend is not fatal to the suit and on the rused for the first time in appeal t Such a defect does not affect the merits of the case and comes within the purview of Section 99 of the Code 2

9 Liability of next friend for costs

The words and may be ordered to pay any costs in the suit as if he were the plantin' occurring in the corresponding section 440 of the old Code have been omitted. But the omission does not affect the discretion of the Cour in proper cases to order the next friend to be personally liable for costs as for example when it finds that the suit was instituted by him without it a bong fides or where the sun is dismissed and the Court is no satisfied that the suit was instituted for the benefit of the minor 2 Where, however, the Cour finds that there were reasonable grounds for filing the suit and the next friend has been bong fule in his conduct, it will direct the costs to come our of the minor's estate 3

10 Effect of decree in suits by minors

If a minor is properly represented by the next friend and there is no friud or collusion or gross negligence on his part, the decree passed in the suit is binding on the minor as on an adult and will operate as res judicata. See also Note 13 to R. 3, unfra and Note 69 to S. 11, unfe

11 Estoppel

A Court of Equity will deprice a fraudulent minor of the benefit of the plea of infancy when by his conduct or representation he induces others to believe that he is a major. Thus where a minor, representing himself to be of full age collects rents and grants receipts or where he executes a registered sale-deed representing himself to be a major? he will be estopped from filing a suit through a next friend questioning the validity of those transactions. But the person relying upon the plea of estopped must himself come with clean hands and prove not only that fraud was practised upon him by the minor but thir he was deceived into action by such fraud 3 in other words there can be no estopped when the truth (of minority) is known to both the parties 4

12 Limitation

As alread, pointed out in Note 1, the suit though filed by the next friend as really that of the minor plaintiff and is governed by the law of limitation applicable to the minor. He is entitled to the exemption prescribed by sections 6 and 7 of the Lamitation Act (IN of 1908)?

1 Scope of the Rule

Where a minor sues without a next friend the defendant can under this Rule apply to have the plant taken off the file. But even without in such application the Court is bound to take notice of the minority of the plaintiff if the same is disclosed in the course of the trial and suspend all proceedings in the suit until the defect is remedied by the minor getting himself properly represented by a next friend i

Where there is a certificated guardian appointed for a minor under the Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890) but a sint is filed by a third person on behalf of the minor it has been held by the High Court of Alluhubud that the suit should be considered to be filed by the minor without a next friend and should be talen off the file 2

2 Suit by minor without a next friend

It has been held by the High Court of Calcutta that this Kule applies only to eases where the fact of minority is apparent on the face of the plant and that the rule does not contemplate an inquiry into the question of minoria where the plaint printa facie shows that the plaintiff is a major i In the latter case where on enquiry the plaintiff is actually found to be a minor the proper procedure according to that Court is to suspend all proceedings and to allow sufficient time to enable the nunor to have lumself properly represented in the suit by a next friend. If the Court purports to act under this rule, and takes the plaint off the file the order must be treated as a decree dismission the suit or an order rejecting the plaint in both of which cases an appeal will lie . On the other hand the High Court of Bombay has held that this rule applies even to cases where the fact of minority is disclosed on enquiry but that the Court should as a matter of practice stay proceedings and allow sufficient time to enable the minor plaintiff to be represented by a next friend unless the plaintiff instituted the suit with the knowledge of the fact of minority and with the intention of deceiving the Court and of eviding the payment of costs in the event of failure in which ease the suit should be taken off the file a The High Courts of Lahore 4 and Madras 5 and the Judicial Commissioner's Court of Oudh & have taken the same view enquiry as to his minority there is no necessity for an amendment masmuch as he can elect to proceed with the suit?

3 Waiver of objection by defendant

Where a defendant against whom a suit is instituted by a minor is a to the minority of the plantificuid we elects to proceed to trial and take the chance of obtaining a decree in his favour on the merits without using any objection under this rule he cannot be allowed for the first time in part when the trial has gone against him to contend that the suit is act maintainable owing to the minority of the plantiff. The decree presend in his use is not a nullity. The near representation of the minor by a next

h a case is not a mility. The non representation of the minor by a nexttiend is only in progulating capable of being waved by the defendant i... On the same principle ii has been held that where on objection taken

On the same principle it has been field that where on objection taken by the defendant a next friend is appointed for the plantiff, the defendant only to object in appeal that the suit was engandly filed without a next to all and was thrift to be temporarily.

1 Scope and object of the Rule

The object of the rule is to see that the minor's interest does not cuffer and that he is properly represented in a suit filed against him 1 The Court cannot, therefore be too jealous in observing the requirements of the law in regard to infants and in seeing that their afterests are properly safeguarded It should be satisfied not merely that the proposed guardian is a fit and proper person to set as guardian but also that he has no interest. directly or indirectly adverse to the ininot 2 As to the applicability of the rule to proceedings other than suits see the undermentioned cases a

Shall appoint a proper person to be guardian for the suit

The provisions of the rule are manufators and the Court is bound to appoint a proper guard in for a minor defendant 1 The appointment is not a more matter of form. The Court is Louis to saush itself that the proposed guardian is a fit and proper person to represent the interests of the minor 2 A decree obtained against a minor without appointing a guardian for him as required by this rule is nullity (see Note 5, infra) The principle that the manager of a joint Hindu family represents in hitigation the other members including nunor co-pareeners does not apply when minors are made parties to a suit, the Court is, therefore bound to appoint a guardian for the minor defendant even though the managing member of the family of which such runor is a member is a co-defendant?

But the fact that the validity of the proceedings depends upon the appointment of a proper guardian for a minor defendant does not mean that for purposes of limitation a suit is not validly filed until a guardian ad liter is appointed for the minor the institution of a suit is complete and saves limitation even though the further Progress of the suit depends upon the appointment of a suitable guardian 4

4 When defendant pleads minority

When a defendant who is sued as a major pleads that he is a minor, the preper procedure is to rust a prelim ray, issue on the question of his minority and give a finding thereon. In the proceedings for the determination of such issue however the alleged minor should be represented by a guardian ad litem appointed by the Court. If it is found that the defendant is in fact a minor then a guardian should be appointed for the suit. If not, the guardian appointed for the enquiry should cease to act i. On the analogy of this principle it has been held that where a minor applies to be brought on record as the legal representative of a deceased party the Court ought to appoint a guardian for the purpose of the enquiry as to his being the legal representative?

5 Non representation

I minor cannot be considered to be a parts to a suit inless he is represented therein by a duly qualified guardian. I decree passed against a minor not so represented must be regarded as a decree passed against a person not a party to the suit and is, therefore without juri-diction null and yould. #### 8 Decree against major treating him as minor and vice versa

A major defendant who is described and impleaded as a minori or a minor who is treated as a major and impleaded as such cannot be treated as a party to the suit and is not bound by the decree passed in the suit. But if the major defendant is aware of the defect or takes part in the proceedings withour object on he will be extended from questioning the validity of the decree later on 3

9 Such application shall be supported by affidavit—Sub clause (3)

An application for the appointment of a guardian should be supported by an affidavit stating the fact of minority of the defendant and that the proposed guardian is a fit person to be appointed as guardian. The Court must be satisfied that the person it appoints will safeguard the interests of the minut and that he has no interest of his own which will come into conflict with that of the minor 1 But as already pointed out in Note 7 the absence of such an affidavit is only an irregularity and cannot render the decree invalid 2

See sub-R (3) of R 3 substituted by the Madras High Court as to the contents of the affidavit in support of a petition under this rule

10 Service of Summons

There is no specific mode provided for the service of summons on a minor defendant. It should therefore be served in the minner prescribed for service of summons under O 5 ante 1 Where however a guardian has been appointed in the suit for the minor notice of an appeal from a decree in that suit need only be served on the guardian 2

11 Notice to the minor and his guardian

No order should be made under this rule appointing a guardian for a minor defendant imless and until the necessary notices are given to the persons referred to in the rule 1 The object of giving a nouce to the minor is twofold he may not be a minor at all in which case he may come to Court and defend

part of the guardian which has resulted in prejudice to the minor's 13 Effect of fraud or gross negligence of guardian

It has been observed in Note 5 ante that when a minor is represented a suit by a didy qualified guardian lie, becomes legally a party to the suit and that the decree passed against him is binding on him as much as on an adult and that the judgment will operate against him as ics indicate in subsequent proceedings. But where the guardian has been guilty or trand or collusion the minor like any other party to a suit can under the provisions of S 44 of the Indian Pridence Act avoid the bar of res judicata against 1 im by proving such fraud or collusion. It has been held by the High Court of Madras that on the analogy of the same section the minor can avoid the bar of res julicata by showing that the guardan was guilty of gross negligence in the conduct of the sut 1 In the undermentioned case the High Court of Allahabad has also held that the judgment obtained against a minor in a suit in which the grardian has been guilty of gross neglinence is not res judicata against him it has hovever reached this conclusion on the view that the principle of S 44 of the Friderice Act cannot be applied to such a case but that the minor ceases for all practical purposes to be a party to the suit when the guardian is guilty of gross negligence and that tl erefore the previous decision was not one between the parties to the subsequent suit and that therefore there could be no res in legie. It is submitted that the reason me is not correct. Where once a guard an ad litem is dul appointed for a minor party he becomes as has been seen already levall a party to the suit aid the Court acquires jurisdict on to hear his case. He cannot cease to be a party or continue to be a party from time to time according as the guardian is acting regligently or otherwise

2 Scope of the Rule

This Rule deals with the question as to who can act as next friend or be appointed as guardian of a minor for the suit. The general rule is that any person who 15 of sound mind and has attained majority may so act or be so appointed, provided his interests are not adverse to that of the minor (sub-Rule 1) 1 Where there is a certified guardian for the minor, it is he that should be allowed to act as next friend or be appointed as guardian and not any other person unless it is for the welfare of the minor that another person should be appointed (sub-R 2) Where there is no other person fit and willing to act as guardian, the Court may appoint its own officer to act as guardian (sub R 3)

The powers of the Court under this Rule and R 11 of this Order are evercisable by the Registrar under S 105 of Sch I of the Rangoon Small Cause Courts Act (VII of 1920)

- (4) he is not the opposite party, i e, a defendant in the case of a next friend or a plaintiff in the case of a guardian

Provided these conditions are satisfied the mere fact that he happens to be an undischarged insolvent will not invalidate his appointment is a ouardian 2

4 Married woman

Under S 457 of the Code of 1882 a married woman was disqualified from being appointed as guardian ad litem in a suit. Consequently it was held that a decree obtained against a minor with a married woman as his guardian was a nullity a But it was held that the prohibition did not apply to the case of a next friend and that a married woman could validly represent a minor plaintiff 2 Under the present rule the disqualification has been removed altogether so that a married woman can now represent the minor plaintiff as well as a defendant

High Court of Madras that the mere fact that the interest of the guardian was adverse to that of the minor is not sufficient to invalidate the decree passed against the minor, but that the minor should be shown to have suttered prejudice by such appointment. The decisions do not advert to the decision of their Lordships of the Privy Council in Rashid Unnissa v. Muhammad Ismail, II.R 31 All 572, in which it is laid down that a person having an interest adverse to that of the minor is a disqualified person and that the minor cannot be deemed to have been legally represented by lum. The said decisions cannot, therefore be considered to be correct

The question whether the interests of the guardian are adverse to that of the minor depends on the facts and circumstances of each case 31 There is a conflict of opinion as to whether a person who has executed a document or entered into a transaction on behalf of the minor is a person whose interests are adverse to that of the minor in a suit on that document or transaction. According to the High Courts of Allahabads and Patnas his interests are adverse and he cannot therefore be appointed as guardian of the minor According to the High Court of Madras,6 and the Chief Court of Oudhoa his interests are no necessarily adverse to that of the minor in all cases but whether they are so in any particular case depends upon the tacts of that case

the High Courts of Allahabad,2 Calcutta,3 and Patna,4 the violation of this provision is only an arregularity and does not, by itself, vinate the decree Thus where the mother of certain minor defendants was appointed their guardian ad litem in ignorance of the fact that there was a certificated guardian, it was held that the decree could not be set aside in the absence of any proof of prejudice to the minors 5 The High Court of Madras has, on the other hand held that in such a case the appointment is illegal and the decree obtained against the minor, l'out

The words 'appointed by competent authority' do not include the case of a Hindu father purporting to appoint a testamentary guardian to his son even assuming that he has the power to appoint a guardian under the general Hindu Law 7

7. 'Another person be permitted to act"

A Court can in the interests of the minor permit a person other than the certificated guardian to act or appoint him as a guardian ad litem of the minor notwithstanding the existence of a certificated guardian. Thus where the appointment or the identity of the certificated guardian is not known1 the Court may appoint another person as guardian ad litem of the minor.

upon himself the onerous duty of detending the interests of the minor 2 Where a person is appointed guarding of a minor without his consent express of implied there is a conflict of opinion as to whether the decree passed must be deened to be one passed against the minor who has not been represented in the sunt and to be therefore a mullity. The High Courts of Allahabad and Calcutta have held that the decree passed under such circumstances as a nullity The High Courts of Madras and Patra have expressed conflicting or muons on this point, holding in some cases that it is a nullity,4 and m others that it is only an irregularity which, in the absence of proof of prejudice to the minor will not vinate the decree of it is submitted that the last view as correct As has been seen in Note 5 to R. 3, ante, where, on the face of the record the minor is represented by a person and such person is not disqualified to be a guardian the Court has jurisdiction to deal with the suit against the minor and the non-comphance with the various requirements in the process of appointing the guardian cannot render the judgment a nullity. but would only amount to pregularities which may be grounds for setting aside the decrees in proper proceedings on proof of prejudice to the minor 6

It has been held by the High Court of Calcutta that the consent of a guardian cannot be presumed merely from the fact that a notice under O 21. R 22 has been issued to him 7 The Chief Court of Oudh has also held that a person who is named as guardian but who does not appear in the suit cannot be said to have consented to be appointed as guardian 8 Where. however, the guardian has had an opportunity to object to his appointment and does not do so, the consent, according to the Allahabad High Court, can be presumed a See also the amendments to this rule made by the various High Courts

Where a Court guardian is approinted the Court may provide for the payment of the costs to be incurred by lum in conducting the proceedings on behalf of the minor where the Court guardian is not put in possession of any funds for defending the suit with the result that defences open to the minor are not ruised the decree can be avoided by the minor in appropriate proceedings 7

10 Wishes of the minor if should be considered

The wishes of the minor should, if possible be considered and given due weight in the matter of the appointment of a person as his next friend or guardian ad litem 2. This is the reason why notice is to be given to the minor See Note 11 to R. 3.

11 Probate proceedings -See Note 14 to R 3 supra

12 Leave to sue or defend on behalf of a minor

Under the present rule leave to sue or defend is necessary only in cases where there is already a guardian for the minor appointed or declared by a competent authority and some other person wishes to represent the minor as the next friend or guardian ad litem. But the absence of a formal order granting leave to sue is not necessarily fatal to the suit 1

For cases under the Bengal Minors Act (\L of 1858) and the Bombay Minors Act (\L\ of 1864) (both of them now repealed by Act VIII of 1890) the provisions whereof required the granting of a permission or a certificate to sue on behalf of the minor, see the following cases 2

Appointment of guardian ad litem how 1. Who may apply.

Sub-R I of the rule errors that every application on behalf of a minor other than an application under R 10 sub-R 2 shall be made by his next friend or guardian An application by a guardian who has been di-charged by the Court is thus not valid and ought to be rejected 1 Where before a guardian is appointed for a minor defendant in a suit it was found necessary to apply for the transfer of the suit to another Court it was held by the High Court of Cabutta that the next frend of the minor could make such an application on behalf of the minor planning 2

2 Effect of an application without a next friend or guardian

It has been seen in Note 5 to R 3 above that where a minor is not repre ented in a suit the decree passed against him is a nullity. On the same principle an order mide on an application without the minor being properly repre ented therein 1 y a next friend or juardyin does not bind the minor I Sub-R 2 provides that such an order may be discharged.

3 Appointment of guardian ad litem how long continues

Where a guardian ad litem has once been appointed his appointment entire for the whole of the lis in all its ramifications unless and until it is revoked by the Court or the guardin dies or retires. The appointment continues for purpoles of ovecution, and appeals

It has been held that the Deput, Registrar of the High Court who has been appointed guardam ad liten ceases to represent the minor as soon as the appeal to the Priv, Council is admitted although he can represent the minor in an application for leave to appeal 4

4 Pleader's liability for costs

Where the pleader representing the minor knew or might have known, of the fact of minority and yet files an application without a next friend or guardian he is liable to be saddled with the costs to the opposite pirty!

5 Suit for custody of minor

This rule does not apply to a suit for the custody of a minor. It is not necessary in such a suit that the minor should be separately represented:

Receipt by next friend or guardian for the suit of pro perty under decree for minor

- R. 6. [S. 461] (1) A next friend or guardian for the suit shall not, without the leave of the Court, receive any money or other moveable property on behalf of a unior either:
- (a) by way of compromise before decree or order, or
- (b) under a decree or order in favour of the minor

(2) Where the next friend or guardian for the suit has not been appointed or declared by competent authority to be guardian of the property of the minor, or, having been so appointed or declared, is under any disability known to the Court to be either money or other moveable property, the Court shall, it it grants him leave to becaute the property, require such security and give such directions as will, in its opinion, sufficiently protect the property from waste and ensure its proper application.

1.A The object and applicability of the Rule

This rule as well as rule 7 unfra are based upon the general principle of law that an infant hugant becomes the ward of the Court and the Court has got the right and also the duty to see that the guardians act properly, and bona fide in the interests of the minors and that no suits are instituted or carried on by them for their own benefit only irrespective of the benefit of the minors i

This rule does not in any way control the substantive provisions of law contained in S 194 of the Indian Succession Act of 1925 2

1 Joint Hindu family—Right of manager to withdraw money or give discharge

It was held by their Lordships of the Privy Council in Ganesha Ron ber of a joint Hindu family is himself the next friend or guardian of a minor party 'his powers are controlled by the provisions of the law and he cannot do any act in his capacity of father or managing member which he is debarred from doing as next friend or guardian without leave of the Court to the High Court of Madias, these observations apply equally to cases coming under this rule and the Larta, who represents minor parties to the suit as their next friend or guardian cannot without leave of the Court inder this tule, give a valid discharge of the decree or withdraw any monies deposited by the judgment debtor for the bencht of the minor members i A contrary view was taken in the undermen ioned cases one of which was before the date of the decision of the Privy Council in Ganesha Row's case and the o her, though decided after the decision of Ganesha Ron's case, did not advert to it. It is submitted that they are not correct

But the rule will not apply where the managing member is not the next triend or guidden of the minor party. His right to give a discharge on behalt of the tamily under the Hindu Law is not affected by this rule 3 According to the High Cour of Bombay where the decree itself dispenses with the separa c application and sanction which might be necessary under this rule and allows the manager to receive the amount so long as he furnishes security the later on give a valid discharge without the leave of the Court under this rule +

2 Payment to next friend without leave

A payment made by the judgment-debtor to the next friend or guard an without the leave of the Court under this rule is not a valid payment and wall not prevent the decree from being regarded as a subsisting one i

3 Security for protection of minor's property

The fact that the next friend or guardian is the manager of a joint Hindu family does not exempt him from giving security under sub-R 2 1 The bond should be duly stamped and affixed with Court-fee stamp as required by Art 6 Sch II of the Court Fees Act 2

2 Scope and object of the Rule

This Rule as well as the other Rules of this Order are enacted for the protection of minors who are mindle to look after their own interests and to whom the Court sands in a quasi-turelary position. The guardams and next friends are not invariably honest and even if honest are sometimes careless and occasionally lacking in intelligence. Therefore the duty of saleguarding the interest of the minors so far as is practicable, is thrown upon the Court i

The rule forbids the next friend or guardian to enter into agricment or compromise on behalf of the minor without the express leave of the Court and by implication requires the Court to consider in the exercise of its judical discretion the propriety of the same in the interests of the minor 2 But the rule applies only where the minor is a partly to a pending suit and not to a case where his interests may be affected by reason of a compromise in a suit to which he is not a partly 3 Nor can a person other than the next friend or guardian compromise the suit on behalf of the minor 4

No application for leave as necessary to negocate the priricular terms of a compromise, but such an application is necessary to enter into a compromise. Where such an application is made, the Court will, having regard to the interests of the minor pass a decree in terms thereof under O 23, R 3,53 unless the guardrin withdraws his consent or refuses to assent to the compromise before the Court passes the decree 6. The reason is that the Court cannot force a compromise upon the minor against the wishes of his guardrin 7 but if it appears to the Court that the guardian is acting improperly in refusing to assent to a compromise which is prima face beneficial to the minor, the Court can, in the interests of the minor, remove the guardian and appoint another 8.

Sub R 2 contemplates the case of a minor on one side ranged against adults on the other. It has no reference to the effect of any compromise between adults alone although the minor may be a party to the suit. A compromise between adults is governed by the general law and not by this rule 9

3 Without the leave of the Court expressly recorded

The requirement as to leave of the Court is based on the principle that a suit relating to the estate of an infant and for his benefit has the effect of making him a ward of the Court and no act can be done affecting the property of the minor unless under the express direction of the Court. The leave of the Court should be express in all cases: and cannot be implied from the mere lact that a decree his been passed by the Court adopting the terms of the compromise 3 As pointed out by Lord Macnaghren in Manohar Lal v Jadunath Smith (1906) 1 LR 28 All 585 (P. C.)

There ought to be evidence that the attention of the Court was directly called to the fact that the minor was a party to the compromise and it ought to be shown by an order on jet tion or in some way not open to doubt that the leave of the Court was obtained."

The fact that the minor is described as such in the title of the suit and that the terms of the compromise are before the Court is not enough 4

The Court should before granting leave exercise a judicial discretion as to the propriety of the compromise in the interests of the minors. In other words, the Court must have materials before it to satisfy its mind that the proposed compromise is for the benefit of the minor. No compromise involving an apparent surrender of the infant's rights ought to be sanctioned by Courts? No hard and fast rule, can be laid down as to what particular materials a judge may call for before being satisfied that the compromise is in the interests and for the benefit of the minor it is a matter for the exercise of judicial dicretion in each case 8 It has been held that an affidant by the guardam enting forth the terms of the compromise and how he considers them beneficial to the minor should be filed. In heavy cases there should also be an opinion of the counsel or a statement by the counsel at the bar that the compromise is a nit and proper one to be sunct oned in the interest of the minor? It the undermentioned case their lordships of the Judicial Committee called for a certificate from the High Court is regards the propriety of a compromise on levals of a minor before sanctioning the same observing that there should be a clear expression of opinion by the proper Court in India that such a compromise is beneficial one to the minor. There is a conflict of judicial opinion as to the form and nature of the order granting leave to compromise under this rule. In Kolindi is, Check Lala the High Court of Allahabad held that

The C urt houll record the fact that such application was made to it that the terms of the proped are ement or compromise were considered by the Court and that having regard to the interests of the minor the Court granted leave to the making of the agreement or compressing the court granted leave to the making of the agreement or compressing the court granted leave to the making of the agreement or compressing the court granted leave to the making of the agreement or compression.

The High Court of Madras in the undermentioned case<sup>12</sup> also expressed a similar view and held that the order should in terms state that the question of benefit to the minor was considered by the Court But in a later caseis the same High Court however, dissented from that view and held that the order need not on the face of it state in so many words that the Court had conjugged and come to the conclusion that the settlement was for the minor's benefit and that a mere order on the petition saying granted implied that the Court had applied its mind to the matter. In Virupax v. Shiddappa14 Sir Lawrence Jenkins C J expressed the view that the form of expression used for indicating that the Court granted the leave is of slight importance provided the Court really after a consideration of the circumstances intended to grant the required leave but Chandwarkar J disagreed with this view and held that a mere order of the Court saying granted was not a sufficient compliance with the rule. The High Court of Calcutta has expressed conflicting opinions on this point some decisions15 following the earlier Madras case, while the case cited belows proceeds upon a reasoning similar to that of the later Madras case The High Courts of Laboreit and Patnais also hold the same tien as that of the later Madras case

minor members thereof: But if the Karnavan or adult member happens to be the guardian ad litem or next friend of the minor in a suit then on the principles mentioned in Note 7 above, leave of the Court is necessary before he can enter into a compromise binding on the minor

8 a Compromise by adult members of a joint Hindu family

In Rameshuar Prasad v Ram Bahadur Sungh (1907, ILR 34 Cal 70, PC) their Lordships of the Judicial Committee held that where a compromise was entered into by the adult co-parceners in a joint Hindu family in a pending litigation in which the minor co parcener had no interest separate from that of the adult members of the family and the Court pronounced the compromise beneficial to the numer, the compromise was bending on the minor.

9 Compromise by the Court of Wards on behalf of the ward

It has been held that in cases coming under the Bengal Court of Wards Act (IV of 1879) no leave of the Court is necessary for entering into a compromise on behalf of the minor i The reason is that S 51 of that Act makes it obligatory on the Civil Court to recognise the Court of Wards as the next friend or the guardian as the case may be in a suit by or against the minor Turther S 18 of that Act itself gives power to the Court of Wards to enter into a compromise on behalf of the ward Rule 16 of this Order also contains a saving clause in respect of local laws:

10 Agreement to be bound by oath if a compromise

An ofter by the next friend or the guardian as the case may be of a minor to be bound by the evidence given on onth by the opposite party or his watness under S 9 of the Indian Oa'hs Act (X of 1873), does not amount to an agreement or compromise within the meaning of this rule and no leave of the Court is necessity in such a case 1 The evidence so given is binding upon the minor under S 11 of that Act unless there is fraud or gross negligence on the part of the guardian in the conduct of the suit which results in prejudice to the minor z

But an offer by the guardan ad lifent to suffer a decree on the oath of the plantiff would amount to a compromise and, if not sanctioned by the Court, is not binding on the minor 3

11 Abandonment of issue-If a compromise

The abandonment or giving up an issue on the part of the next friend or guardian ad litem in the course of the conduct of the suit does not amount to a compromise within the meaning of this rule and therefore no leave of the

12 Withdrawal of suit

General

A withdrawal of a suit by the next friend of a minor plantiff in pursuance of an agreement or comprome e it red into with the defendant can only be made with the leave of the Court be use it will be voidable at the instance of the minor. Applications 1 all is a suit or appeal to be withdrawn where there are parties who are no minors are not granted without grave consideration. In the underment oned case the Judicial Committee granted leave to withdraw an appeal only after being assured by the counsel at the bar that the terms on which it was proposed to be withdrawn were beneficial to the minor. But a mere withdrawal of a suit not in pursuance of any agreement or compromise does not come within the purview of this rule although such a withdrawal is open to attack by the minor on the ground of fraud or collision or gross negligence on the nart of the next friend.

13 Compromise in execution proceedings -See Note 2 to Order 32,

14 Transfer without leave of decree in favour of minor

The provisions of this rule apply also to a compromise entered into even after a decree has been passed and an adjustment of a decree to which a minor is a party is not binding on the inition unless leave of the Court has been obtained therefor: On the same principle a transfer of a decree obtained in favour of a minor is not binding on the minor unless leave of the Court has been obtained for such transfer?

15 Agreement to refer to arbitration

This rule does not apply to references made without the intervention of the Court inasmuch as there is no stuff pending in such cases? A decree passed on an award passed on such a reference and filed into Court under paragraph 20 of the Second Schedule is not bad for want of sanction, though it may not be binding on the minor for other reasons? But an application made under paragraph 20 of the Second Schedule is a stuff and if, during the pendency thereof the guardian agrees not to object to the filing of the award, the agreement must, like any other agreement be sanctioned by the Court?

There is a conflict of opinion as to whether this Rule applies to agreements to refer to arbitration made pending suit. The general consensus of opinion in all the Courts except the High Courts of Allahabad and Calcutta is that this rule applies to such cases and that the leave of the Court is necessary 4 According to the High Court of Allahabad the provisions as to arbitration proceedings are self-contained and this rule does not apply to such proceedings 5 The High Court of Calcut a has taken conflicting views on the matter 6 It is subm ted that the Allahabad view cannot be accepted as correct

16 Compromise when can be set aside

A compromise in order to be valid and binding upon the minor must fulfil the following conditions ---

- (1) The leave of the Court must have been expressly obtained (See Note 3)
- (2) It should have been granted by the Court after the exercise of a judicial discretion as regards the propriety of the compromise in the interests of the minor See also No e 3)
  - (3) It should not be visated by fraud or mistake (See Note 4)
- (4) There must be proper representation of the minor by the next friend or guardian ad I tem He should not have been guilty of fraud or gross negligence in the matter of compromise (See Notes 17 and 18 below)
  - (5) The minor should have continued to be a m nor till the passing of the compromise decree (See Note 19 below)

17 Gross negligence of next friend or guardian

on the part of the next friend or guardian ad litem if established will entitle the minor to avoid any decree passed against him. There must be the strictest good faith on the part of the guardian and his acts must be based on considerations of actual necessity and advantage to the minor and not on calculations of any possible benefit 1 It is his duty to place the Court in possession of all essential and material facts and any concealment thereof would amount to constructive fraud: But if he acts bona fide and compromises a doubtful claim with the lene of the Court the compromise would be binding en the minor a See also Note 5 to R 9 below

18 Fraud

A comprome c duly entered into by the guardian and sanctioned by the Court in the exercise of its discretion will not be disturbed except upon very strong grounds 1 The grounds must be such as to amount to fraud in the party claiming the benefit of the compromise meaning by fraud not moral fraud but what in the eve of this Court is considered as amounting to fraud It there be no fraud and equal knowledge on both sides the compromise cannot be disturbed but if there is knowledge on one side which is withheld the compromise cannot stand, because the withholding of knowledge amounts in the view of a Court of equits to fraud 12 The question is not whether the Court was sausted with the information before it and could have called for further information but whether the parties having had this further information in their possess on were justified in withholding it 2 Fraud however must be strictly proved 4 man cannot complain of fraud simply because he regrets a bargain entered into with open eyes. Nor can a minor attack a compromise sanctioned by the Court on his behalf on the ground of fraud on the Court unless he can prove not merely that the compromise was not profitable to him or that his opponent put forward a false plea but also that the Court was deceived either by that plea or about the facts of the case or was decreved into believing that the compromise had been accepted by the minor's guardan or next friend with free consent and knowledge of the facts when it had not been so accepted 3

If the next friend or guardian is proved to be guilty of fraud or collusion then the compromise entered into by him and the decree passed thereon will not bind the minor 4

20 Procedure to set aside a compromise decree

A minor can file a separate suit to set aside the compromise decree or file an application for review in the same suit i He cannot take any objection as to the validity of the decree in appeal as no appeal has from a consent decree under the present Code (vide S 96, sub-S 3) 2 Nor can the validity of the decree be attacked in execution proceedings 3 Sec also Note 5 above

If a compromise decree is set aside at the instance of the minor the effect of it would be to remit the minor to his original position in the suit 4

2 Where the next friend does not do his duty

The next friend is liable to be removed under this rule if he fails do his duty,1 or if he ceases to reside in British India and leaves the count Where the Court finds that the next friend does not do his duty in relat to the suit, it should not permit him to prejudice the interest of the mi but should adjourn the suit in order that some one interested in the mi may apply on behalf of the minor for the removal of the next friend and appointment of a new next friend or in order that the minor plaintiff him may, on coming of age, elect to proceed with the suit or withdraw from Similarly, as seen in Note 2 to R 7 if the next friend refuses improperly assent to a compromise which is clearly beneficial to the minor steps may taken to remove him 4

3 Adverse interest of next friend

If the next friend has an interest adverse to that of the minor plain or his personal interests will come an'o conflict with his duty towards minor, he can be removed under this rule 1

4 Appeal after the expiry of limitation period

Where a decree is passed against the minor and the interest of minor requires that it should be appealed against but the guardian ad life refrains from doing so with a view to safeguard his own interest and for I private benefit, it has been held that the minor can on attaining majority permitted to appeal and that the delay can be excused under S 5 of t Limitation Act 1

Removal or death of next friend Note No 1

1 Removal or death of next friend

The suit does not aba e by reason of the death of the next friend. The Court should either appoint a new next friend or keep the stat pending till the minor atta no majority 12 An order dismissing the suit is a nullity 1 The same rule will a ply where the minors are appellants and their guardian dies perding appeal. Where however the decision is given in favour of the minor it s not on the principle mentioned in No e 1 to O 32 void by reason merely of the omission to appoint a fresh guardian for him 3

A mere statement on the part of the guardian that he declines to act has not the effect of removal unless sanctioned by the Court 3

2 Removal of guardian

It is the duty of the Court to project the interests of a imnor A guardian is appointed for that purpose and for that purpose alone. If the Court finds that the guardian is not acting properly it would be its duty to remove him in the interests of the minor i

The only way of getting rid of a guardian ad lilem, who has once been properly appointed, is under the provisions of this rule 2 Where in a suit against a minor the certificated guardian of the minor is appointed guardian for the suit, the mere fact that he subsequently ceases to be the certificated guardian does not of itself impose such a disqualification as to make him functus officio 3. He will continue to be the guardian until he retires or is removed by the Court under this rule.

3 Appointment of new guardian on removal, retirement or death of guardian

It is the duty of the Court to appoint a new guardian where the guardian ad litem diest or retries or is removed by the Court Where the guardian of a minor respondent dies pending appeal a decree obtained against him without appointing a fresh guardian for him would on general principles be a nullity, though a decree obtained in favour of the minor would not 3 Sea Note 1 to 0 32

It has been held by the High Court of Patna that no notice to minors is necessary before an order of fresh appointment is made 4

The power of the Court under this sub-rule may be exercised at any time during the pendency of the suit and the same is not taken away by the fact that an order to try the suit ex parte has been previously passed 5 The powers of the Court under this rule are exercisable by the Registrar under S. 105 of the Rangoon Smill Cause Courts Act (VII of 1920)

4 Costs

Section 35 ante empowers the Court to make an order as to costs against any party to the suit, while this rule empowers the Court to pass an order for costs against the guardina ad litem who is not a party to the suit. This rule cannot be construed so as to restrict the operation of S 35 and, therefore, when the guardian ad litem is himself a party to the suit the Court has

1 Scope of the Rule

The rule is based on the substantive right of a person who has become sut juris to himself proceed with a suit instituted on his behalf during his minority i The Court should as a matter of course give him leave to proceed or act in his own name and cannot ignore his application 2 If on attribung majority the minor elects to abandon a suit instituted by his next friend he must pay the costs of the next friend unless he can establish that the suit was improperly instituted 2. See also Rule 14 infra Where it is discovered in the course of the suit or appeal that the minor has attained majority the Court cannot dismiss the suit or appeal for default but should issue notice to the quandam minor to elect whether he intends to proceed with the suit uppeal 3 If he elects to continue the sur his rights should be determined as on the date on which the suit was originally instituted 4 Where the minor continues to be represented bona fide by a pleader even after his attaining majority and subsequently the quondum minor ratifies such acts they cannot be treated as invalid on the ground of non compliance with this rule s

2 Title to be corrected

It has been held by the High Court of Calcutta that the provision of this rule requiring the title of the suit to be corrected applies only where the suit is nending and no to proceedings taken after a final decree has been passed in the suit i

3 Minor defendant becoming a major during the pendency of suit

No provision has been made in the Code in respect of a minor defendant attuining majority during the pendency of the suit. The reason for the omission is that while a plaintiff on becoming a major can as a dominus litis elect either to go on or put an end to the higgation the defendan has no such choice available to him and the sint must proceed against him notwithstanding he becomes a major. The minor defendant the comes of age may if he thinks fit come on the record and conduct the defence himself. If however he does not do so he must be deemed to have elected to abide by the representation of the auondam guardian and the judgment eventually passed will be binding upon lum. The decree passed in such a case cannot be said to be a nullity or made without jurisdiction 1

The present rule places persons of unsound mind in the same po its as that of minors and makes the provisions of Rr 1 to 14 applicable t them. Hence a suit on behalf of a person of unsound mind has to be filed by a next friend and where the defendant is of unsound mind the Court has to appoint a guardian ad litem 1

2 Mental infirmity

The corresponding section in the old Code was applicable only to persons of unsound mind Now the scope of the rule has been widened by the addition of the words or mental infirmity. The result is that even a person of weak mind can sue through a next friend provided the Court is satisfied that he is incapable of proceing his interests 1 The High Court of Labore has held that the rule applies also to persons who are absolucly deaf and dumb

The fact that a person of high position has renounced the world and become a Sansasi neglecting worldly affairs would not of itself justify the Court in holding that by reason of unsoundness of mind and mental infirmity he is incarable of protecting his interests willing the meaning of this Rule But a persistent delusion of being haunted by demons of persecution by innormary to ces and religious magalominia which makes him regard himself as destined to be in some sort a saviour of the world are symptoms which would justify the conclus on that the person is suffering from delusional institute and incapable of managing his own affairs 3

3 Persons adjudged to be of unsound mind

A person can be adjudged to be of unsound mind under the provisions of the Lunacy Act IV of 1912 For cases under the Lunacy Act and evidence relating to lunacy see the following cases 1

4 Persons of unsound mind not so adjudged

The old section applied only to across of unsound mind adjudged to be so under Act XXXV of 1858 or under any other law for the time come in force. And even so the decisions under the old Code held that the Court had inherent power to appoint a guardien for persons of unsound mind though 1 of so adjudged 1 Now the lexislature has given effect to these decisions a providing also for cases of persons not so adjudged. If the defendant alleges that he is of unsound mind and the plaintiff denies it the Court must hold a judical enquity and come to a finding as to whether he is incanable I protecting his oun interests? It is only when the Court on moury finds that the defendant by reason of unsoundness of mind or mental infirmity, is the mable of procedure his in crests that it is necessary to appoint a guardian ad litem 24 Thus where a defendant alleged to be a lunate dies before the i sue of process, it cannot be said that the suit was not validly instituted against the deceased on account of the fact that no guardian was appointed ab A finding in the lunicy proceedings that a person is not of unsound mind and pregrable of managing his affairs does not preclude a finding under the present rule that the same person is by reason of mental infirmity incapable of preference 1 s interests in the suit 3

5. Appointment of next friend or guardian for persons of unsound mind

As already seen, the Court is bound to appoint a next friend or guardian in the case of persons of unsound mind. If he is not represented by a guardian in the suit, the decree will be null and void 2 See also Note 5 to R 3 Where a manager of the property of the lunatic has been appointed under the Lunacy Act such person ought to be appointed as the next friend or guardian ad litem in the suit 2 See also R 4, sub-R (2)

6 Decree against lunatic not represented, if can be challenged in execution proceedings

As already seen in Note 5 to R 3, having regard to the decision of their Lordships of the Judicial Committee in Rashid-un-nissa v Muhammad Ismail [(1909) ILR 31 All 572 (P C)] an objection as to want of proper representation is not one falling under $ 47 of the Code and cannot be raised in execution proceedings masmuch as the person not represented cannot be deemed to be a party to the suit 1

7 Revision

In the undermentioned cases the High Court of Allahabad interfered under its inherent powers and ordered a stay of proceedings in the suit, pending decision in the lunacy proceedings against the defendant under the Lunacy Act

R. 16. [S 464] Nothing in this Order shall apply to a Sovereign Prince or Ruling Chief suing or Saing for Princes being sued in the name of his State, or being and Chiefs sued by direction of the Governor-General in

1 Suit by Paupers

The State derives a revenue from Court fee stamps and a plaintiff suing in Courts is under the Court Tees Act 1870 bound to pay the Court fee prescribed at the time of filing the plaint. But in view of the fact that there may be persons who by reason of their poverty, are unable to pay the fee provisions have been enacted in this Order exempting such persons from paying in the first instance the Court fee prescribed and allowing them to prosecute their suits in forma pauperis 1 But if such pauper succeeds in the suit the Government can recover the amount of Court fee as a first charge from our of the subject matter of the suit (See R 10) And even if the plaintiff fails in the suit the Court should order him under R 11 infra to pay the Court fees due by him

The executor of a deceased person is entitled to obtain a probate in forma pauperis though the pention for grant of probate is not a suit in the ordinary sense unless careat is entered?

The provisions of this order are not applicable to proceedings under the Agra Tenancy Act (III of 1926) and the Madrus Estates Land Act (I of 1908)

2 Suit may be instituted by a pauper

It is competent to the Court to allow a suit not originally instituted in forma pauperis to be continued in forma pauperis 1 The substitution of the word instituted in this rule in place of the word brought in S 401 of the old Code has not made any change in the law in this respect "

Is not possessed of sufficient means

The explanation to this rule furnishes two different tests to determine the nauperism of a person1 --

Thus where a claim requires a Court-fee of Rs 1.775 and the applicant is possessed of means to the extent of Rs 1,600, only. he is a pauper for the purposes of that suit 2

(2) Where no such fee is prescribed a person who is not entitled to property worth one hundred rupees other than his necessary nearing apparel and the subject matter of the suit, is a pauper for the purposes of that suit 32

A person may be entitled to property but may nevertheless be not possessed of sufficient means to pay the Court-fee. It cannot therefore, be assumed that everyone who is cutified to property is possessed of means to the value of that property 4 Where though a person is entitled to property, yet if it is out of his reach and is thus not a realisable asset or convertible into cash, it cannot be said that he is possessed of sufficient means to pay the Cour-fee 5 Thus a mere turding that the applicant is jointly interested in a property with another but over which he has no dominion, would only show that he is entitled to property but not that he is possessed of means 6

The word means is according to the High Court of Lahore intended to cover and include all forms of realisable assets, which can be converted into cash and as such can be used for bn ancing the langation? Thus according to that Court, it would include an interest in a decrees or a mortgages in favour of the petitioner The High Court of Calcutta has on the other hand held that a debt which is due from a third person cannot be said to be means of which the applicant is possessed, and that the words is not possessed of must mean that the applicant has no actual control over it 10 Where the pentioner is possessed of some property which is not cash the test according to the High Court of Madras to decide whether he is a pauper, is not whether in the abstract he has the nower of raising money but whether in the concrete circumstances of the case he can succeed in raising anything substant at by exercising that power 10a

According to the Judicial Commissioner's Court of Nagpur a person owning a non-transferable occupancy right which is not capable of conversion

The State derives a revenue from Court fee stamps and a pla ntiff stung in Courts is under the Court Pees Act, 1870 bound to pay the Court-fee prescribed at the time of filing the plaint. But in view of the fact that there may be persons who, by reason of their poverty, are unable to pay the fee provisions have been enacted in this Order exempting such persons from paying in the first instance the Court fee prescribed and allowing them to prosecute their suits in forma pauperis 1 But if such pauper succeeds in the suit, the Government can recover the amount of Court-fee as a first charge from out of the subject-matter of the suit (See R 10) And even if the plaintiff fails in the suit the Court should order him under R 11 unira to pay the Court fees due by him

The executor of a deceased person is entitled to obtain a probate in forma pauperis though the petition for grant of probate is not a stift in the ordinary sense unless carcat is entered 2

The provisions of this order are not applicable to proceedings under the Agra Tenancy Act (III of 1926) and the Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908)

2 Suit may be instituted by a pauper

It is competent to the Court to allow a suit not originally instituted in forma pauperis to be continued in forma pauperis 1 The substitution of the word instituted in this rule in place of the word brought in S 401 of the old Code has not made any change in the law in this respect

Is not possessed of sufficient means

The explanation to this rule furnishes two different tests to determine the pauperism of a person1 -

> (1) Where a fee is prescribed by law for the plaint in a suit a person who is not possessed of sufficient means to enable him to pay such fee is a pauper for the purposes of that suit 12

Thus where a claim requires a Court-fee of Rs 1,775 and the applicant is possessed of means to the extent of Rs 1,600, only, he is a payer for the purposes of that suit 2

(2) Where no such fee is prescribed a person who is not entitled to property worth one hundred rupees other than his necessary wearing apparel and the subject-matter of the suit is a pauper for the purposes of that suit 33.

A person may be entitled to property but may nevertheless be not possessed of sufficient uneans to pay the Court fee. It cannot therefore be assumed that everyone who is entitled to property, is passessed of means to the value of that property. Where though a person is entitled to property, yet if it is out of his reach and is thus not a realisable asset or convertible into eash it cannot be said that he is possessed of sufficient means to pay the Cour-fee. Thus a mere finding, that the applicant is jointly interested in a property with another but over which he has no domination would only show that he is entitled to property but not that he is possessed of means.

The word means is according to the High Court of Lahore intended to cover and include all forms of realisable assets which can be converted united and an advantage of the humaning the lugation? Thus according to that Court it would include an interest in a decrees or a mortgages in favour of the petitioner. The High Court of Calciuta has on the other hand held that a debt which is due from a third person cannot be said to be means of which the applicant is possessed, and that the words is not possessed of mist mean that the applicant has no actual control over it is Where the petitioner is possessed of some property which is not cash the test according to the High Court of Madras to decide whether he is a pauper is not whether in the abstract he has the poner of raising mone; but whether in the concrete circumstances of the case he can succeed in raising anything substant all by exercisnig that nower <sup>104</sup>

of this rule,

6 Subject matter of the suit, if can be considered in deciding sufficient means

The words 'other than his necessary wearing apparel or the subjectmatter of the suit" do not qualify the first part of the explanation, but apply only to cases where no specific Court-fee as prescribed 1 But this does not mean that in dealing with the first part of the explanation the subject-matter has always to be taken into consideration? The subject-matter of the suit may, in some cases, be in the possession of the petitioner and in some cases not. In the former class of cases it canno be excluded from consideration merely on the ground that it forms the subject-matter of the suit 3 Thus where A files a suit for certain ornaments in the possession of B and obtains a decree and B applies for leave to appeal in forma pauperis, the ornaments in her possession will have to be taken into account in determining whether she has sufficient means to pay the Court-fee on the memorandum of appeal 4 In the latter class of cases the subject-matter of the suit cannot be taken into consideration. The reason is that the word 'possession' sufficiently indicates that any amount which forms the subject-matter of the suit and is not in the actual possession of the petitioner, cannot be taken into account for the purpose of determining his means 5

Now suppose that in unsuer to an application by a plaintiff to sue as a pauper, the detendant admits a part of the hability and produces or offers to produce into Court the property or the amount in discharge of such hability. can it be considered in determining whether the plaintiff is a pauper or not? The High Courts of Bombays and Calcutta have held that in such a case the time when the application for leave to sue as a pauper, is made is the point of time which the Court has to consider in determining whether the oc in her is a rauge. The High Court of Widras has on the other hand held that f at the time of the hearing of the application he has become possessed of afficient means the Court has no jurisdiction to grant him leave to sue as pauper a It has also been held by that High Court in the undermentioned cases that where the plaintiff gets a decree in the lower Court, but wants to appeal as a pauper for a higher amount the amount deposited in Court by the judgment debtor to the credit of the plaintiff in pursuance of the decree should b taken into consideration in determining whether he should be allowed to appeal as a pauper

7 Necessary wearing apparel

According to the High Court of Calcutta ornaments which a woman ordinarily wears should be regarded as being in the nature of wearing apparent The High Court of Lahore appears to dissent from the above view 2

8 Minor plaintiff

Where an application is filed on behalf of a minor for leave to sue in forma pauperis the circumstances of the next friend should not be considered, the fact that the next friend is possessed of sufficient means will not disentule a minor plaintiff from sung in forma pauperis. Nor will the fact that such next friend is himself a pauper disentitle him from sung on behalf of the minor in forma rauperis?

9 Pauper defendant

It has been held by the High Court of Calcutta in the undermentioned cases that a defendant may, under the inherent powers of the Court, be allowed to defend a suit in Jorma paupers, although there is no provision to that effect in the Code But the Chief Court of Punjab has taken a contrary tieve: The High Court of Rangoon also has taken a view contrary to that of the Calcutta High Court It has further held that, in any case, the Court has no inherent power to allow a party to prosecute in forma pauperts an application for review of an order passed in appeal 3

10 "Person' -- Meaning of

The word person occurring in the explanation to this rule has not been defined in this Code. According to the definition given in the General Clauses Act (V of 1897) it includes not only individual human beings but also companies or associations or bodies of individuals whether incorporated or not. It has, therefore, been held by the High Court of Madras that the word person indicates a juridical person. But the High Court of Rangoon has however, held that it means a natural nerson that is a human being and that it does not include a juridical person. Even according to this view a firm can be considered to be a person. Thus, where a firm brings a suit for damages and afterwards becomes insolvent and the Official Assignee refuses to prosecute the suit and the suit is dismissed, the firm can be granted leave to appeal as a pauper.

11 Suit by executor administrator or legal representative of

The High Court of Madras has held that an executor or an administrator or the legal representative of a deciased person is entitled to institute or maintain or continue a suit in forma painers in his representative cypicity, provided he has not come into possession of sufficient means out of the estate of the deceased 1 it proceeds on the view that the plantiff in his private capacity and in the capacity of the representative are two different persons in the eye of the law. The High Courts of Bombay and Calciutta and the Judicial Commissioner's Court of Nagpur have taken a contrary view that he could not do so, unless and until it was shown that he himself is a pruper. The above view is based on the ground that the provisions of this Code seem to negative the idea of anybody but an actual pauper, a real pauper, a man without means being permitted to maintain a suit in forma pauperis. The decisions of the High Court of Lubore are conflicting 3

12 Suit by an Official Liquidator or Official Receiver

13 Suit by Mutawalli trustee or Shebait

As his already been observed in Note 11, ante, the chiracter of a person sung n a representative character must be kept distinct from his personal catacity. Thus when a plaintiff sues in a representative character, for example as a multan illi trustee or a shebait unless he is in possession of property belonging to the unit estimate or trust or the idol for whom he sues, sufficient to enable him to profit the Court fee he may be allowed to sue as a pauper, even if it is shown the hos sufficient personal property of his own i

Where a shebait brought a suit for recovery of endowed property against one who claimed to be the ahence of their property and against three of his co-chebaits who purported to have alternated it and the planning did not either in his personal capacity or in the capacity of a shebait possess sufficient means to pay the Cours-fee it was held that the mere fact that the shebait-defendants possessed sufficient proper its belonging to the idol, did not discintile him from suing as a pauper?

14 Married woman

The fact that the applicant's husband has got sufficient property to pay the Court-fees due on her glaint is not a ground for refusing the application of a pauper married woman for permission to sue as a pauper i

15 Leave to sue in forma pauperis for removal of trustees

S 402 of the old Code imposed certain restrictions on the right to sue as a pauper. It was held under that section that it did not preclude a person, who had obtained leave to sue under S 18 of the Religious Endowments Act (XX of 1863) for the removal of the trustees of a temple, from being permitted to sue in Jorna pauperis: The said section has now been omitted in this Code.

16 Award of costs and order for security for costs against pauper

It has been held by the High Court of Bombry that the Court cannot pass an order for costs against the purper in interlocutory applications in the suit i The High Court of Rangoon has, on the other hand, held that the Court has power to pass an order for costs against the pauper in such cases 2

A woman who has been permitted to sue as a purper cannot be asked to furnish security for cos s under O 25, R 13 The reason is that it would render nugatory the order permitting her to sue as a pauper.

Application for leave to sue in forma pauperis should set forth with the utmost good faith a schedule of all the moveable and ammoveable property belonging to the applicant, with the estimated value thereof i Where the applicant fails to do so the application is not properly framed and is liable to be rejected under Cl (a) of R 5 unfra 2 It does not however follow that this rule is to be meticulously interpreted against the petitioner. The Code is not designed as a trap which a litigant must try to avoid by all means in his power's The object of the rule being to help the Government in ascertaining whether the applicant is in a position to pay the Court-fee payable on the plaint, the Court should not throw out the application unless the omission was an act of bad faith 4 Thus the application should not be rejected merely on the ground that an item of property has been omitted to be given in the schedules or that the schedule has not been signed and verified by the applicant or that the applicant was unable to name all the persons in

1 Presentation to Court

The insistence in the Rule is on the words 'in person and not on the words to the Court as meaning to the judge lumself 1 Therefore where the application is presented to the Sheristadar of the Court or to an officer of the Court who places it before the judge and the petitioner appears before the judge, the presentation will be valid 3

2 Presentation by applicant in person

This Rule as mandatory as regards the requirement as to the presentation in person, and a Court is bound to reject under R 5 an application for leave to sue as a pauper, if it is not presented by the applicant in person, except in cases where he is exempted from appearing in Court 1 Where one only out of several applicants presents the application in person, the Court should reject the application as against those persons who have not joined in presenting it in person 2 Where, however the law by reason of the fact that personal appearance in Courts is impossible either by reason of the party being a company or an infant, or a lunatic allows an appearance by somebody else, an appearance by such person would be sufficient compliance with the law a

The provisions of this Rule as regards presentation in person do not apply to a case where a plaint, returned by one Court is presented to another Court or where a plantiff is allowed to continue his suit as a pauper 5 or where the application for leave to sue as a puper is returned for amendment and the amended application is presented by the applicant's pleader 6

A woman who is exempted under S 132 from personal appearance in Court e e a Purdanashin lady is entitled to present an application for leave to sue as a pruper through an authorised agent 1

4 Authorised agent

The term authorised agent does not mean the same thing as the expression recognised agent in O 3 R 2 aute 1 A pleader may be a duly authorised agent within the meaning of this Rule 2 But he must be snecially authorised to present an application under this Order and must fulfil the other conditions detailed in this Rule 3

Scope of the Rule

Note No. 1 Right to cross examine applicant

1 Scope of the Rule

This Rule empowers the Court to examine the applicant when the application is duly presented no only with reference to the question of his patherism, but ilso with reference to the meetis of the claim in order to ascertian whether the allegations in the petition do or do not show a cause of action. An enquiry inder this Rule should be made by the judge himself.

As to whether persons other than the applicant can be examined on the merits see Notes to Rr 5 and 7 infra

2 Right to cross examine applicant

Where the applicant who seeks permission to sue as a pupper is examined under this Rule, the opposite pirty has a right to cross examine him on the merits of the claim in order to test the statements he makes in his application.

1 Legislative changes

The clause when his illegitions do not show a cause of action' has been substituted for the clause 'that his allegations do not show a right to see in such Court which occurred in the old section

2 Applicability of the Rule

The Rule provides that an application for permission to sue as a pauper shall be rejected in the events enumerated in the Rule 1 It is restrictive of the right which every languant has to seek the aid of a Court of Justice. and should therefore be interpreted strictly 2

As in the case of an order rejecting a plaint under O 7, R 11, an order of rejection of an application under this Rule must be made on prelimipary grounds, before notice is issued, and before an enquiry is held into the applicant's pauperism 3

3 Clause (a) See Note 1 to R 2 and Note 2 to R 3, supra

Where the application for leave to sue in forma pauperis is framed in the manner prescribed by Rule 2, but is defective in some particulars with regard to the substance of the plaint, it is not obligatory on the Court to reject the application 1 In proper cases the Court has power to allow an application to be amended so as to make it conform to the law 2

4 Clause (b)

The question of the applicant's pauperism has to be decided with reference to the definition given in R 1 The Court in this respect is bound to proceed on the valuation given in the plaint and cannot go into an investigation of the question whether the suit has been overvalued. Nor can it so into the merits of the case when dealing with the question of properism of the applicant a

Where the applicant is found to be a pauper it is not necessary for the Court to Live a funding on the other matters enumerated in the Rule unless it finds that the amplication has to be rejected for any of the other reasons mentioned therein 3

5 Clause (d)

The words used in clause (c) of S 407 of the old Code were right The expression was however held not to be limited to questions of jury diction alone but to include a good and subsisting cause of action capable of enforcement in Court, and calling for an answer, and not barred by the law of Limitation or any other law 1 The present clause (d) gives effect to this view by substituting the words cause of action for the words right to sue so that the Court has got the power to reject an application for permission to sue in forma pauperis where the claim is prima facio barred by limitation 2 or is unlawful 3 or is immoral or opposed to public policy 4 But in considering the question whether the applicant has a cause of action or not the Court has to look only into the allegations made by the applicant. This does not mean that the Court should confine itself to the allegations in the petition It is open to the Court to consider not only the allegations contained in the plaint but also the facts appearing in the examina non of the applicant 5 Beyond this, however, the Court cannot go 6 In fact, even in an inquiry under R 7 the Court can confine itself to the evidence of the plaintiff and refuse to go 10to other evidence 7 Consequently, complicated questions of limitation,8 or of res judicala,9 or of local jurisdiction94 cannot be gone into for deciding the application. Nor can the Court refuse the application on the ground that, on the merits, the laugation is very likely to end in failure to The Court should exercise great caution in considering the question of cause of action masmuch as the applicant is often without the advantage of the aid of Counsel ii Further the opposite party will have the opportunity of uiging these very objections under R 712

6 Clause (e)

The object of the provisions of this Order is to help bona fide litigants Where, therefore, a litigation is not bona fide, and the plaintiff has been set up by another for the purpose of evading the Court-fee, the Court will not allow him to sue as a pauper i

The Clause will apply only if the agreement has reference to the subjectmatter of the suit and is of a champertous character.2 Further, the agreement

Thus, where a company has gone into liquidation and the liquidator sues in forma pauperis to recover a debt due to the company, the fact that the liquidator is paid a percentage of the collections will not bring the application under this clause 3 The agreement contemplated by this Clause is one which is subsisting and effective of the time of the application.34

It is however not necessary that the "interest should be a vested and completed interest. Thus, an agreement with pleader appearing in the pauper suit, that he is to recover his fee out of the fruits of the decree that may be obtained in that soil by the plaintiff is within the prohibition of the Clause 4 But a mere agreement to pay the fees when the decree is obtained without any condition by which the pleader could recover the fees from the decrital amount, will not full under the Clause 5

1 Scope of the inquiry under this Rule

- Two kinds of examinations are contemplated by this Order --
  - (1) An examination of the applicant under R 4, ante, and
  - (2) An examination under this Rule 1

It is important to remember the following distinction between the two kinds of examinations -

- (1) An examination under R 4 takes place before issuing notice to the Government pleader and to the opposite party, while the examination under this Rule takes place after such notice. There is thus no cross-examination of the applicant under the former
- (2) The examination under R 4 is only of the applicant and none else, while the examination under this Rule may be not only of the applicant but also of his witnesses
- (3) The examination under R 4 may be in respect of the applicant's nauncrism as well as the merits of the case, while the examination under this Rule is confined to the question of the applicant's pauperism 2 It has accordingly been held that a Court has no power to allow the examination of witnesses on questions other than the pauperism of the applicant such as questions as to the existence of a cause of action3 or as to the title of the applicant to institute the suit4 or as to limitation5 or as to res judicadas and decide the application on such evidence it is however, not clear as to whether when the applicant is examined under this Rule as to his pauperism he can be cross examined as to matters relating to the cause of action or limitation as

It is only the examination of witnesses on questions other than the pauperism of the applicant that a produbted by this Rule The Court is not precluded from hearing arguments on the question whether the applicant is or is not subject to any of the produbtions specified in R 5 & But even arguments are confined to the matters specified in R 5 and the Court has no jurisdiction to reject the applicant on other grounds than those specified? Thus the Court canno reject the application on the ground that other co heirs who are not paupers are seeking to es abilish their rights through the applicant who is admittedly a pauper 8 Nor can it reject the application on the construction of documents filed by parties 9 or on any complicated questions of law such as limitation respirated etc 10

Even if the other party does not ofter any arguments as provided under Sub Rule (2) the Court is not precluded from considering suo motu if the application is subject to the prohibitions under R 5 u This Rule in so far is it relutes to the manner of taking evidence does not apply to proceedings under the N W F P Regulation (VII of 1901 S 46 Cl 2) and the Ondh Courts Act (IV of 1925) (S 16 Cl 2)

No appeal lies from an order rejecting an application to sue in formal pauperis whether under R 5 or under R 7 but in proper cases it may be open to revision by the High Court 8 to cases where the application is granted see also the undermentioned cases 2 (See Note 26 to S 115) The final order on such an application of a Judge sitting on the Original Side of the High Court is however, a judgment under Cl 15 of the Letters Patent and is therefore appealable as such 3

In an appeal from the decree it is not open to the appellate Court to entertain the plea that the planniff should not have been allowed to sue as a pauper as the matter is one affecting the institution of the suit, and not one affecting the decision:

1 Scope of the Rule

The application to sue as a pauper cannot be deemed to be a plaint till leave to sue is granted and therefore, the Court his no jurisdiction to order the return of the plaint under the provisions of 0 7 R 10, for presentation to the proper Court <sup>1</sup> See also Note 8 to 0 7 R 10 Until the leave is granted there is no suit in evisience and therefore the Court cannot direct an attachment of properties before judgment <sup>3</sup> See also Note 5 to 0 38 R 5

Where a plaint is filed with insufficient Court-fee and the plaintiff tening unable to pay the additional Court fee applies to continue the suit in forma pauperis it has been held that the Court his to ascertain if the plaint discloses a cause of action and then to direct an inquiry into the pauperism of the applicant. If he is found to be a pauper he should be allowed to continue the suit as a pauper as the procedure under Rr. 2 and 8 is impossible under such circumstances.

Where an application for leave to sue as a pauper is granted and thereby becomes converted into a suit the valualist given by the applicant becomes a valualist for the purpose of the suit unless it is distinctly confined to the pauper application alone 5

This rule and the next are intended to secure to the Government its rights to Court-fees, the payment of which is temporarily suspended when the plaintiff is permitted to sue in forma pauperis 1 This rule deals with the case of a pauper plaintiff who succeeds in the suit and R 11 deals with the case of a pauper plaintiff who fails in the suit. No provision has been made in the Code for the case of a plaintiff succeeding in part and failing in part. In the absence of any such provision, presumably the Court is intended to deal with the case by combining the provisions of the two rules and by appropriating the Court-fees payable between the plaintiff and the defendant in proportion to the extent of success of each party la The High Courts of Allahabad 2 Madras3 and Patna4 have held that it as not open to the Court to direct the defendant to pay Court-fees exceeding the amount which would be payable on that portion of the plantiff's claim on which the plantiff succeeds. The High Court of Calcuttas has on the other hand held that this rule leaves the discretion entirely with the Court to direct which of the parties should pay the Court fees due to the Government and that the Court should not be fettered by any hard and fast rule but must only be guided by the equities of the case

As has been seen already this rule is applicable only where the plaintiff succeeds in the suit Where, in a pauper suit, the amount decreed to the plaintiff fell short of the amount payable by him as costs to the defendant he was held not to have succeeded within the meaning of this rule because so far as the plaintiff was concerned the decree was in the result not a success in view of O 21 R 19 of the Code 6

This rule is applicable also to Chaitered High Courts in the exercise of their Original Civil Jurisdiction?

Without the forbearance of the Government to insist on its ordinary rule the suit in such a case, could not have been brought or the money realised. It is therefore, reasonable that the Crown, in consideration of its giving up its right to those fees, should have for their defrayal, the first claim on the proceeds of the pauper suit' 2

The rule creates two distinct and separate rights exercisable at the option of the Crown, 192 -

- (1) A right in rem against the property recovered in the suit, and
- A right in personam against the party ordered by the decree to pay the Court-fee

In the event of the Crown not succeeding in realising the amount by pursuing the personal remedy it has a right to recover the same from the subject-matter of the suit 3 The charge is enforceable in execution by attachment and sale of the properties covered by the charge and not by a separate suit 4 See R 13, infra

The Court fee payable to the Government is to be calculated as on the date of the presentation of the application for leave to sue in forma pauperis Where the Court-Fees Act was amended after the institution of the suit and before the decree, the calculation of Court-fees has to be made in accordance with the law at the time of the institution 5

3 Effect of the first charge

The effect of the first charge is that a sale in execution of the same prevails as against a subsequent sale. Thus where a property was sold in 1896 for the Court-fees due to the Government under a decree of 1893 and it was again sold in 1899 in ovecumen of a money decree obtained by a third person in 1894 on a debt anterior to 1893 the former purchase was held to prevail over the latter 1 Similarly the claim of the Government against any amounts due to the plaintiff under the decree will prevail against any cross-claim or claims under cross-decrees against the plaintiff in favour of the defendant, provided the defendant has not taken out execution for the balance under O 21. Rr 18 or 19 In the case cited below A sued B in forma pauperis 10 recover a property of the value of Rs 60,000 and obtained a decree for a sum of Rs 1,500 He was ordered to ray a sum of Rs 1,200 to the Government as Court-fees. In an application by the Government to recover the amount of the Court-fees from the decree amount of Rs 1,500 due from B to A B contended that a sum of Rs 1,000 was due to him from A as costs of the suit and that a sum of Rs 800 was also due from him under another cross-decree against him making a total sum of Rs 1,800 and B claimed to be entitled to set-off against this total sum the above amount of Rs 1,500 due to A It was held that under the circumstances the Government was entitled to recover the amount of Court-fee from the decretal amount of

4 Crown entitled to precedence in respect of Court fees

It is a principle recognised by the laws of all countries that claims of the State are entitled to precedence over other claims. The amount of Countries due to the Crown is therefore entitled to precedence over the claims of other creditors of a pauper decree-holder. This rule is only an enabling one inducating the manner in which the Crown may realise the debt it does not preclude the Crown or its representatives from urging its pierogative rights of precedence in any other manner. So when a successful pauper plaintiff attached and sold for costs due to her certain property other than the property in suit belonging to the judgment debtor and the sale proceeds were paid into Court and both the plaintiff and the Government solicitor applied for payment out of the said sum it was held that the Government solicitor was entitled to be paid out in preference to the plaintiff and that it was not obligatory on the Government to altach the fund in Court before getting navment?

But though in respect of the Court fees the Government is entitled to precedence among ordinary creditors it cannot claim precedence over lieu holders. It is only when claims of the Crown and claims of common persons come into competition that the Crown is preferred. It is a matter of common justice and common honesty that the Crown has no more right than a common person to serve A's property, and apply it in or towards the discharge of a debt due from B. Accordingly, it was held that the Government could not attach and sell a defendant sproperty, for Court fees so as to destroy the rights of a previous mortgagee of the defendant.

5 Recovery of Court fees by Government from party ordered to pay the same

The party ordered by the Court under this rule to pay the amount of Court fee due to the Government is the person who is liable to pay the same to the Government. The Government can proceed against that person personally or against his properties as the case may be. 1

6 Mode of realisation of Court fees

An order under this rule for the recovery of the Court-fees due to the Government is equivalent to a decree in its favour and may be executed by the Government at its option, either by enforcing the charge on the subject-matter of the suit, or by proceeding in execution against the person or

4 Crown entitled to precedence in respect of Court fees

It is a principle recognised by the laws of all countries that claims of the State are entitled to precedence, over other claims. The amount of Courfees due to the Crown is therefore entitled to precedence over the claims of other creditors of a pruper decree-holder. This rule is only an enabling one indicating the manner in which the Crown may realise the debt it does not preclude the Crown or its representatives from urging its prerogative rights of precedence in any other manner. So when a successful pauper plaintificational attached and sold for costs due to her, certain property other than the property in suit, belonging to the judgment-debtor and the sale proceeds were paid into Court and both the plaintiff and the Government solicitor applied for payment out of the said sum it was held that the Government solicitor was entitled to be paid out in preference to the plaintiff, and that it was not obligatory on the Government to attach the fund in Court before getting nament.

5 Costs of successful defendant

This rule makes a provision for the payment of Court fees due to the Covernment and does not deal with the power of the Court to order costs of a defendant who has succeeded in a suit in forma pauperis. But it does not follow that in the case of a pauper suit the Court cannot order the plaintiff to lay the costs of the successful defendant. Orders as to costs as between the i irties to the suit are governed by S 35 as much in suits by paupers as in other suits 1

2 Bar to subsequent application

The rule specifically provides that an order "re/nsing" the pauper application will operate as a bit to a subsequent application of the like nature in respect of the same right to sue R 7, anie, empowers the Court under the circumstances mentioned therein, either to allow or refuse to allow an application to sue as a pauper. There is a conflict of opinion as to whether an order of rejection of an application under R 5 of this Order is an order of refusal, within the meaning of this rule. In Alul Chandra Sen v. Pearly Mohun, 1 at was observed by the High Court of Calcutta that there is no distinction between an order of rejection under R 5 and an order of refusal under R 7 and both kinds of orders alike bar a subsequent application under this rule.

The order in that case was however, one passed alter evidence and, therefore presumably one passed under R 7° The High Courts of Allahabad Bombay Lahore Madras and Rangoon and the Chief Court of Oudh's have on the other hand, held that the bar under this rule does not extend to an order of rejection passed under R 5. It is submitted that the latter view is correct. The Colcutt High Court has, however, in a recent case bus dissented from the decision in Alul Chandra Sen v Peary Mohum mentioned above and has followed the view of the other High Courts.

An order returning the application for presentation to the proper Court does not amount to an order of refusal within the meaning of this rule 8

The bar under this rule being one which affects the jurisdiction of the Court to enterrain a fresh application, the Court is bound to take notice of it although it is raised at a late stage in subsequent proceedings 9

3 Dismissal of an application for default

According to the decision in the undermentioned casel of the High Court of Calcutta a dismissal of an application for default of appearance operates as a bar to the entertainment of a fresh application under this rule, But according to the other High Courts' such a dismissal does not amount to an order of refusal within the meaning of this rule and a second application is not barred. The High Court of Calcutta also, has, in a recent cases' followed the view of these High Courts dissenting from the earlier decision of its own Court.

In Ranchod Marar v Bezanµ3 at was held by the H gh Court of Bombay that an order rejecting the application as the applicant did not vish to proceed with the same amounted to an order of refusal within the meaning of the corres-

1 Suits relating to mortgages

This order is new It incorporates with certain alterations So 85 90 92 94, 96, 97 and 99 of the Transfer of Property Act of 1882 which dealt with the procedure governing suits relating to mortgages. The chief objects with which this Order was exacted were—

- (1) To set at rest the conflict of decisions under the Transfer of Property Act 1882 as to whether an application for an order absolute after a prehiminary decree for sile was an application in execution or was one in the suit itself for a further decree (It is now made clear that the application is for a further decree)
- (2) To put an end to the conflict of decisions is to the applicability of Art 178 (now Art 181) of the limition of the applications for orders absolute in mortgage suits. (It is now established that Art 181 applies to an application for a final decree)

S Persons having an interest either in the mortgage security or in the right of redemption

Under S 85 of the Transfer of Property Act the plaintiff in a suit relating to a mortgage was bound to implead all persons having an interest in the "Property comprised in the mortgage This gave rise to a conflict of decisions According to one view the words Property comprised in the mortgage referred to the interest, as distinguished from the physical property which the mortgagor was competent to transfer by way of mortgage at the date of the transaction 1 In other words, no person according to this view, who had no interest either in the mortgage security or in the right of redemption could be made a party. The High Court of Allahabad on the other hand, held that the word property meant the physical property mortgaged and that it was therefore necessary to implead all persons claiming interest in the property though they had no interest in the mortgage security or in the right of redemption 2 The present rule has adopted the former view and the Allahabad view is now no longer law

All the High Courts were however agreed, even in cases coming under S 85 of the Transfer of Property Act that a person claiming adversely to the mortgagor and the mortgagee t e a person claiming a paramount title was not a necessary or a proper party to a suit relating to a mortgage 3 The same principle has been held to apply under the present rule also 4 Thus a person impleaded as the legal representative of a deceased mortgagor cannot have a paramount title to the property which he sets up adversely to the mortgagor determined in the suit 5 A person who in a redemption suit claims the right of redemption in opposition to the plain'aff cannot be said to be claiming a title paramount to that of the mortgager and the mortgager and may be a proper party to the suit 6 The High Court of Madras seems to draw a distinction between a stat for redemption and a suit for the enforcement of a mortgage and is inclined to hold that persons claiming the property adversely to the mortgagor and mortgagee can be joined as parties to a suit for redemp But the judgments in these cases do not show why the general rule as to the exclusion of questions relating to paramount or adverse title from morthage suits should not apply to suits for redemption. On the other hand, it has been held by the Patna High Courts that even in suits for redemption persons asserting a paramount title to the mortgaged property should not be joined as parties. Where a person asserting a paramount title to the property has been erroneously made a party to a suit relating to a mortgage he should be discharged from the sun 9 But an objection on the ground of the joinder of such a person is not one affecting jurisdiction but is only an irregularity in the matter of the 1 inder of parties and can be cured under S 99 of the Code 10 Where therefore a party allows the suit to go on and the Court adjudicates on his claim to paramount title he will be bound by the decision and cannot subsequends contend that the question was not within the purview of the sun ii Mercover the rule as to the exclusion of paramount title is not an inflexible one and in proper cases persons asserting a paramount title to the property ca be conveniently made parties to a mortgage suit and their claims can be idjudicated upon in such suit 1 Thus, where the person claiming paramount or adverse title is in possession of the mortgaged property and is likely to resist the claim of the plaintiff if the latter succeeds in the suit, it may be convenient to ten him as a party so as to avoid a multiplicity of suits 13 Similarly where

Where a person is desmassed from a suit on a mortgage on the ground of his claiming a paramount file to the property, he cannot subsequently sue for redemption 16

The question whether a person other than one classing a paramount title, may be made a party to a suit relating to a mortgage and whether the questions raised by him can be gone into in such suit will depend upon the applicability of the provisions of Orders 1 and 2 thereto. As has been seen in Note 30 to O 1, R 10 ante, questions raised purely as between the plaintiffs or between the defendants uter se and in which the opposite side is not concerned, are not questions involved in the suit and need not be gone into in the suit. Thus in a suit on a mortgage in favour of a deceased person a person claiming the estate of the deceased mortgagee in opposition to the plaintiff is not a necessary party to the suit 17 Similarly where the plaintiff mortgagee dies and some of his legal representatives are brought on the record, a person who claums also to be another legal representative cannot be added as parts on that ground only and allowed to raise questions purely between lumself and the mal claimants wifer se 18 It has also been held similarly that question of the relative hability of each of several co-mortgagors cannot be gone into in a mortgage suit 19

Where a person is dismissed from a suit on a mortgage on the ground of his claiming a paramount title to the property he cannot subsequently suc for redemption 18

The question whether a person other than one claiming a paramount title may be made a party to a sust relating to a mortgage and whether the questions rused by him can be gone into in such suit will depend upon the applicability of the provisions of Orders 1 and 2 thereto. As has been seen in Note 30 to O 1. R 10 ante, questions rused purely as between the plaintiffs or between the defendants unter se and in which the opposite side is not concerned are not questions involved in the sint and need not be gone into n the suit. Thus in a suit on a mortgage in favour of a deceased person a person cluming the estate of the deceased mortgagee in opposition to the plaintiff is not a necessary party to the suit 17 Similarly where the plaintiff mortgagee dies and some of his legal representatives are brought on the record a person who claims also to be another legal representative cannot be added as party on that ground only and allowed to ruse questions purely between hunself and the rival claimants inter se 18 It has also been held similarly that e question of the relative liability of each of several co-mortgagors cannot be gone into in a mortgage suit 19

6 Parties to a suit for foreclosure, sale or redemption

As has been seen in Note 5 ante all persons having an interest in the mortgage security or in the right of redemption should be made parties to any suit relating to the mortgage. The interest should be one subsisting at the time of the suit 1 Thus the owner of a contingent interest like that of a Hindu

(2) Prior to the amendment of the Transfer of Property Act by Act XX of 1929, there was a conflict of decisions as to whether an attaching creditor (who was one of the persons mentioned in S 91 of that Act) was a necessary party to the mortgage suit in The amended S 91 does not inention an attaching creditor as one of the persons entitled to redeem a mortgage and he is therefore no longer a necessary party to a mortgage suit

The following are not necessary parties to a suit relating to a mortgage ---

- (a) A prior mortgagee See the explanation
- (b) A person merely in possession of the mortgaged property 12
- (c) A person whose name is merely entered in the village papers as having some title to the plots in question, but who is in no way connected with the mortgage <sup>13</sup>
- (d) A person who has a right to be maintained out of the income of the mortgaged property when such right is not made a charge on the property <sup>14</sup>
- (e) A person having merely an incheate title to the property 15
- (f) A receiver appointed in a partition suit previous to the mortgage suit <sup>16</sup>

7 Trustees executors or administrators

The rule is made "subject to the other provisions of the Code." This would include O 31, R 1 under which the trustee, executor or administrator in whom the property is vested can effectively represent the persons beneficially interested. The latter need not therefore be joined as parties to a suit relating to the mortgage. But the Court has a discretion to join the beneficiaries in a proper case, as for example when, in the case of an executor, the state has been fully administered, or in the case of a trustee or an executor, his interest is adverse to that of the beneficiaries in the case of joint-trustees however all of them should be impleaded in any suit relating to the mortgage.

8 Benamidar

It is now well settled that a benamidar can sue or be sued in his own name and that the rule applies to mortgage suits also! The real owner is not a necessary party to such a suit. The contrary view, held in the undermentioned cases, is not good law. There is, however, no impropriety in adding the real owner as a party in proper cases, and the real owner as a party in proper cases.

9 Sub mortgagee

Ι

Where a mortgagee creates a mortgage of his rights in favour of another he is said to create a sub-mortgage. The sub-mortgagee is entitled to bring to sale the interest of the sub mortgagor in the mortgage 1 and the original mortgagor is not a necessary party to such a suit 2. Where the morigagor is also made a party to the suil, the sub mortgagee may sue for sale or foreclosure of the mortgaged property itself in cases and in the circumstances which would have entitled the sub mortgagor on the date of the sub-mortgage to clum that rehef, for the purpose of working out his rights against the suli-mortgagor3 The mortgagor is not a necessary party to a suit for redemption by the sub-mortgagor against his sub-mortgagee,4 though there is no impropriety in making him a party thereto 5. In a suit for redemption by the mortgagor against his mortgagee, the sub mortgaged as being interested in the mortgage security (is a necessary party) 6 But where the mortgagor, not having notice of the sub-mortgage, fails to implead him in such suit and pays off the mortgage amount to the mortgagee, the sub-mortgagee cannot, after that redemption, bring the right mortgaged to him to sale 7 The reason is that he has only a terminable microst in the mortgago-right of ms sub mortgagor and when that right has been legally terminated his security so far is gone

10 Prior mortgagees-Explanation

Under S 85 of the Transfer of Property Act it was held in some cases that a prior mortgages was a necessary party to a suit to enforce or redeen a puisne mortgage. These cases have been superseded by the ovplanation

It was held by the High Court of Patna in the underment oned caseis that a mortgagee can bring the properly to sale subject to a prior mortgage in his own favour, at any rate, when he was not able to sue on the first mortgage But the consensus of opinion seems to be that though the mortgagee may be allowed to sue separately on the mortgages and obtain decrees, he cannot be allowed to bring the property to sale twice or under one of his mortgages subiect to the other,15 the reason heing that it would not be equitable to the mort-

gagor to allow the mortgagee to do so, as a fair price cannot be obtained for the property at such a sale. The conflict has now practically been set at rest, in cases of mortgages coming into existence after the 1st April 1930, by the enactment of the new S 67-A of the Transfer of Property Act by which a mortgagee holding two or more mortgages shall, in the absence of a contract to the contrary be bound to sue on all the mortgages. #### 11 Mahomedan co heirs

Where a Mahomedan mortgagor or mortgagee dies leaving a number of heirs the ordinary rule is that all the heirs should be made parties to a suit relating to the mortgage 1 But the failure to join some of the heirs is not fatal to the sust and the decree passed will bind all the heirs 2 It was so held by their Lordships of the Privy Council in Khairaimal v. Daim 3 The reason is, is has been already seen in Note 63-B to S 11 and Note 5 to S 52. aute, that the representatives actually brought on the record must, in the absence of fraud or collusion be deemed to be litigating in the common interest of themselves and of all the other heirs within the meaning of Expl VI of S 11 of the Code Where however pending the suit objection is raised as to the non joinder of some of the heirs but the plaintiff refuses to make them parties the decree can bind only the right title and interest of the persons actually on the record 4 In view of the Privy Council decision referred to above the views expressed in the undermentioned cases 5 that a decree against only some of the legal representances of a deceased Mahomedan mortgagor is not banding on the other representatives or that there is some difference in principle between Mahomedan co-heirs and the members of a joint Hindu family in this respect cannot be accepted as correct especially as those cases do not advert to the Privy Council decision

There is a conflict of decisions as to whether, in a suit by or against the manager of a joint H-ndu family to enforce or redeem a mortgage, the other members of the family are necessary parties in the sense that their interests will not be bound if they are not individually joined as parties On the one hand, it has been held by the High Courts of Madras and Patina and in several cases of the other High Courts that in such a case the manager effectively represents the other members of the family and that the latter cannot impugn the proceedings as not binding on them merely on the ground of their not having been individually made parties to the suit. But in many other decisions, it has been held that the other co-parceners are necessary parties to the suit and that their interests cannot in any way be affected by the result of the suit. In this connection, the following decisions of the Privi Council should be referred to 5 In Arshan Prasad v Har Narain 6 it was held that the manager of a joint Hindu family business effectively represents the family in all littlation by or against the family in connection with the joint family hasiness In Sheo Shankar v Juddoo Lunnar" the Privy Council observed as follows ---

There s cans to be no doubt upon the Indian decisions (from which their Tordships te no reason t 1, nt; that there are not asion, including foreclosure suits when the managers of joint lim lu finishes so effectively represent all other members of the family that the family as a whol I bound

In Ganpat Lat v Bindleasin Prasad a minor co-parecuer sued for a declaration that his right to redeem a mortgage was unaffected by a sale under a decree passed against the manager without impleading him (the minor) as a party. Their Lerdships rejected that claim holding that, after the purchase under his decree the mortgagee was in the position of a purchaser and that unless the sale and the decree were nttacked in a properly constituted suit his possession could not be disturbed. In Lingan Gonda v. Basan Ganda 9 the Privy Council held that S 11 Expl VI was applicable to a joint Hindu family. In view of the foregoing decisions of the Prny Council the Madras and Patna view must be accepted as correct See also Note 61 to S 11 ante Even granting that the son is a necessary party to a suit against the father, where he is impleaded as a legal representative of his father he cannot object to the decree in the executing Court on the ground of the plaintift's failure to implead him 92 Nor does the plantiff mortgagee lose his right to sue the son separately by his failure to join him in the suit against the father 96

or as being sued in his representative capacity as manager, there is a conflict of decisions some cases holding that such express mention is not necessary, 10 and others holding that it is 11 The better view, it is submitted, is that the question whether a manager suce er is sued in a representative character is a question of fact in each case and his specific description as manager is not essential

Although it may not be legally necessary to implead the other coparceners in a suit by or against a manager, yet, they would be proper parties to such a suit 12 Further the right of the other co parceners to object, not on the ground of their non-joinder but on the ground of the debt being not binding on them, or as heing tainted with illegality or immorality, is not affected by proceedings to which they have not been parties 13 But in a suit on a mortgage of joint family property where the manager is not made a party all the others are necessary parties 14 Similarly, where the father is impleaded but he does not, or cannot, act in a representative character, the other members should be joined if their interests are sought to be affected 15

To a suit to enforce the mortgage of the share of one co parcener alone, the other co parceners are not necessary parties.18 Similarly, where the mortgage is not a joint family transaction but one entered into by a member of the family in his individual capacity, the others are not necessary parties 17

Where the parties are not governed by Hindu Law, and the son, under the Customary Law is entitled only to a reversionary interest for the protec tion of which he has the right to interfere to prevent unnecessary alienations of the property the son s interest is not sufficient to entitle him to be made a party to a suit on the most rage 18

13 Assignee of mortgage

In a suit for redemption of a mortgage against the assignce thereof, the original mortgagee is not a necessary party! But in a suit to enforce the mortgage brought by the assignce of the merigage, the original mortgages is a necessary party where the mortgagor denies receipt of consideration2

A lessee who has been inducted on tho land by the mortgager or by the mortgage and whose interest will be affected by the result of the suit is a recessary party to a suit relating to the mortgage. But a person having merely a raised interest in the land is not entitled to redeem a mortgage or to be joined as a party to a suit on the mortgage.

16 Landlord.

Although the general rule is that a person cluming a paramount title is not a necessary party to a suit on the mortgage, yet, in some cases, it may be convenient to join the landlord of the mortgager as a party thereto. (See Noto 5, supra) Where the landlord is in possession of the mortgaged property not by virtue of a supreme title but by virtue of a title improperly and collusively obtained from the tenant under a decree for ejectment, ho is a necessary party to the suit on the mortgage.

17 Kanomdar.

In an appeal by sub tenants against a decree for redemption of a Kanom, obtained by a jenmi, the Kanomdar is a necessary party 1 Whore a melcharathdar along with the jenmi obtains a decree for the redemption of a Kanom, and the Kanomdar appeals against the decree, claiming compensation for improvements, the jenmi is a necessary party to the appeal 2

18 Parties to appeal -The provisions of this Rule apply also to appeals 1

Under S 85 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, it was held that the word "must' in that Section was importance in character, and that, consequently the future to join a person indicasted in the most gued property as a party to the suit was a defect fatal to the suit. But the Court was, however, held to have power under S 32 of the old Code (now O 1, R 10) to add the necessary parties. As his been seen in Note 4, ande, O 34, R 1 makes it now clear that its provisionace "subject to the other provisions of the Code including O 1, R 9, and hence, the non-joinder of my person as a party to the suit is not a fat il defect, a decree can be passed so far as regards the puties actually on the sense that, in his absence, unless the person countred is a necessary party in the sense that, in his absence.

no rehef could be given at all even is regards the parties actually on the record. If the party on the record effectually represents others not joined the decree will bind the interests of the latter also. The Court has also ample powers under O 1, R 10 to idd, in proper cases, my parties it considers necessary for the disposal of the suit. In this connection reference may also be made to S 99 of the Code which has also down that a uniquender (which includes non joinder) is not, in itself, a ground for reversing or viving a decree?

But, although, the non-joinder of persons who ought to have been joined as parties under this Rulo is not fatal to the suit, the result of this eninct, in any usy, affect the rights of such persons. Simple, is this proposition is its application to the complicated facts arising in mortgage suits has been the subject of a great diversity of judicial opinion. In order to appreciate the various views properly, it is necessary to remember the following important principles—

(1) Where an owner C mortgages his property to 4 by way of a simple mortgage, the mortgages gets nothing more than a right to obtain from the Court an order that the property be sold for the recovery of the debt The mortgager rotains, in himself, (a) a right to redeem the mortgage, and

- (b) a right to the physical possession and enjoyment of the mort-aged property<sup>9</sup>
- (2) Where the mortage is a usafluctury one 4 will get a light to be in possession of the property until his debt is discharged, und C will retain only the right to redeem
- (3) Where C the mortgagor, sells has interest in the property to D, then, if the mortgago is a simple one D gets Cs rights, viz, the right to redeem and the night to possession of the mortgaged property, if the mortgage is a usufructurry one he will get only the right to redeem the mortgage.
- (4) Where C after creating a meetgage in favour of A, creates a further mortgage in favour of B then, if the mortgage is a simple one, B will get

(a) a right to redeem the prior mortgage and

- (h) a right to obtain from the Court an order that the property be sold subject to the prior mortgage, for the recovery of his debt
- O will retain the right to redeem both the mortgages plus the right to possession
- If Bs mortgage is a usufructuary one, he will be entitled to a right to redeem the prior mortgage and a right to the possession of the property and C will be entitled only to a right to redeem both the mortgages
- (5) Where C makes several mortgages successively in favour of different persons the later mortgagee is entitled to redeem the earlier ones cannot redeem the later onos, according to the maxim. Redeem up and foreclose down. 11

We now proceed to consider the various classes of cases illustrating the application of the above principles —

(i) C executes a simple mortgage in favour of A and then sells his intorests in the mortgaged property to D A files a suit on his mortgage, grainst C without impleading D, and, in execution of the decree obtained therein, purchases the property himself. Being obstructed by D in the possession proceedings, A said D for possession if the suit maintainable? No 12 The reason is that D not having been made a party in A s suit on the mortgage, is not affected in any way by the decree and execution proceedings in such suit, and his right to possession cannot be disturbed. On the same principle, if D is dispossessed by A in execution, he cun, in a suit perty Act

There is no difference in principle in this respect even if D is a purchaser of Cs interest in execution of a money decree against him, instead of in a private trunsfer  $^{14}$ . The remedy of I in such cases would be to file a fiesh suit on his mortgage against D. He cannot, however, bring a fresh suit where his claim on the original mort,  $J_{\infty}$  is barred by limitation  $^{16}$ .

- It was, however, held in the undermentioned cises, that the result of not implicating D or other person entitled to be in possession would be to make the decree so obtained intefficial only against the right of redemption vested in such persons so that A would be entitled to possession against them subject to their right of redemption. It is submitted that this issue is not correct. D has not only not a right of redemption but a right to the possession of the property as well. A decree to which he was not a party cannot affect him over my respect of the latter right.
- (11) The principles above stated in Class (1) will equally apply to cases where D, instead of being a purchiser of C s interest, is a usufine tury mortgaged in possession.
- (iii) C executes simple mortgages first in two ur of 1 and then in favour of B B suce on his mortgage without impleading A and, in execution of the decree obtained therein, purchases the property in Court auction and enters into possession. Thereafter, A suce on his mortgage without impleading B and purchases the same property in execution of his decree. It will be seen that, at the time of the suit by 1 the right to redeem and the right to possession of tioned cases however, while holding that the doctrine of list pendens applies to such cases, have nevertheless come to the con clusion that A cao get a decree for possession subject to redemption by B 33 The High Court of Allahabad has in a recent Full Bench case 34 held that the doctrine of his pendens applies to such cases but has in a somewhat cootrary manner come to conclusions which can only follow on the hasis that the doctrino does not apply Thus it has formulated the following conclusions -

If A sues B as plaintiff for possession, then

(1) if he was the earlier purchaser (a e purchaser pending Bs suit) in point of time he can redcom B and recover possession even though his (As) mortgage is harred by time.

(2) if he is the later purchases (a c, if Bs purchase is pending As suit)

then his suit even for redemption cannot be decreed

If B suce A as plaintiff for possession then

(1) if B is the earlier purchaser in point of time he must redecin 1 and A cronot compel B to submit to redemption by him

(2) if B is the later purchaser in point of time he must first redeem A but A will have the right to redeem B next, and retain possession

The High Courts of Madras and Calcutta have held that the doctrine of his pendens does not apply to legal proceedings to coforce mort gages and that therefore a sale au pursuance of a mortgage decree the mortgage having been executed before the institution of the suit is not affected by the doctrino of his pendens. According to this view the first purchaser will be entitled to possession as against the later purchaser a result which is practically the same as that of the Full Beoch case of the Allahabad High Court re ferred to above

In the principles discussed in the several classes of cases discussed abovo. there is no distinction between the case of a mortgage purchaser and a stranger purchaser as can he seed from an examination of the cases above referred to 37 When the puisne mortgagee who has not been impleaded in a suit on the prior mortgage seeks to redeem a prior mortgago it was held before the Transfer of Property Act was passed that he should pay the amount due under the prior nortogge without any reference to the decree that was passed in the prior mort gage 38 But S 89 of the said Act provided that when once a final decree was passed on a mortgage the mortgage security and the right to redcem were both extinguished, with the result that thereafter the rights of the parties fell to be e decree 39 Eveo subsequent to the Transfer of Pro perty 1ct the earlier view is adopted in many cases 40 In O 34 R a which has taken the place of S 59 of that Act the words as to the mortgage security being extinguished have been omitted. The result now is the same as was held by the decisions prior to the Pransfer of Property Act namely that the puisne mort gagee seeking to redeem the prior mortgagee should pay the amount due under the prior mortgage and not merely the amount due under the decree thereon 41 He is not however bound to pay for any imp orements made by the purchaser 42 Where a puisne mortgagee is impleaded in a suit to enforce a prior mortgage and a decree for sale or foreclosure is passed on the mortgage the effect is to extin guish his security if he does not everer o his right of redemption or his security is not expressly saved 43 It was held in the undermentioned cases 44 that the puisne mortgagee is not entitled in such a case to insist that the mortgager should redeem his mortifule als his cause of action being altogether different from that of the prior mortgagee. Similarly it was held if the puisne mortgagee pays off the prior mortage he cannot and a for an order absolute for the amounts of both the mortgages 45 B t the said case re of doubtful authority now since express pro vision is made in Rr. 2 and 4 for the idudication of the rights of subsequent mort gagees who are joined a parties to vant on the paior moitgage. ## 22 Revision

It has been held by the High Court of Patna that S 115 does not apply to the case of a mere refusal to add a person as a plaintiff in a mortgage suit but that. if the result amounts to a denial of a fair trial, the High Court can interfere under S 107 of the Government of India Act 1 An order discharging necessary parties from the suit is open to revision 3

The Rule has been extensively amended by 'the fransfer of Property (Amendment) Act, (XXI of 1929) The old Rule ran as follows -

'2 In a sait for foreclosure, if the plaintiff succeeds, the Court shall pass a

(a) ordering that an account be taken of what will be due to the plaintiff for principal and interest on the mortgage and for the costs of the suit (if any)

awarded to him on the day next hereinafter referred to, or (b) declaring the amount so due at the date of such decree and directing-

(c) that if the defendant pays into Court the amount so due on a day within six months from the date of declaring in Court the amount so due to be fixed by the Court, the plaintiff shall deliver up to the defendant or to such person as he appoints, and shull, it so required it is trained that in the property and shull, it so required it is trained the property to the defendant free from the mortrage and from all incumbrances created by the plantifi or any person claiming under him, or, where the plantifi claims by derived title, by those under whom he claims, and shall also, if necessary, put the defendant in possession of the property, but

- (d) that if nuch runners is not made on or before the day to be fixed by the Lourt the defendant shall be debarred from all right to redeem the property.
- The following important changes may be noted
  (1) The pre-ent Rulo makes it clear that the decree under it is a preliminary
- le ree 1

  ( ) Under the off Rule it was not clear when accounts were dire tel to be taken
  - () Charf ile of Rule it was not clear when accounts were direct to be taken which for the water to be taken up to the date of declaring in Court the amount due or up to the date fixed for pasment. It is now provided that the accounts are to be taken up to the date in the preliminary decree.
    - (3) The provi ion as to other co to charges and expen es properly incurred by the
  - mort acce in respect of the merigage centrity is new

    (i) The 1 to Rulo mikes it clear as to when the period fixed for payment commences to run

  - (*) The plantation as to the Court spower to extend time which was contained in the plant a to Sub R (2) in the old R 3 his been enacted as Sub R (2) of the Purk.
  - (1) Sub R (3) makes express provious for the form of decree in cases where subsequent mortgages are made parties

2 Analogous law -T P Act S 86

I.

This Rule corresponds to S 86 of the Transfer of Property Act, with the following differences --

- (1) Under R 2 payment has to be made in all cases into the Court while under S 86 payment could be made to the plaintiff or into the Court
- (2) The words "if so required have been added to Sub R (1) (c) (t) as it was found that, in the modusil Courts it was not the practice for the mortgages to execute a re conveyance of the property to the mortgager.

3 Scope and object of the Rule. The scheme and object of this order is "that a general account should be taken once for all, and an aggregate amount be stated in the decise for principal interest and costs due on a fixed day and that after the expiration of that day, if the property be not redeemed, the matter shall pass from the domuin of contract to that of judgment and the rights of the mortgage should thenceforth depend not on the contents of the hond but on the directions in the decree 1.

a mortgagee by conditional sale,

(2) an English mortgago, and

(3) an equitable mortgage by deposit of title-deeds in Bombay 1

The newly amended S 67 now provides that no mortgagee "other than a mortgagee by conditional sale or a mortgagee under an anomalous mortgage by the terms of which he is entitled to foreclose, can institute a suit for foreclosure 2 It follows that neither a mortgageo under an English mortgage, nor an equitable mortgagee by deposit of title deeds in Bombay can sue for foreclosure. Then remedy is only to sue for sale. By S 15 of the Amending Act XXI of 1929, however the remedy of the equitable mortgagee in Bombay to proceed by way of foreclosure was kept open till 1st April 1932.

The characteristic of a foreclosure decree is that it completely extinguishes the mortgagor's right to redeem and thereafter makes the mortgages owner of the property A mortgagee who has obtained a preliminary decree for foreclosure is entitled to apply for setting aside an execution sale under O 21, R 90 on tho ground of material irregularity 3

5 Form of preliminary decree

See also appendix D, Forms 3, 3-4, 9 and 10

In a preliminary decree for forcelosure, the Court cannot, except with the consent of parties, direct payment of the mortgage money by instalments 1 But where a picliminary decree allowing payment by instalments is passed by consent of parties it does not necessarily fall outside the scope of R 2, the provisions of Rr 2 and 3 may still apply to such a decree 2 A proliminary decree for foreclosure which does not conform to the form prescribed by this Rule is irregular, but after it is made absolute, the defendant cannot object to delivery of possession under the decree to the decree bolder 3

6 'Ordering that an account be taken"

The amount (whether accounts are directed to be taken or not) is to be calculated up to the date of the preliminary decree The object of the Rule is that a general account should be taken of all amounts due between the parties ouce for all and that the aggregate amount should be declared as due to the plaintiff on payment of which the property is to be redeemed 1 The accounts have to be taken before the final decree, they cannot be directed to be taken in execution of the final decree 2 In the taking of such accounts, not only sums due by the mortgagor but also those due by the mortgagee should be taken into consideration 3 If the decree is silent as to the person selected to take the accounts, the

The caus of proving the imount due to him is initially on the mortgagee Hence if the mortgage deed is not properly stamped and the mortgages refuses to pay the stamp duty and penalty with the result that the mortgage deed is inadmis sible in evidence the mortgagee cannot recover anythin, beyond what the mort ga_or admits to be due 1

The statement in the mortgage deed is prima facie proof of the amount due. But the mortgagor can plend a total or partial discharge of the debt or that the recital is to consideration in the bond is wholly or partially untime? But in such a case the burden will be upon him to substantiate his allegations It is not for the mortagee to prove that the consideration stated in the bond was actually paid by him . But recalals in deeds are not evidence against thind parties 5

Where only part of the alleged consideration is pro ed to have been paid. the mortgage is valid to the extent of the part so pud 6 Similarly in the case of a mortgage of property belonging to a Hindu joint family, where it is proved that only a part of the consideration was supported by legal necessity, the mortgage is valid and binding to that extent?

8 Interest

By the Act XXI of 1929, a new Rule (Rule 11) has been enacted which deals specially with the power of the Court to order payment of interest in mortgage suits. See the note, under that Rulo for full information on the subject According to Section 58 (a) of the Transfer of Property Act mortgage money includes interest on the principal secured by the mortgage principle is recognised by the present Rulo which inter alia makes the payment of the interest, provided in the mortgige deed, a condition of redemption. Before the amendment of the Rule by Act XII of 1929 there was no provision either in R 2 or R 3 for the payment of interest subsequent to the date fixed for payment. Hence there was tack of unformity in the decisions on the question. Express provision has now been made for the inclusion in the preliminary decice for foreclosure of a direction for the payment of "subsequent interest up to the date of ictual payment. For fuller information on the subject see Notes under R 11 below.

11 Costs of the suit

The general rule in all sonts relating to mortgages is that the mortgages is entitled to his costs. But it is within the power of the Court, in view of the mortgages a conduct and the peculiar circumstances of any case, to refuse to award him any costs. Ordinarila costs awarded against a mortgage rare part of the mortgage money and are recoverable from out of the mortgaged property. But the Court can in the everses of its discretion under S 35, make such costs recoverable from the mortgager personally. Where a defendant in a mortgage suit claiming title paramount to that of the mortgager is struck off from the array of parties and is wirded costs the mortgager who is in no way responsible for it of the mortgaged property should not be made liable for such costs.

A pulsae mortgagee who is made a party to a suit on the mortgage is also entitled to his costs against the mortgage?* Similarly no mortgage is also entitled to his costs even though be refused to you the plaintiff in suit on a

The Rule as amended by Act XXI of 1929 makes express provision for payment to the mortalises of all expenses properly accurred by him in respect of the mortgage security, to other with interest thereon 12 Even prior to Act YM of 1929 the mortgages was entitled in a suit on the mortgage to claim as part of the mortgage money, expenses properly meured by him for the preservation of the mort gaged property, the protection of his title to the property etc 1 (See Transfer of Property Act, Ss 72 and 63 \) R 10 below also provides for the payment of such expenses incurred subsequent to the preliminary decree up to date of payment

13 Account against mortgagee in possession

Under S 77 of the Irmsfer of Property Act a mortgageo in possession of the mortgaged property is not liable to account for the rents and profits of the property where under the terms of the mortgage the mortgages is to take rents and proper in licu of interest or in hear of interest and defined partions of the principal In other cases a mortgagee in possession is liable to account for the rents and profits of the property Under S 76 (a) of the Transfer of Property Act he must keep clear full and accurate accounts of all sums received and spent by him as mortgagee 1 and 1, bound to deduct the rents and profits realised by him from the amount claimed by him amount the mortgager Further he is hable to pay a reasonable occupation rent if he is personally in possession of the land 3 He must also in the absence of a contract to the centrary, pay the Government revenue and all charges of a public nature and all rents accruing due in respect of the property, and if owing to his default, the mortgager has to pay any of these tems of expenditure he is entitled to a set off in respect thereof 4 | See Transfer of Property Act. ## 15 Subsequent mortgagees

The form of the preliminary decree given in the present Rule should be adapted to the circumstances of each case Where pulsue mortgagees are impleaded as parties in a suit on a prior mortgage a form similar to the one in uso in the Chancery Division in the High Court in England may be found useful 1 (See also Appendix D forms 9 to 11) The chief point to be noted in such cases is to give effect to the principle redeem up, and foreclose down right of redemption belongs to the next pulsae mortgages. If he makes default, he is foreclosed and the right to redeem devolves on the next puisne mortgagee and in the event of his default the right belongs to the next mortgages and the process goes on until the mortgagor is reached. If the mortgagor also fails to redeem he will be forcelosed 2

A subsequent mortgagee who has been added as a party to a suit for fore closure by a prior mortgage and who pays off the decree amount can, on his heing transposed as plaintiff apply for a final decree 3

Pays into Court

Under S 86 of the Transfer of Property Act the defendant could pay the mortgage money under the preliminary decree to the mortgage plaintiff direct or into the Court! But the present Rule requires the payment to be made only anto the Court in all cases 2 As to when and how far a payment made out of Court can be recognized by the Court dealing with an application to pass a final decree, see Note 14 to R 5 infra

On a day within six months

The Rule only fixes the outer limit for the period to be fixed for the pas ment of the mortgage money under the prehiminary decree. The Court has a discretion to fix any smaller period it thinks fit 1 Where accounts are directed to be taken, the six months period should be calculated not from the date of the preliminary decree, but from the date on which the Court confirms and counter signs the accounts taken under its decree 2 [See Sub R (1) Cl (c) and Sub Ci (t) As to the question whether, when the preliminary decree is appealed against, the period fixed for payment runs from the date of the first Court's decree or from the date of the appellate decree (See also Note 5 to R 3 and Note 9 to S 148)

1 Transfer of Property Act S 87

This Rule corresponds to S 87 of the Trinsfer of Property Act with the following differences -

(1) The present Rule provides for the passing of a decree when the defen dant pays up the mortgage money within the time allowed S 87 merely provided that in such a case the defendant should if necessary be put in possession of the mortgaged property

(2) Under the present Rule of the defendant does not pay the mortgage money within the time allowed a final decree is rassed. But under S 87 the procedure was to pass an order absolute for foreclosure

2 Transfer of Property (Amendment) Supplementary Act XXI of 1929

The present Rule has been amended by Act \\I of 1929 The cluef points of distinction between the old Rule and the new Rule are -

(1) The words before a final decree deburing the defendant from all right to redeem the mortgaged property has been passed have been substituted for the words on or before the day fixed

(2) Under the amended Rule the defendant mortgager has to aprily to the Court for a decree in his favour if he pays the mortgage money within the time allowed. The old Rule did not require this

(3) The new Rule makes it clear that the decree to be passed under it is a final decree

(4) The provise to Sub R (2) of the old Rule regarding the Court's power to extend the time fixed for payment of the martgage money has been transferred to R (2) abovo

(2) Sub R (3) makes it clear that the passing of a final decree for fore closure discharges not only the mortgage debt but all hability of the defendant in respect of the mortage or on account of the suit thereon

3 Where before a final decreo has been passed debarring defendant from all right to redeem The substitution of the words 'before a final decree has been passed etc

for the words on or before the day fixed now makes at clear that though a most hagor has not pud the mortgage money under the preliminary decree for fore closure within the time allowed by the Court he does not lose his right to redeem but can exercise the right till a final decree for foreclosure is actually passed 1 In view of this the under mentioned decisions prior to the Transfer of Property

5 Effect of appeal on time fixed for payment

O 41 R 5 expressly provides that an appeal shall not operate as a stay of proceedings under a decree or order appealed from, except so far as the appellate Court may order to that effect Hence the mere pendency of an appeal from the preliminary decree does not extend the time fixed, and is no bar to the passing of a final decree unless the innellate Court expressly or by necessary implication extends the period for payment 2 Nor is it a ground for enlarging the time fixed by the preliminary decree for payment 3

6 Where payment in accordance with Sub R (1) has not been made

A mortgaged is not bound to accept a smaller sum than that due as part satisfaction of his decree but is entitled to maist on a final decree for forcelosure being passed in his favour where the whole of the amount found due to him is not paid into the Court 1 But this principle only applies where there is no dispute as to the sum due 2 Thus, where the mort of deposits in Court the sum found

7 Final decree for foreclosure

The Rule makes it clear that the decree to be passed under this Rule is a final decree. The procedure under the Transfer of Property Act was to obtain an order absolute for forcelosure or sale.

An application for a final decree for foreclosure should be made by the plaintiff and he should make it to the Court of first instance even though the preliminary decree was modified in appeal 3. But a defendant who is present and allows a final decree to be passed on the application of a transfere from the plaintiff will be estopped from questioning the validity of the decree afterwards 4.

The legal representatives of a party who dies after a prehiminary decree can and should be brought on record under the provisions of O 22 in the proceedings to obtain the final decree maximuch as the suit must be deemed to be pending till a final decree is passed. But a person, who was not a party to the prehiminary decree, cannot be added as a party to the proceedings to obtain a final decree.

No notice is necessary to be given under this Rule to the defendant before a final decree is passed, though, in practice, it is generally given on grounds of justice and equity. Notice is, however, necessary where the defendant happens to be a numero. But the failure to give notice is if anything, only in arregularity and, unless the ments of the case are affected, will not invalid to the proceedings.

10 Delivery of title deeds

A mortging can institute a separate suit to recover compensation for loss of title deeds the Court may also grant in the mortgage decree itself an after native rehet for damages for such loss. But if no such alternative relief for damages is provided for in the preliminary and final decrees the Court cannot grant it in execution.

11 Limitation for application for final decree -See Note 12 R 5 1 ifig

12 Application for execution of final decree

An application for the execution of a final decree is governed by Art 182 of the Limitation Act 1

A final decree in a mortage suit may be adjusted out of Court like any other decree and O 21 R 2 applies thereto. Where a mortage decree is time barred it cannot be enforced, the mortage itself having meiged in the decree S 48 of the Code applies to a final decree under O 34 though the preliminary decree on which it was based had been passed under the Transfer of Property Act Where in a foreclosure decree against the defendants costs are awarded to the defendants O 21 R 19 is no bar to their executing, the decree for costs Where a foreclosure decree contains no direction for delivery of possession the mortage cunnot obtain possession by applying in execution. The proper course is to apply for an order for possession §

13 Appeal

It is clear under O 34 that a final decree is a decree and appealable as such Even under the Transfer of Property Act an order absolute was held to be appealable as a decree 1

7 Court's power to adjust equities

gagee s title 3

Where a sale of the mort, sed properties is unpossible as where the mort gaged properties have been sold for irrears of reconnect of tent the decree must be suitably modified. The Court his inherent power, in such cases to give appropriate directions for the disposal of the fund which represents the property. See also Note 19 to R. 1.

8 Power to extend time in suit for sale-Sub R [21-See also Note 15 to R 2

The provision in Sub R (2) enabling the Court to extend the time fixed for payment of the mort, age money under the preliminary decree is new. There was no such provision before the amendment of the present Rule by Act NM of 1920 <sup>1</sup> Hence, it was held that the Court had no power to extend the period fixed for payment of the mortgage money under a pichiminary decice for sale <sup>15</sup> It was however, open to the mortgager to precent a vale at any time before it was open to him to have the sale set aside at any time before it was open to him to have the sale set aside at any time before it was continued, by applying under O 21, R 89 <sup>3</sup> But in some cases it was held that the provisions of the Code as to execution of decrees were not applicable to mortgage decrees <sup>4</sup> This view is no looger tenable especially since the transfer to the Civil Procedure Code, of the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act relating to suits on mortgages O 21, R 83 expressly provides that that Rule does not apply to decrees or mortgage.

In a suit for sale by a puisne mort, a,ce he was given a decree conditional on his redeeming a prior mortgage within two months from the decree. He fulled to redeem the prior mortgage within the period fixed but did so about four months after the decree. It was held that as the defendant had not taken any steps to redeem, the plaintiff was entitled to the benefit of the payment though made after the pre-combed time and to a decree absolute for sale.

9 Decree for sale in a forcelosure suit-Sub R (3)

Sub R (3) has been taken from S 25 of the English Conveyancing let, 1881. The provision occurred even in S 88 of the Transfer of Proporty Act and

The Transfer of Property Let (Amendment) Supplementary Act, NI of 1929, his mide a slight change in the linguige of the Sub Rule and it is this The old Rule applied to most likes other than unortages by conditional sale. The new Rule applies only to anomalous mortgages. The doubt that was felt under the old Sub Rule is regards its applicability to anomalous mortgages or thus no longer exist. In such cases, the Court in order to protect the interests of all prities concerned can in the exercise of its discretion under this Sub Rule plass a decree for side instead of one for foreclosure. In the Sub-Rule where it does not appear that the property was undertained under this Sub-Rule where it does not appear that the property was undertained.

Where a pluntiff most suggestance for forcelessure on the allegation that the most suggestance is not one has conditional sale, and it is found that the most suggestance is not one has conditional sale the proper course is not to dismiss the suit but to  $_{\rm pl}$  into relief under Sub R (3).

10 Order in which properties should be sold

Prima face the decree-holder is entitled to have the mortgand properties sold in any order he like, 12 There are however, two important exceptions to this general rule—

- (1) the doctrine of marshalling securities as lud down in the Trinsfer of Preperty Act, and
- (2) The Court's power under O 34 R 4 to adjust the equities between the parties

Decline of mashalling —S 56 of the Tiansfer of Property Let is it stood before its amendment applied only as between the value, and his bayer. The Section has now been recisibly Let N of 1929 and it is now provided that this bayer curclaim the right of mushalling a unit not only the seller but also a, unit the mortgage but not so is to prejudice his right. Similarly the old S 81 of the Trunsfer of Property Let provided for mushalling where there were two properties only. The scope of the Section his now been valenced by Let NN of 1929 by providing that the Section should apply to case, where there are more than two properties and to all subsequent mosts, so.

Count's power to adjust equality:—Them of the doctains of mushalling above.

Court's pour to adjust equities—then it the doctrine of maistrining flower referred to is not strictly applicable, the Court his, under this Rule, the power to direct the order in which the various mort-aged properties should be sold, for the purpose of protecting the equities that may exist in fixour of into the putties.<sup>2</sup>

The Transfer of Property Act (Amendment) Supplementary Act, ACI of 1929, has made a slight change in the larguage of the Sub Rule and it is this The old Rule applied to mortgages other than mortgages by conditional alc. The new Rule applies only to anomalous mort, ages. The doubt that was left under the old Sub-Rule as regards its applicability to anomalous mortgages, os can thus no longer exist. In such case, the Court in order to protect the interests of all parties conceined can in the exercise of its discretion under this Sub Rule pass a decree for all instead of one for foreelosine, although the suit may be for fore closure. But the Court will not pass a decree for side instead of one for closure under this Sub Rule where it does not appear that the property was under tailed?

Where a plaintiff montgages such for forcelosure on the allegation that the montgage is not one by conditional sale, and it is found that the montgage is not one by conditional sale, the proper course is not to dismiss the said but to  $_{\mathbf{n}^{\prime}}$  and relief under Sub R (3)  $^{\circ}$

10 Order in which properties should be sold

Prima facte the decree holder is entitled to have the mortgaged properties cold in any order he like, 12. There we however two important exceptions to this general rule —

- (1) the doctrine of marshalling securities is lud down in the Trunsfer of Property Act, and
  - (2) The Court's power under O 34, R 4 to adjust the equities between the parties

Detine of mashaling—S so of the Transfer of Property let as it stood before its amendment applied only as between the seller and his buyer. The Section has now been recast by let N of 1929 and it is now provided that the buyer cin cluim the right of mashaling against not only the seller but also against the mortgage, but not so as to prejudee his rights. Similarly the old S 81 of the Trunsfer of Property let provided for mashaling where there were two properties only. The scope of the Section has now been undered by let N 1929 by providing that the Section should apply to cases where there are more than two properties and to all subsequent mortgages.

Courts power to adjust equities—Even if the doctrine of maishilling above referred to, is not strictly applieable, the Court his under this Rule the power to direct the order in which the various mortgaged properties should be sold, for the purpose of protecting the equities that may exist in favour of my of the printes.*

15 Consent decree

It is open to the parties to a mortgage suit to enter into a compromise and the Court can, in such a case, pass a decree in terms of the compromise. Such a decree need not conform to the provisions of O 34 1 For instance, instead of a lump sum being directed to be paid on a fixed day, a compromise decree may pro vide that the mortgage money should be paid in certain instalments and that in default the mortgaged property should be brought to sale. In such a case, it is not necessary to have a final decree passed under R 5 before bringing the property to sale 2 For it is open to the mortgager to waive the henefit of the provision which requires that a final decree should be passed before the property can be sold and where by his agreement he has wayed the benefit, a final decree which is intended only for his benefit is not necessary d But the deeree-holder is not precluded from applying for a final decree in such a case . So also where the parties have a reed that the decree should be drawn up under R 4, a final decree under R 5 is necessary " O 34 R 14 does not apply to a compromise decree "

A compromise decree on a mortgage may fix a longer period than the six months allowed under the Rule, for payment by the mortgagor 7. The Court has no nower to extend the period fixed for payment by a consent decree " Where a compromise mortgage decree authorises its enforcement against properties other than the mortgaged property, execution of the decree by the arrest of the mont gagot is permissible

This Rule corre pends to S 59 of the Transfer of Property Act The chief points of distinction between the two provisions are the following -

(1) Under S 89 an or ler also ute for sale was passed while under the mic sent Rule a final Lence is passed

(2) Unler S S9, payment of the mortgage money could be made either to the pluntiff or into the Court Under the present Rule, payment has to be made only into the Court

- (3) The words it the end of S 89, "and thereupon, the defendant's right to redeem and the security shall both be extinguished have been omitted in the pre-cut Rule
- (4) The provision for the passing of a decree in case of payment by the mortgager within the proper time is new

2 Amendments after 1908

The chief changes introduced in the Rule by the Amendment Act, XXI of 1929, are as follows —

- (1) The present Rulo makes it quite clear that the decree under it is a
- (2) to u prement of the mortgage money under the preliminary decice, the present Rule requires the mortgager to apply for a final decice.
- (3) The provision in Sub R (1) as to the defendant paying the mortgage money at any time before the continuation of the sile is new
- (4) Sub R (2) is new

3 Scape of the Rule

The present Rule applies only where a prehimmary decide has been passed under R  $\pm^{1}$

4 Final decree when can be passed

Order 34 contemplates the passing of a preliminary decree and a final decree in all moitages suits. The final decree for sale is passed when the payment directed by the preliminary decree has not been made within the propertime \( \) final decree under R 5 is necessary only when the decree originally passed is a preliminary decree under R 4. Hence where only a money decree has been passed, a final decree under the Rule is not necessary although the decree may authorise the decree holder to realise the decree amount by sale or the judgment debtor spiopets \( \) Similarly where at the time of the coming into force of the present Code of Civil Procedure a decree had already been passed under Transfer of Property Act S 88 it has been held that a final decree under the present Rule is not necessary? But where property is charged with the payment of the decreed amount it was held in the undermentioned case that the proper mode of realising the decree imment is to obtain a decree absolute for sale and that it was not necessary to attach the property.

Where the plantiff under a preliminary decree ou  $\tau$  mortgage is directed to pay in a prior mort, ago before bringing the mortgaged property to sale he is entitled to apply for a hind decree for sike even though he has made the payment only after the time fixed by the decree  $^{4}$

Where the purchases of a position of the equity of redemption is unide one of the defendants at a 1 suit on a most age and after the preliminary decree is passed, obtains an assiminant of the most ages a rights but is entitled to apply for a final decree although only for a proportionality addiced portion of the mortage amount. Mithough a final decree is necessary to be passed before execution, yet a most sign who allows execution to take place, without raising any objection, will be extopped from contending that the want of a final decree is fital to the proceedings 6 Similarly, it was held under the Trusfer of Property Act that no objection as to the want of a formal order absolute for sale could be rused where execution had once proceeded without objection?

5 Consent decrees and decrees on award

We have diedy seen in Note 4 that this Rule applies only where a preluminary decree his been passed under R 4 A consent decree providing for payment by instilments is not a preliminary deeree under R 4 and hence, a final decree under the present Rule is not necessary in such a case 1 Similarly, a decree on an award is not a preliminary decree under R 4 and no final decree is necessary to be pissed 2. But a decree-holder is not precluded from applying for a final decree where a preliminary decree by consent has been passed 3 See Note 15 to R 4 for further notes

Where a mortgage itself is invalid, as being opposed to a certain statute. it cannot be validated by a consent decree on the mortgage. The mortgager can resist in application for final decree on the ground that the mortgage is not binding on lum 4

This Rule contemplates the pissing of only one final decree 1 Where the preliminary decree is appealed from, the final decree should be based on the appellate decreo 2 From this it was concluded by the Allababid High Court in the undermentioued case that a final decree cannot be passed pending an appeal from the preliminary decree and a final decree so passed is invalid and inevecutablo 3 But this view has not been accepted by the High Courts of Patna, 4 Lahore 5 and Calcutta and has been overruled by the Allahabid High Court itself subsoquently 7 Where a final decree is passed and subsequently the preliminary decree ble to decrees on an unlitiation it has been held that an application for sale of the mortgaged property may be treated as an application for a decree absolute. An application for a final decree in a mortgage suit need not, however, be in uniting. Nor need the plaintiff, in his application, describe the properties with respect to which he asks for final decree for sale and therefore if any item is omitted in the application, it cannot be contended that the final decree should not be passed in respect thereof. A benamiliar transferce of a preliminary decree may apply for a final decree.

11 Notice to judgment debtor if necessary before passing final decree

As has been seen in the Note 7 to R 3, ante, this Rule also does not require any notice to be issued to the judgment debtor before the passing of a final decree though as a matter of practice, such notice should generally be given, on the principle that a party should be heard before any order is passed against him? Where a final decree his been passed against a most gager to whom no notice has been given of the apphenation for final decree, the Court has inherent jurisdiction to set aside the expante decree in furtherince of justice and equity? For cases under S 89, Trinsfer of Property Vet, see the undermen functioned cases.

Au application for a final decree under O 34 is not an application for execution. The article of the Limitation Act applicable to such an application is Art 181 and time begins to run when the right to apply for a final decree accrues is. On this point however there was a conflict of opinion under the Truesfer of Property Act. The recason for this was that, under that. Let, the procedure was to get an order absolute and not a final decree. This is views were taken of time is fixed for payment to the mior mostgages the plaintiff is not entitled to clum that limitation does not begin to run for his application for final decree until he has paid off the prior mostgage however long he may take to do so, ho is only entitled to a deduction of an months from the date of the preliminary decice?

Where, on an application for final deedee, in extension of time is granted to the mortgage, and a fresh application is made by the mortgaged subsequently, it is to be deemed a continuation of the previous application. 10

Where an appeal is preferred against a preliminary decree, limitation for an application for a final decree runs only from the date of the appellate decree ind not from the expiry of the period fixed by the lower Court for payment, it though the appellate decree is passed three years after the expiry of the period fixed by the lower Court for payment. But the dismissal of an appeal for non-prosecution does not give rise to a firsh starting point for limitation for an application for hind decree 13 See Note 9 to S 148

There is a contict of opinion as to whether a pluntuit, who obtained a decree under the Transfer of Property Act, is bound, on the coming into force of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, to apply for a final decree before proceeding to execute his decree. The High Courts of Madias and Prina five held that he is not bound to do so ind that the Code will not affect his rights to execute the decree which had vested in him under the old law <sup>14</sup>. The High Court of Bombly has, on the other hand, taken a continuation. It is showever clear that where the right to apply for an order absolute is buried by himitation even before the Code of 1905 crime into force his first right to apply for a final decree is conferred by the Code.

There is no limitation to the mortgagers application for deposit of the mortgage money under the pulliminary decree. Where an application for a final decree is dismissed, a subsequent application is not for a revival of the previous application.

In this connection it may be noted that, under 5 50 of the Transfer of Property Act, the defendant's right to reduce and the security became both extinguished on the passing of the order absolute. The words as to the extinguishment have been omitted in the present Rule with the effect that a final decree does not now extinguish the mortgage security or the right to redeem 5

Where a period has been fixed for the payment of the mortage money under the picliminally decree it is not open to the mortgion to pay the money before the date fixed with costs and interest calculated un to the date of nanneut only and avoid further liability for costs and interest "

Court, this Rule provides that it should be paid into the Court 1 But suppose the money is paid out of Court to the mortgagee. Then, if such payment is made aft the final decree or after the order absolute (under the Transfer of Property Ac is passed, O 21, R 2 will clearly apply and a payment can be certified to th executing Court , in the absence of such certification within the limitation perio the executing Court will not take cognisines of it 2 Even if the payment is made ifter the meliminary decree and before the order absolute or the final decree presed, the Court executing the final decree cannot, by viitue of the provisions O 21, R 2, recognise such a payment unless contined 3 On the question whether the Court dealing with an application for a final decree, can recognise such proment, it has been held by the High Courts of Madias' and Lahore the O 34, R 5 mescribes only one method of payment, namely, into Court and that payment out of Court cannot be recognised On the other hand it was held by the High Courts of Allahahad, Calcutta, and Rangoon and by the Judicial Commissioner's Court of Nagpur, that such a payment could be certified to the Court (though it is not the executing Court) under the provisions of O 21, R 2, the therefore a certified payment can be recognised, or a payment can be certified b the Court dealing with the application to pass a final decree but that a payment not so certified within the period of limitation prescribed therefor, cannot b recognised The High Court of Patna, 10 the Chief Court of Oudh 104 and th Judicial Commissioner's Court of Nagpur 10b have held that such a payment can h secomised under O 23 R 3 as an adjustment of a pending suit, though in a late case 11 the Napur Court has disagreed with this view on the ground that O 23 R 3 cannot apply to a satisfaction of a decree already passed. The High Court of Labore has also held that O 23 R 3 is mapplicable to such a payment 112

Even in cases mising under the Transfer of Property Act, there was a conflict of opinion, but of a somewhat different nature. It was held by the Allahabad High Court and the Judicial Commissioner's Court of Oudh, that proceeding under S 89 of that Act for obtaining an order absolute was a proceeding in execution, and, therefore the Court dealing with an application for in order absolute, being an executing Court could not accognise a payment after the

29 Nature of proceedings for final decree

There was a conflict of decisions, before the coming in a force of the present Codo of Civil Procedure, as to whether proceedings to older absolute under S. 89 of the Trusfer of Property let were proceedings in execution of the decise under S. 89 or proceedings in the smit itself some cases taking the former view and others taking the literature at This conflicts most scaled under the now Codo which males it clear that a decise under R. I is merpuble of execution and that the proceedings under R. 5 no proceedings in the autitself for a supplemental decrease and not proceedings in execution. I flence the provisions of O. 22 pipls to proceedings for final decree. Similarly, the doctrine of the pen fews upplies to such hence does not up by to proceedings for final decree so to concluded by a decree and hence does not up by to proceedings for final decree so to contible the addition of persons who were not putters to the preluminary decree, as parties to the proceedings for final decree.

30 Joint decree holders

One of several joint decree-holders cannot certify satisfaction of the decree boyond his own interest in the decree so as to bind the other decree-holders.

3 Personal decree for balance against mortgagor

This Rule provides that the mortgagee may, by may of application, obtain a decree personally against the mortgagor, for the balance still remaining due to him after the mertgaged preperty is sold 1 The object of the Rule is to enable such a decree to be passed in the motgage sait itself and to avoid multiplicity of proceedings 14 In fact, a separate suit for enforcing the personal hability would be barred under the previsions of O 2. R 22

A personal decree under this Rule, will, however, he granted only after the mortgagee his exhausted his remedies against the security, in other words, it will be guinted only after the sale has been carried out and the deficiency ascertained, it is a relief which will not be grinted to the mertgagee until that stage is reached 3 The mere fact, therefore, that the plaint does not contain a prayer for such relief or that the original decree does not reserve a liberty to the plaintiff to apply for a personal decrees will not preclude the mertgages from applying under this Rule when the deficiency is ascertained. Where a compremise in a mertiage suit previded for payment of the mortgage money in certain instalments and, on default, for execution by sale of the mortgaged properties "in the usual way," but did not reserve any right to the plaintiff to apply for a personal judgment, it was hold by their Lerdships of the Privy Council that there was nothing to suggest that the plaintiff agreed to ferego the benefit of the personal covenant, and that the powers of the Court to give that relief do not depend on O 34, R 6 of the Code nor arn they derived from the clause in the decree reserving leave to the plaintiff to apply for a personal judgment 6

It follows from what has been said above that the Rule contomplates a sepurate decree being passed for the bilance, a Court will be acting arregularly. therefore, in providing, in the decree for sile itself, that the mortgages may proceed personally ignust the mortgager for the bilines. On the other band the prelimingly decree should not ducet that properties not mort aged should not be proceeded against the question must be left for decision at the proper time 8 But where, it the time of the original decree a decision has been given as to the personal liability of the defendant, the question cannot be raised again on general principles of ice judi ata " I decree for sile, providing for execution thoreof personally against the mortaged in case of dehenency, though contrary to the provisions of R to 15 not void on that ground. decree under this Rule should not, therefore, direct the realisation of the amount from any specific property 20

Although a decree merely declares the amount due to be a charge on the mort, used property it should be construed as a mort, age decree for sale to which R to a upplicable "1

Although a mortaine is invalid a personal decree may be passed in the same suit a aust the mort agor on the bisis of the personal covenant in the mortgage deed 22 \ ner-onal decree obtained without informing the Court of a provious refusal by it to mint such a decree, eannot be set aside as frandulent 23

4 Personal hability of purchaser from mortgager

The word defendant in R 6 means the defendant mortgager and a personal decree cannot be passed under the Rule against a purchaser of the equity of redemption 1 This is so even if the purchaser has contracted with the mortgagor to pay off the mortgage and has retuned with himself a portion of the consideration for the purpose. The reason is that there is no privity of contract between himself and the mort-acte

5 Personal liability is a question of construction of the instrument

A personal liability to pay the mortgane amount is, in each case a question of the construction of the mort, we deed 1 But every simple mortgage2 and every English mortaged involves prima facu, a personal obligation to pay Similarly, titing facts there is no personal obligation to pay in a usufracturity mortgage or a mortgage by conditional sale 4 (See S 58 of the Transfer of Property Act) Where the time for payment fixed under the deeree niss was enlarged on condition

6 Personal decree against person not the mortgagor

The word defendant in the Rule means as has been seen in Noto 4 above the montgagor defendant? Where a mortgago bond was executed by the Court of Wards on bohalf of a ward a decree may be passed against the wird under this Rule for the balance of mortgago monoy due after the sale of the mortgagod property and appropriation of the sale proceeds. A personal decree against the managing member of a Hindu joint family binds the junior members of the family though they were not paties to the suit.

7 Personal decree against the heirs of the mortgagor

Where mortgiged property is found to be insufficient to satisfy a mort-cage decree obtained against the hears of a mortgager a decree may be passed against them under this Rule to the extent of the as ets of the deceased in their lands? Where a decree index this Rule exempts the person and property of the sons of the mortgager who is the manager of a joint. Hindu finilly lust a decree is passed against them to the extent of the assets of the mortgager in their hands the assets received by the sons by survivorship on the death of the fither are hable under the decree? But when the sons share is exempted from the mort-cage decree against the father it is also exempt from a decree under the piecent Rule?

8 Personal remedy under compromise decree

The fact that the original decree was a compromise decree is no har to a personal decree being passed under this Rule. According to the High Comis of Bombay<sup>2</sup> and Calcutta. a compromise decree in a most age suit may be executed against the mortgager personally without any decree being passed under R 6.

9 Right of mortgages to attach other properties of mortgagor before date fixed for payment of mortgage money liter the preliminary decree in a mortgine suit and before the date fixed for the prement of the mortage money of there is reasonable probability of the mortgaged property not being sufficient to satisfy the mortgage debt the Court can order the attachment of the other properties of the mortgagor if it is satisfied as to the existence of the conditions laid down in O 38 R 5 The fact that under O 34 R 6 no personal decree can be obtained until the mortgaged properties are sold does not affect the plantiff's rights under O 38 R 51

10 Where net proceeds of any such sale are found insufficient

The opening words of the Rule male it clear that a decree under the Rule can only be pa ed after the mort-need property has been sold and it is found that the sale proceeds me not sufficient to satisfy the mortgage debt 1. But if a ner sonal deered is actually tassed before the sale and the mortgagor does not object. he is e topped from questioning the validity of such personal decreo later on 2 If the mort and it perty the ugh no fault of the mortgages has been destroyed by fire or otherwise ceased to exist or to be marlable for sale the plaintiff is not hound to go through the farce of bringing the property to sale before applying for decree under the Rule 'Thus where the mortgages is unable to sell a portion of the mortgaged properties by teason of their boint situated in a Native State which will not execute the decree of a British Indian Court and the sale proceeds of the remaining portion of the properties are not sufficient to satisfy the mortgage, the decree-holder is entitled to a personal decree against the judgment-debtor. Similarly, where a mortgage of joint family property by the father of a Hindu joint family is found to be not for legal necessity, it has been held by the Madras High Court that a conditional decree may be passed against the father personally and the sons share in the joint family property for the recovery of the balance that may remain due to the mortgage after the sale of the father schare of the mortgaged property (without the son's shares being put to sale). 13 Logally recoverable otherwise than out of the property sold

These words mean by way of illustration that the balance must be a balance which the mort-ages is not precluded by the terms of the mortgage from realisms, otherwise than out of the property sold or a balance the recovery of which is so thur of by limitation.

14 Prior and puisne mortgagees

A pulsae mort age is not a defendant against whom a per onal decree may be passed there being no privity of contract between him and the plaintiff 1

15 Costs against puisne mortgagee

A prior moitgagee is not entitled to a person all decreo for costs against a puisse moitgagee 1. As seen in Note 6 above the word defendant in this Rule means only the reorly nor defendant and not necessarily those claiming utile under him

16 Insolvency of mortgagor

Where pending a suit by a mortgage on his mortgage, the mortgager is declared in insolvent the phintiff can still proceed against the mortgaged property is not sufficient to pay the debt and the mort gager is personally liable under the mortgage the mortgage may prove for the balance in the insolvency proceedings along with the other creditors of the mort gager if the personal hability was not time barred at the date of the institution of the suit on the mortgage? But can the mortgage obtain a personal decree under this Rule in such a case? No according to the Alhahada High Court? Yes according to the Lahore High Court? and the Oudh Chief Court?

17 Limitation

We have seen (Note 12) that a balance is not logally necessable if the personal remedy is barred by limitation at the date of the suit for sale. Article 132

The proceedings after a preliminary decree are proceedings in suit to which the provisions of O 22 will suply " O 34 contemplates only one preliminary decree being massed. Hence it is mie-ulu to first pass a decide for accounts and then again another pielimin is decree for redemption. Such a decree for accounts if passed will only have the effect of an interlocutory order for accounts 3 Where it is found that the money due to the mortgageo has already been paid, a final decree may be at once passed without any preliminary decree 4 (See R 9, infra which expressly provides for this) A docree for possession on condition of the plantiff's paying a certain sum within a certain time is not a preliminary decree within this Rule "

The Rule applies only to a soit for redemption against a mortgagee and not by one co mortgagor against another who has redeemed the entire mortgage, for rodemption of pluntiff's share of the mortgaged property A compromise decree in a relemption suit, which is itself capable of execution does not require a final decree 7 No application for a final decree can be made under this Rule and R & where a decree had been passed under S 92 of the Transfer of Property Let "

Ordinarily a suit for an account on a mortgage cannot be asked for unless the mortgagon asks for redemption also " The builden, in suits for redemption, is on the mortgagor of proving the existence of a mortgage to and the mere fact that the defendant denies the mortgage is no ground for decreeing possession without any payment by the mortgagor " A conditional decree for redemption on payment of the amount due may be passed even though the Court hads that the mortgage has not been satisfied out of the mortgaged property as alleged in the

In a suit for redemption, the mortgagee's maht to interest is not limited to that accoung during the six years preceding the suit 1 Where a mort agee who is entitled to possession obtains a decree for possession, he is not entitled to any interest between the date of the decree and the date of the delivery of possession 2

6 Costs

In a suit for redemption, the most nace defendant is entitled to all costs unless he has refused a valid tender of the mortage money or his otherwise been guilty of misconduct 1 Such costs are part of the mortage money and in the absence of any express provision in the decree to the contrary are not personally recoverable from the mortgagor 3 Where the plaintiff mort igor has been awarded costs in such a suit he is entitled to set off the amount of his costs against the mostgage money payable by him 3

7 Subsequent costs charges and expenses

The amendments introduced by the Ti unsfer of Property Act (Amendment) Sun lementary Act XXI of 1929 have made clear that the mortgamee is entitle! to charges and expenses properly meurical by him in respect of the mortgage security even subsequent to the preliminary decree Although the Rules were not so explicit before the above amendment as they are now on this point the law was recognised to be the same even under the old Rules 1

8 Subsequent interest as provided in R 11

R 7 Sub R (1) Cl (c) (i) provides for the payment by the most agor of interest subsequent to the date fixed for payment under the preliminary decree up to the date of the actual realisation of the mortgage money. This point was not conceded under the old Rules 1

Pays into Court on a day within six months

A decree under this Rule should state a period within which the mortgage money should be paid 1 This period may be less than six months 2. In computing the period so fixed the date of the decree should be excluded 3

The amendments in this Rule and in R 8 made hy Act XXI of 1929 make it clear that the Court can extend the time fixed for payment from time to time and that till a decree for foreclosure is netually passed or till the sale is confirmed, the mortgagor can redeem the property. The undermentioned cases1 de cided under the old rules have only an academic interest now. Time for priment may be extended though the period originally fixed may have expired 2. #### 1 Legislative changes

The Rule c rie | nds to S 93 of the Transfer of Property Act

2 Amendments after 1908

The Rule was amended by the Transfer of Project, let (Amendment) Supplementary let NI of 1929 on the same lines as Ri 3 and 5 ante. The Horizon is the extension of time bus been transferred to R 7 1 tide Notes under Rr 3 and 7 ante. Unler the old Rule a decree for sale could not be passed only in the case of a mortgage by conditional sale. Under the present Rule no decree for sale can be presed even in the case of with such are mortgage.

3 Scope of the Rule

The decree under R 7 is only a preliminary decree and a finited decree under the tile ent. Rule is necessary to terminate a suit for redemption 1. As has been seen already in Note 4 to R 7 in a redemption suit there should be a complete settlement of all accounts between the parties in relation to the mortgage 2. (See also R 9 and 10 in 1/1 a which show that accounts should be taken right up to the date of actual payment of mortgage once and is tunisfer of possession).

4 Decree for redemption

On layment of the mortgage mone, before a final decree for sale or fore closure to passel the mortgager is entitled to a final decree for redemption. A mortga, to can however excrete the right of redemption in the case of a decree for sale at any time before the sale is confirmed though the final decree for sale at any time before the sale is confirmed though the final decree for sale at any time before the sale is confirmed though the final decree for sale the mortgag, or will get an order for the delivery of the title deeds etc. as indicated in Sub R. (1). If the mortgage seeks to redeem the property after the sale indicated in Sub R. (1). If the mortgage is must exposit for payment to the auction purchases 5 fer event of the purchase money in addition to the mortgage money. Under Sub R. (1) all rights acquired by the mortgage ander the mortgage in possession need not vacato possession till he has received the full mortgage in possession need not vacato possession till he has received the full mortgage money.

1 monthogor is not disentitled to a decree for redemption simply because he has attached under his decree for costs against the mortgage the mortgage withdrawn withdrawn

The most ages is not entitled to notice of payment into the Court of the mortgage money under the preliminary decree . Nor is the mortgagor required to make an application to the Court before paying in the money " The refusal of the Treasury Officer to accept the mertage money though paid within the proper time does not amount to default by the judgment debtor " Where the mortganor has paid into the Court the sum ascertained by the first Court pending an appeal by the most ages as to the amount due, the mestages is entitled to credit for the amount paid though it lapsed to the Government through the failure of the mortgages to take the money out of Court Payment to an unauthoused person does not disclinive a mortage 8

5 Redemption after due date

The present Rule makes it clear that though a mortgagor mas fuled to redeem the mortgaged property within the time allowed by the Court he is entitled to do so at any time before a final decree for foreclosure is passed or a sale of the mortgaged property under a final decree for sale as combraned See Note 8 infia

6 Final decree for foreclosure or sale-Sub Rule (3)

The provision as to the passing of a final decree for foreclosure under the circumstances indicated in the Rule is imperative! I final decice for foreclosure or sale can only be passed on application by the mertargee decree for foreclosure cannot be passed in the case of a sample mortgage 3. The absence of any provision in the preliminary decice for the passing of a final decice for sale of foreclosure is no bar to the passing of such a decree in application for final decree should be made to the Court of first instance though the preliminary decree was modified in appeal. In the undermentioned case it was held that the mortgagor himself was entitled to apply for a final decree for sale, if he was not able to pay the mortgage money 6

7 Power to enlarge time

The provision as to the enlargement of time centained in the proviso to the old R 8 has now been transferred to the present R 7 by Act XI of 1929 I payment of the amount due within the time fixed entitles the mortanor to a final decree for redemption I But the time can be extended by the Court for making such payment under this Rule. The principles discussed in Note 18 of R 2 and in Note 9 to S 148 apply in general to an extension of time under this Rule Thus the time can be extended even though the time originally fixed has ex But no extension can be granted unless good cause as shown therefor suit for redemption-liner north a ce defendant can get find lec ee for sale though pichinin ary

Nor is the mort, igor entitled to an extension as a matter of right 4

The power to extend time applies to all kinds of mortgages. Ordinarily a mortgage, who seeks to profit the money after the time fixed, must apply for extension. The application need not however, be in any nescribed form and even in application to profit money may itself be treated as an application for extension. But the application must be made to the Count of first instance seen though the decree may have been confirmed on appeal.

It was held in the undermentioned cases, that the power to enlarge time under this Rule applies to whit he strettly suits for redemption. But where in a pircition suit, it was found that in ahearition of joint family projectly was pirtially binding on the plaintiff and a decree was pissed for possession as instead the thence conditional on the pissment of a certain sum of money to him within a critiun time, it was held by the High Court of Madris that the decree was in effect one for redemption, and that the time fixed by it could be extended under this Rule."

Even if the time is not extended, the most view, as has been made clear by this Rule, can redeem the property at any time before a final decree for foreclosure is passed, or a sale of the property is contained by the Court and this with the practice followed oven before the amendment under  ${\rm Act} \ \Delta {\rm Mi}$  of 1929 was made  ${\rm ^{1-}}$  by to the decrees passed before the Transfer of Property act see the undermentoned case  ${\rm ^{12}}$

It has been held by the Chief Court of Oudh that even in the case of a compromise discretor identition, the Court, is entitled under this Rule to extend the time in proper cases.

8 Limitation

Article 181 of the Limitation Act applies to an application by the mortgages for a final decice under this Rule and time runs from the explit of the period fixed for payment by the mortgager. before the sale of the motigated property is confirmed by the Courthiere is no period of limit turn applicable to a payment by lim of the mortgage mone. It has even been left that there is no period of limitation applicable to an application by the motigag if in final decree for redemption at being the duty of the Court to lass such a decree <sup>3</sup> But under the amendments of the Rule mide by let NM of 1929 even a mortgager has to apply for a final decree for redemption. Hence the view (alemin the above decision requires is consideration. Where there has been an appeal against the preliminary decree the period of limitation for an application for final decree commences not from the expirit of the time fixed for payment but from the date of the appellate decree <sup>4</sup>. An application for extension of time by a decree holder is a step in aid of execution within the meaning of L matation. Act last 182 in respect of a subsequent application for sale by him?

In order refusin, to extend time is uppealable under O 13 R 1 (o) 1 But no appeal has against an order granting an extension of time? It is doubtful whether an order merely refusing to pass a final decree but leaving it open to the mortgage to apply again for such a decree is appealable as a decree.

Scope of the Rule Note No I

1 Scope of the Rule

This Rule is new and was inserted by the Transfer of Property (Amendment Supplementary) Act NJ of 1929. The Rule provides for a personal decise being passed in a suit for it leviption against the mortage where the proceeds of a sale held on the default of the mortage to 1 ty the mortage money in time under decree for nedemption are not sufficient to satisfy the mortage debt. The Rule corresponds to R G ante which provides for a personal decree being passed in a suit for sale by the mortage.

The words the last preceding Rule refer to R 8 as a needed by bot \M of 1929 under which no decree for sale could be passed in the case of a neafround mortgage as was possible under the old Rule. Where therefore a decree for sale was passed in respect of a neaff neetway mortgage under the old Rule and a sale is held in pursuance thereof it was held that such a sale could not be sail to have been held under the last preceding Rule within the meaning of this Rule and that consequently no personal decree for the balance attending due could be passed under the Rule?

1 Scope of the Rule

This Rule is new and gives effect to the practice followed in cases arising under the Transfer of Property Act1 and in cases arising even previous thereto 2

If the Court finds that the most are has been discharged, a decree for redemption can be passed at once without the formality of a preliminary and final decree 3 A mortgagee who continues in possession of the mortgaged property after the mortgage has been satisfied is hable for all the receipts from the monerty with interest from the time when the debt was fully paid off * Extra Court-fee in addition to the Court fee paid on the paperpal sum due need not be paid on the surplus profits that may be decreed to a mortgagor in a redemption suit." A claim by a mortgagor for recovery of over-payment received by the mortgages is a relief included in a suit for redemption to which Art 148 of the Limitation Act applies

2 Deduction of costs payable to mortgagor

The mortagor is entitled to set off the costs awarded to him against the anorthane money in preference to the clum of the defendant mortganee's attorney for his costs of the suit.2

3 Claim for overpayments-Suit for if lies

4 Such costs of suit as have been properly incurred

The mort, you's Iribility in 1 mort, i.e. sufficient do enhanced by a final decree level of the point indicated in the preliminary decree except in so far as is provided for by the present Rule. It his been held by the Allahabad High Court that the Rule refers only to costs incurred between the preliminary decree and the "sil decree and not to the costs incurred subsequent to the final decree in execution proceedings." The Clincf Court of Oudh on the other band has all sentent in the result in this view and held that the Rule upplies to all costs incurred in connection with the suit in this time of actual purposed whether before or after the final decree. It is submitted that the Oudb view accords more with the Rule public of the Rule than the Malahabad view.

5 Costs of appeal

There is a coullet of decisions as to whether the costs of in unsuccessful appeal by the most, and from the prehiumany decise in a most, ago suit can be added to the most, and more on should be recovered from the most, and in some cross, it has been held that such costs can be added to the most, a mone, a while in other case that the Rule refers primarily to cost-incurred in the Court which prepries the final decise and that it endors the cost appeal cannot be added to the mortga, o maney but should be recovered passonally from the mortga, or a local region of the undermentioned cases a however the question is one of construction of the appellite decise dismissing the appeal.

6 Other costs charges and expenses

This expression has been newly inserted by Act NI of 1029 and gives offsect to the practice followed before the Act, of adding such costs charges and expenses, neutrod after the preliminary decree, to the mortugage money?

1. Interest Act of 1839 though there might be no agreement to pay such interest Such interest awarded either as damages, for under the Interest Act, for was held not to constitute a charge on the mortgaged property though a contrary view also was held in the undermonitioned cases. It was also held that post diem interest claimed as damages for breach of contract could be recovered only for the period prescribed by the Limitation Act for a suit for compensation for such breach, for and that a claim for such damages would fail unless the mortgage suit was brought within the period of limitation for a suit for damages for breach of the contract. But the Privy Council observed in the undermentioned case that the claim was a recurring one and so long as the principal itself was not barrod post diem interest could be recovered for the six years (or three years, as the case may be), preceding the suit on the mortgage.

Interest from institution of suit to the date fixed sinder the preliminary decree for the payment of the mortgage money.—The same rules which guided the Court with reference to interest accounting prior to the suit applied also till the date fixed under the decree for the payment of the mortgage money. Hence, where there was a stipulated rate of interest, the Court was held bound to decire interest at that rate till the date fixed for payment of the decretal amount, however high it might be, unless it was penal or was excessive and the transaction was substantially unfair? ## 1 Transfer of Property Act S 96

The present Rule corresponds to the old S 96 of the Transfer of Property (to f 1882 which was repealed in 1993 Under the Transfer of Property (timendment) Act NX of 1929 a new S 96 has been inserted in the Transfer of Property Act which deals with a different subject

la Scope of the Rule

Ŧ.

This Rule confers upon the Court the power of directing a sale free from the prior mortgage subject to two conditions namely, that the property must be one of which the sale is directed under this Older and there must be consent of the prior mortgage. When these conditions are satisfied, the Court has full power in its discretion to direct the sale free from the prior mortgage? The Rule does not require the consent of the plaintiff or of anybody cless besides that of the plaintiff decree holder. The Court can exercise the power under this Rule is not confined to the plaintiff decree holder. The Court can exercise the power under this Rule on the ripplication of anybody or even of its own motion?

2 Sale of property subject to prior mortgage

The explanation to O 34 R 1 makes it clear that the prior mortgagee is not a necessary party to a suit for a sale on puisno mortgage. Hence a puisno mortgagee can bring the mortgaged property to sale under his own decree subject to a prior mortgage. The contrary view, taken in the undermentioned cases

2, decided under the Transfer of Property Act, is obsolete 2

As to whether a person having two mortgages on the same property can sue on his puisne mortgage, reserving his rights under the first mortgage see Note 40 to S 11 He cannot, however, in any case, sell the property twice under his two mortgages 3 But if the prior mortgage is a usufructuary one and the mortgages is therefore unable to bring the property to sale under that mortgage, there is nothing to prevent his bringing the property to sale under his later simple mortgage subject to the prior usufructuary mortgage 4

3 Sale free from prior mortgage,

The Rule clearly implies that without the prior mortgages s consent pro perty cannot be sold free of his mortgage in execution of a decree for sale on a subsequent mortgage 1 In the absence of such consent the sale under a decree on a puisne mortgage can only be subject to the prior mortgage though there may be no express reservation of the pilor mortgagees lights 12 Although the prior mortgagee may he joined as a party to the suit on the puisne mortgage, it is not incumbent on him to assert and prove his priority where his mortgage or his priority is not impugned (See Note 40 to S 11) The priority therefore cannot be lost merely because the prior mortgagee does not establish it in such a case? See also the undermontioned case 3

4 Where prior mortgage is a usufructuary one

(a) Sale free of prior mortgage - A usufructuary mortgagee as such, cannot sue for sale on his mortgage. There is therefore a conflict of opinion as to whether a prior usufructuary mortgageo with whose consent the property is sold under this Rule in execution of a decree on a puisne mortgage is entitled to share in the sale proceeds. The High Court of Madras has held that he can, on the ground that this Rule applies to all mortgages whether simple or usufructuary or whether the mortgages are in favour of the same person or different persons 1 The High Court of Allahahad, on the other hand has held that he cannot do so 2 It has, however held that, where a puisne mortgagee nedeems a prior usufructuary mortgagee he can bring the mortgaged projecty to sale for the amounts due under both the mostgrees 8

(b) Sale subject to prior mortgage -As to sale of mortgaged property subject to a prior usufructuary mortgago see Note 2 supra

2 Application of proceeds

Compare S 73, ante R 13 in terms applies only when the sale is ordered under R 12, i.e., when the sale is free of the prior mortgage. But the principle of the Rule applies to other cases also. Hence, even in sales subject to a prior mortgage, the proceeds should first be applied towards the interest and costs of the mortgage under which the sale is held and then only towards the principal. This Rule is intended to regulate the position as botween the mortgager and the mortgage. It does not apply to a case of suctishin 1 is

Where a sale is held in enforcement of a prior mortgage, a puisne mostgages receiving an amount from out of the surplus sale proceeds by sixtue of his security is bound to apply them only in satisfaction of his mortgage debt though the mostgager may have paid the money towards other debts.

3 Whatever is due to the prior mortgagee"

Each of the prior encumbrancers is entitled to interest at the contract rate up to the date of the confirmation of the sale, that being the earliest date when the mones really becomes available for distribution.

4 ' Person proving himself to be interested in the property sold"

This expression includes a subsequent encumbrancer, but not if the existence or validity of the subsequent encumbrance is challenged by the moitagage? A subsequent mortgage who has obtained a decree on his mortgage but has allowed it to become time barred is not a person interested in the property sold? It was held in the case cited below that the holder of two successive moitages on the same property, who failed to include the second mortgage in his suit on the first mortgage ould claim the surplus sale proceeds under this Rule is a puisse opcumbrance; That position, will, it is conceived, be different in cases governed by S 67 A of the Tiansfer of Property Act which has been nowly introduced by Act XX of 1929 A mere unsecured creditor is not a prison "interested in the property sold" But after the subsequent encumbrances are satisfied, he can proceed against the balance, if any, payable to the moit-factor."

1 Transfer of Property Act S 99

This Rule corresponds to S 99 of the Transfer of Property Act with this difference 114 -that while S 99 applied even to cases in which the mortgages had obtained a money decree on a claim unconnected with the mortgage, R 14 is expressly confined to eases where a money deeree has been obtained on a claim urising under the mortgage See Note 11 below

2 Scope and object of the Rule

As has been seen in Noto 19 to R 5, ante a sale in execution of a decree on a mortgane passes the interests of both the mortgagor and the mortganes, while a sale in execution of a money decree conveys only the interest of the mortganor, namely the equity of redemption. The object of the present Rule is to prevent the mort, ages from bringing to sale the bare equity of redemption in execution of a money decree which he may obtain in respect of a claim arising under the mortgage. Thus where a mortgagee obtained a simple money decree for the interest that has accrued due on the mortgage or obtains a money decree for the mortgage debt under S 68 of the Transfer of Property Act, he cannot attach and sell the mortgaged properties in execution of the said decree though he can proceed against the person or other properties of the mortagor. If he wants to proceed against the mortgaged properties he is bound to bring a suit for sale again, and such a suit will not be barred by the provisions of O 2 R 2

The reason of the Rule is the avoidance of several evils which are likely to result if a mortgagee is allowed to bring the mortgaged properties to sale in execution of a money decree which be has obtained on a claim arising under the mortgage 1 Such a sale would deprive the mortgager summarily of the right of redemption without giving him any of the facilities which an ordinary suit for sale ensures Being sphiect to the unascertained claim of the mort gagee, the property would not fetch a fair value at the sale and the mortgagee would be enabled to purchase it at an unduly low price. If a stranger pur chased it at the sale without notice of the mortgage he would be subjected to great hardship unless the mortgagee could he held to be estopped from asserting his rights under the mortgage against such a purchaser 2

The Rule is retrospective in effect being a rule of procedure and applies to decrees passed even prior to its coming into force 3

The Rule does not apply to the Punjah, the Transfer of Property Act not having been extended thereto See Sub R 2 See also the undermentioned cases

Under S 99 of the Transfer of Property Act, it was held that it applied to Civil Courts and Revenue Courts It was also held that the Section applied to mortgages created before the Transfer of Property Act,7 but not to judicial sales held and perfected before the date of the Act 8

The Rulo prevents only a sale of the mortgaged property under a money decree in respect of a claim arising under the mortgage. It does not prevent the attachment of the mortgaged property under such a decree See Note 8, infraSee also the undermentioned case 9

3 Applicability of the Rule to enforcement of a charge

By force of R 15 infra, this Rule applies to charges as well as to mortgages 1 It applies however only to a charge which exists prior to the decree for money and not one which is created for the first time by the decree as in the latter case the decree cannot be eard to be obtained in satisfaction of a claim arising under the mortgage (See Note 6 anfra) In such a case, therefore, the charge can be enforced in execution without any fresh suit for sale being filed 2

Thus where in a suit for maintenance by a Hindu widow the maintenance decreed is made a charge on certain property the widow can enferce the charge by applying for sale of the property in execution and cannot be compelled to file a suit for sale 3

4 Applicability of the Rule to the enforcement of security bends

Under S 145 of the Code the hability of a surety for a judgment debtor can be enforced summarily in execution proceedings in so far as the surety has made him-elf personally hable. But, suppose besides making himself personally liable he mortgages some property as security, can the property be sold in execu tion without a suit for sale? On this question there is a conflict of decisions It has been held by the High Courts of Allahabad, 1 Bombay 2 Madras and Patna that this Rule does not apply to such a case as there is no decree for money against the surety within the meaning of the Rule But the High Court of Calcutta has held that the Rule applies and is an absolute bar to the sale of the mortgaged property without a regular suit for salo

Where the security bend is given to the Court and not to any named person. there is no mortgage, the Court not being a juridical person and the moper procedure to enforce the eccurity is by a summary order for the sale of the property covered by the bend, unless the surety pays the amount of security within a

Mortgagee meaning of, under this Rule

Mortgagee includes the holder of a charge See Note 3, supra

Decree for the payment of money in satisfaction of a claim arising under the mortgage

S 99 of the Transfer of Property Act applied though the claim on which the money decree was obtained was totally unconnected with the mortgage. The present Rule applies only to cases in which a money decree is obtained on a claim arising under the mortgage 1 (For further information on this aspect of the subject see Note 11, infia)

It follows from the language of the Rule that the mortgage should be one existing pilor to the decree and not one created by the decree itself (See Note 3, supra) The Rule also pre supposes that the mortgage is rated and enforceable at the time of the passing of the money decree If the mortgage is invalid or has become unenforceable through the efflux of time or any other reason, the Rule does not apply and is no bar to the sale of the property under the money decree $

7 Effect of sale in contravention of the Rule

A sale in contravention of the Rule can be presented by objection being taken at any time before the sale takes place 1 But if it does actually take place, it is not void but is only voidable at the instance of the mortgagor or of any other person having an interest in the equity of redemption 2 The contrary view held 6 (1919) 1913 P C 55 (59) 22 Oudh Uns 212 42

Where the sale is held after due notice to the judgment debtor he eagnot subsequently question its salidity 6

Once the sale is confirmed the purchaser gets a good title to the property and is not liable to be redeemed subsequently by the mertgreen 7. The fact that the mortgages himself has purchased the property with the leave of the Court makes no difference. In the undermentioned eases, however, it was held that if the mortgages lumself is the purchaser the mortgagor's right of redemption is not affected 9 It is submitted that the latter view is not correct for two reasons -

- (1) S 60 of the Transfer of Property Act accognises the possibility of the extinguishment of the equity of redemption by its becoming vested in the mortgagee and
- (2) a decree holder who buys with the leve of the Court is in the same position as any other purchases to the encumbrances covering the property at the time inasmuch as only the mortgagor's interest passes at such a sale 11 (Compare the under mentioned cases 12 decided prior to the Transfer of Property Act in which it was held that the mortgagee s interest also passed at such a sale )

But a mortgagee decree holder who while bringing the mortgaged property to sale under a money decree fails to disclose his mortgage is estopped from asser ting his rights under the mortgage against an innocent auction purchaser 13

An application for sale made in contravention of R 14 is not one in accordance with the law within the meaning of Art 182 of the Limitation Act 14

8 Position of purchaser at such sale - See Note 7 supra

9 Attachment of the property is not prohibited

The Rule prohibits only the sale of the mortgaged property under a money decree for the mortgage debt The Rulo does not preclude the mere attachment of the property in execution of such a decree 1

10 Transferce of money decree from mortgages of bound by the restrictions against the mortgagee

Under S 49 of the Code a transferred of a decree in respect of a claim arising under the mortgage holds it subject to the equities which the judgment debtor might have enforced against the decree holder Hence the transferee of a money decree obtained by the mortgagee is bound by the restrictions imposed by this Rule against the mortgagee 1

The transferoe of a money decree not in respect of the mortgage obtained by the mortgagee against his mortgagor is not barred, under this Rule from selling the judgment debtor's causty of redemption 2 Sec Note 11, infra

Otherwise than by instituting a suit

As has been seen in Note 2 ante the effect of this Rule is that where a mortgagee has obtained a simple money decree on his mortgage he cannot bring the mortgaged proporty to sale in execution of such decree but must file a separate suit for sale in onforcement of the mortgage and such a suit would not be barred despite the provisions of O 2 R 21 A decree in a suit on the mortgage bond which does not provide for the sale of the mortgaged property is only a simple money decree though it may declare the existence of a lien on the property covered by the bond 2 On the other hand, a decree on a mortgage hond which, though O not drawn up in the form prescribed for a decree for sale, yet provides for the sale of the property in case of default by the mortgagor is not a simple money decree and R 14 is no har to the sale of the mortgaged property in execution thereof 3

The Rule applies also to usufructuary mortgages. When the mortgagee has obtained a money decree for the mortgage amount in such a case, he cannot bring the meitgiged property to sale in execution of the decree. He must bring a suit for sale for that purpose He can bring such a suit though, if he had not obtained a money decree for the mortgage amount, he could not have done so on account of the mortgane being a usufructuary one

Where a mortgageo has given up all his rights under the mortgage, the Rule is no har to the sale of the mortgaged property in execution of a money decree for the mortgage debt 5 (See Note 6, supra. foot note 3)

It has been held by the Calcutta High Court that the Rule does not apply to a suit for contribution brought by a co mortgagor who has redeemed the entire mortgage and claims a charge on the shares of the other co sharers for the proportionate amounts due by them The reason given is that such a suit is not mere suit for money but a development of the suit on the mortgage 8

Under O 33 R 13 and S 47 the charge which the Government bas on the subject matter of the suit for the Court fee payable in cases where the plaintiff has been allowed to suo as a pauper is onforceable by proceedings in execution and not by separate suit 7

13 Order 2. Rule 2

This Rule expressly provides that O 2 R 2 shall not be a bar to a second suit for sale on a mortgine when the mortgage has merely obtained a money decree on his mortgage, under which he cannot bring the mortgaged property to sale by virtue of this Rule 1 There was a conflict of decisions on this question prior to the Transfer of Property let See the undermentioned cases 3

Even after the execution of the decree for money has become time barred the most, uses can suc for sale under this Rule 3

If however the prior decree was a decree moviding for sale of the mort cased property though not strictly drawn up in the form prescribed for a decree for sale, this Rule does not apply and a second suit for sale is barred by res judicata ' (See Note 11, supra foot notes 2 and 3) Similarly if the mortgagee sues for sale hut is content to take only a simple money decree he cannot subse quently sue main for sale Such a suit will also be barred by res judicata. Tho exemption in this Rule is only from O 2, R 2 and not from S 11 "

Further this Rule icheves the mortganee only from the restrictions imposed by O 2 R 2 on the splitting of remedies The restriction as to splitting of claims is not affected by it 6 Thus a suit for interest alone brought at a time when the principal ils; hid become lue is a bir to a subsequent suit for the principal

This Rule does not apply to cases in which a decree for money is passed acquest the mortingor by consent. The rogson is that the bonefit under the Rule is intialed only for the mortgagor and so he can mane it by consenting to a money decree being passed for the mort-age imponnt 1

3 Charge

I.

A charge is defined in S 100 of the Transfer of Property Act as follows —
"Where immersable property of one person is by act of parties or operation of law made security for the payment of money to another, and the transaction does not amount to a mortiage, the latter person is said to have a charge on the moresty

The distinction between a simple mortgage and a charge is often a question of great nicety, but there is a well-marked distinction between the two, viz, that a mortgage dues and a chirge does not, involve a transfer of an interest in immoveable property. The Transfer of Property Act, S 100, now makes it clour that a charge is not enforceable agunst a bena fide transferee of the property for value without notice, while a mortgage is so enforceable? A document purporting to create a charge in future in the event of non payment of the debt does not create any charge within S 100 of the Transfer of Property Act. That section also says that all the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act applicable to simple mortgages apply also to charges. As to limitation for suits to enforce charges, see the undermentioned cases.

4 Creation of charge by operation of law

According to S 100 of the Transfer of Property Act, a charge may be created by operation of hive or by act of parties. Thus, under S 55 of that Act the voador of immoreable property has a charge on it for the unpaid purchase money. A puisno mortgage who is impleaded as a party to a suit by a prior mortgage to enforce his mortgage is entitled to a charge on the surplus sale proceeds of the property remaining after satisfaction of the prior mortgage. Under S 95 of that Act one of several co mortgagors who redeems the whole mortgage is entitled to a charge on the shares of the other co mortgagors for their respective portions of the mortgage deht. Under the Section as amended by Act XX of 1999 the redeeming co mortgagor is subrogated to the rights of the mortgage. It has been held by the Madras High Court, that where one of several co-sharers of property pays the entire Government revenue due on the land, in order to provent its sale for arrears of revenue he is entitled to a charge on the shares of the others, for their

5 Creation of charge by act of parties

No formal words are necessary to create a charge, of the intention to do so is clear from the document read as a whole 1 Thus where a Handu executed a docu ment agreeing to pay to his sister and after her death to her daughter Rs 10 per mensem from the produce of an estate, held that a charge was created on the profits of the estate for the payment of the amount 2 A charge may be created for reli gious purposes and in such cases the property descends to the hears or other repre sent itives of the donor subject to the charge for the purposes mentioned 3 Similarly a testator may make a charge on his properties for the payment of his debts 4

6 Charge under Rent Act

I charge for the payment of rent under the Bengal Tenancy Act or the Madias Estates Land Act is not such a charge as is covered by S 100 of the Transfer of Property Act.

7 Priority between rent decree and mortgage decree

It has been held by the Calcutta High Court that a purchaser in ovecution of a rout docree has pilotity over the purchaser in execution of a mortgage decree 1 But according to the High Court of Madias a sale for aircais of rent unlike a sile for arrears of revenue is not free of prior encumbrances? Even where property is sold for arroars of Government rovenue if the property is purchased by the mortangor himself the mortangee is entitled to have the property sold for the satisfaction of his mortrago debt. This is on the principle that a mortragor cannot set up against a mortgagee an incumbrance created by hunself 3

8 Invalid mortgage if creates a charge

An instrument which is intended to create a mortgage but which is invalid and fails to take effect as it does not fulfil the requirements of the law does not croate a charge 1

9 Right of maintenance

A right to maintenance is not a charge on the property out of which the muntenance is payable. But the right may be made a charge by act of parties or by a decree of Court 1 As to the procedure for recovering maintenance charged on Synopsis.

"May be required to so pay or place Payment to one of the contestants on security

I 'May be required to so pay or place at "

Where the subject-matter of the dispute is a chose in action its disposition as the Court may direct is a sufficient compliance with the Rule <sup>1</sup>. The Court has a discretion to make such orders as regards the subject-matter in dispute and the party is bound to obey the order before be can ask for any robef in the suit. This is a further condition that will be imposed upon the party to test his bona fider or disinterestedness. If he is not ready to pay or deliver the property to need the defendants but disputes his title, the suit is not an interpleader suit. But if the plaintiff complies with the order of the Court he is fully discharged from liability. Thus where the plaintiff pays the amount in dispute into Court for payment to the right person, but the Court pays it to the wrong person the plaintiff cannot be made responsible for the mistake of the Court but is fully discharged from hability.

2 Payment to one of the contestants on security

The monoy paid into Court cannot be handed over to one of the partner pending the suit even on security after the original plaintiff is discharged and one of the rival defendants to the interpleader suit is made a plaintiff. It must be kept under the control of the Court available for payment at any time to the successful partner.

1 Legislative changes -Sub S (3) s new It has been adopted from the Lughah Rule of the Supreme Court, O 57 R 7 and sni stituted for Cl (d) of the old S 473 The change expressly authorises a Court to make one of the claimants a plaintiff in lieu of or in addit on to the original plaintiff

The question whether a party to an interpleader issue shall be treated as plaintiff or defendant must be decided by the real ments of the case and not by the mere form of the issue itself 1 As to the power of a Court to add a party claiming to be interested in an intereleuder suit upon his own application see the undermentioned case 2

- suit the proper course for the Court is laid down under sub-rule (1) It is compe tent to the Court-
  - (1) to discharge the plaintiff from all liability to the claimants defendants in respect of the subject matter in dispute and dismiss him from the suit
  - (2) to direct the plaintiff to pay the amount into Court to the credit of the proper claim int after deducting his costs
    - (3) to direct the clumants defendants to apply for payment and when they appear, pake ooe of them a plaintiff and laise an issue and
    - (4) to restrain by immedian either defendant in a proper case from
  - taking any mocceding against the plaintiff 1

3 Appeal

An appeal hes from an order under this Rule Sec O 43 R 1, Cl (p) An order dismissing the interpleader suit itself! or an adjudication upon the claims of the defendants in the interpleader suit will however be a decree and appealable as such under S 96 of the Code

4 Court fee

A memorandum of appeal from an order under this Rule is chargeable with a Court fee of one tupes under Art 11 Sch II of the Court fees Act VII of 1870

A suit or a memorandum of appeal against a decree declaring the right of one defendant as against another to the money held by the plaintiff is chargeable with Court fees under Art 17 of Seh II and not under S 7 Cl (12) (c) of the Court fees Act VII of 1870 1

Agents and tenants may not institute interpleader suits

[S 474] Nothing in this Order shall be deemed to enable agents to sue their principals, or tenants to sue then landioids, for the purpose of com pelling them to interplead with any persons other than persons making claim through such principals or landlords

2 Interpleader suits by Railway Company

A Railway Company by accepting goods for carriage does not become the agent of the cousignor. It merely enters into an independent contract with the consignor. It can therefore file in interpleader suit igainst the consignor and another party claiming adversely to the consignor 1

3 Interpleader suits by tenants

The prohibition that a tenant cannot file an interpleader proceeding against his landlord is based in the principle that he cannot dispute the title of his land lord during the subsistence of the teniney in A tenint cannot therefore bing, a suit against his landlord for the purpose of compelling him to interplete with any person other than a person malin, claim through such landlord 1 Thus where i tenant passed two hal iliats in fivour of two persons in respect of the same land and then long threatened by suits is both of them, instituted a suit praying that the Court may be pleased to declare which defendant has what make in which of the disputed land and in what right the plaintiff holds which of the said lands under whom it was held by the High Court of Cilcutta that the suit was not muntainable

Where I leases certain lands to B and on I death two leasons claim tent fr in B namely 1 shear on the one hand and a person who allege, that I was only a benumidar for A whose heir ho is it has been held that the latter must be regarded as claiming through i and that therefore B can file in interpleader suit comnelling the two claimants to interplead with each other 3

Where a mortgagee does not deny an assignment by him of his rights under the bond to I but only contends that it is a voidable one the moitganor may ticat the assignee as entitled to the money and is not bound to bring an inter pleader suit compelling the mortgagee and \ to interplead with each other "

1 Special case

This Order lays down the rules of procedure in respect of the statement of special case, its hearing, and other matters connected therewith and generally referred to in S 90 of the Code Rr 1 and 2 prescribe the form and contents of an agreement to state a case. So far as possible, facts should be stated in a chronological order and in the form of a narrative Material documents should be referred to, and their effect or contents stated The statement must conclude with a formulation of the question to be decided by the Court and must be signed by the parties and their coursed if any 1 Where the agroement is duly entered into and filed in the Court having jurisdiction, the proceeding will be registered as a suit and heard and disposed of as such See Rr 2 to 5

Rule 5 enacts that the Court hearing a special case must be satisfied on three points —

1 That the parties have a hour fide interest in the question stated —

The right to state a case for the opinion of the Court is not, therefore intended to enable parties to refer to the Court any hymothetical questions or matters of mere academic interest involving no substantial interest to the parties. The Court will not, therefore, interface in a case where the parties have not provided in the agreement for an underlaking for payment of monoy, delivery of property, or the done or the refruintial from doing of any particular act in the event of a finding by the Court as required by R 13

That the case is fit to be decided—A case is not fit to be decided unless the successful party will be the other to occur the decree or based a suit upon the decree passed in it. Where there are special tribunds to try the question between the parties is for example a question relating, to the adequate provision by a municipal coporation for the supply of water and for the protection against fire as regards an extre owned by a Port Trust, a special case cannot be streted for the opinion of the Court. Nor will a mere declaration of the rights involved in such a case be a fit point for a special case. So also a question which the Court is not competent to decide in an ordinary sign cannot be stated as a special case.

For instances of questions that can be strited as a special case, see the undermentioned cases 6

As to the 1c opening of a decided special case see S 90 Note 2 and the undermentioned cases?

2 Scope and applicability of the Rule

The provisions of this Order are merely rules of precedure to be applied after the plaint is admitted. They do not alter in any way the nature of the suit of the jurisdiction of Courts <sup>1</sup> Consequently, suite can only be filed in the Courts which have jurisdiction to try them <sup>1a</sup> If they do not happen to be Courts to which the provisions of this Order have been applied under Cl. (a) of this Rule, the suit will have to be tried in the ordinary manner <sup>2</sup>

Section 192, Cl (a) of the Madras Estates Land Act, 1908, excludes the applicability of this Order to suits appeals and other proceedings under that Act

3 Courts of Small Causes

By virtue of O 51 infra this Order will not apply to Prosidency Small Cause Centra save as other use provided by the Presidency Small Cause Centra Act XV of 1882 Under S 9 of the latter Act the High Court may, from time to time, presentle the procedure to be followed by the Small Cause Court and may, there fore, extend the Rules of this Order also to such Courts As regards the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act IX of 1887 read with O 50 of this Cede, makes it clear that this Order will apply to such Courts it the conditions mentioned in this Rule are satisfied. In other words, if a Provincial Small Cause Courts as Court is a Court country within Cl (d) of this Rule, it can follow the procedure provided by this Order but not otherwise.

Where a Small Cause Court has exclusive jurisdiction in a smit, the fact that the Court has no power under this Order to try it summarily will not enable the suit being filed in some other Court which has such power. The only proper course is to file the suit in the ordinary way in that Small Cause Court 1

A Subordinate Judge who is presiding over an ordinary Sub Court but who is excressing Small Cause powers cannot at that time he taken to be exercising his original jurisdiction and cannot, therefore, try suits summarily on the ground of his being a Subordinate Judge <sup>2</sup>

2 Summary Suits and Ordinary Suits

The Rule is only an enabling provision. A plaintiff wishing to enforce a bill of exchange a hundr or a promissory note may at his option bring a summary suit under this Order or a suit under the ordinary Diocedure A summary suit. however can only be brought in the Courts mentioned in R 1 and within one year from the date when the debt becomes due 1. But the corresponding advantage to the plaintiff choosing this procedure is that the defendant is not entitled as of right to be heard in defence. He must apply for leave within 10 days of the service of summons upon him2 and if he does not apply for such leave or if the leave is refused the plaintiff is entitled to a decree

Suits under the Madias Littles Lind Act (I of 1908) are not soverned by Sec S 192 A of the Act this Order

3 Form of summons in summary suit

See Form No 4 of Appendix B infra Where the High Court of Madias framed Rules under S 9 of the Presidency S nall Cause Courts Act XV of 1882 prescribing the form of summons in summary suits under that Act, it was hold that the fixing of 3 days thereon as the time within which the defendant should apply for leave to defend was unreasonable and ultra vires 1

At present, therefore, a summary suit whether under this Order or under S 128 of the Code should be filed within one year from the date when the debt becomes payable or when the property becomes recoverable 2

SUMMARY PROCEDURE ON NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS

I.

The High Court of Bombay has held that a defendant who has obtained no leave to appear and defend the snit under this Rule, cannot be allowed to participate in the trial of the suit and that, therefore, he cannot appear at tho hearing and ask the Court to make the decree amount payable in instalments 1 But the High Court of Rangoon has taken a contrary view that the defendant is entitled to be heard on such a question whether or not he has obtained leave to appear or to defend the suit 10

Where in a summary suit against a firm under O 30 of the Code a partner enters appearance he should obtain leave to defend as required by this Rule 2 Before granting a decree under this Rule the Court should be satisfied that the defendant has had full opportunity to obtain leave to defond 3

6 Allegations in the plaint shall be deemed to be admitted

This clause is new and has been substituted for the explanation contained in the old section. It embedies an exception to the fundamental principle that a plaintiff must prove the case with which he comes to Court and dispenses with such proof in view of the special nature of the documents mentioned in the Rule 1

The effect of this provision is that in the special class of suits under consideration, where leave is not applied for or is applied for and refused the plaintiff gets a decree without adducing any evidence but on mere proof of sorvice of summons? The admission as regards the allegations in the plaint mentioned in this Rule does not apply to interest as to which there is a specific provision in suh rule 2. clause (a) 3 Thus, where in a summary suit on a hundi, which did not contain any agreement for interest the plaintiff claimed in the plaint interest at the rate of 33 1/3 per cent per annum it was held that the interest claimed could not be deemed to have been admitted and the Court could award interest only at the rate of 6 per cent per annum under S 80 of the Negotiable

2 The provi o to the Rule is new and is similar to R 38 of O 21

The provision for the examination of the unbleant which occurred 115 4 8 of the old Code has been quutted See Note a Lelow

2 Scope of the Rule and of the Order

The normal temedy available to a creditor having a demand aprinst his debtor is to first obtain a decree a minst him and then to affect him of to attach his property in execution of that deerer under the provisions of O 21 Under special circumstances however which he specified in this Bule and R > infia, the creditor can take out airest or attachment against his debter oven before judg The object of such a provision is to prevent inviatempt on the part of the defendant to defeat the realisation of the decree that may be passed against him

Before the creditor can resort to the extraordinary procedure provided by this Rule he must show that there is good ierson to believe that the debtor is about to deput from the musdiction of the Court of to male away with his pro-(See Note a infra) The Rule will not enable him to take out arrest before judgment merely because it would seems easy execution of the decree 1

3 Distinction between Cls (a) and (b)

In order to apply Cl (a) it is necessary to show that the defending has committed on is about to commit in of the acts specified therein with intent to delay the plaintiff or to avoid the process of the Court or to obstruct or delay the execution of any decree that may be passed against him! No such intention need be proved in cases coming under Cl (h) It is only necessity to show that the circumstances under which the defendant is about to leave British India afford a reasonable probability that the plaintiff will be obstituted or delived in realism, his decree 2

Affording reasonable probability > ( \ 1 3 abox

Is satisfied by affidavit or otherwise Unler 5 178 of the old Code the Comit could assue a will int to urest the defendant before undersent where after any remember applicant and making such further investigation as it thinks fit it is satisfied that the defendant has commit ted or is about to commit any of the acts specified in Cls (a) and (b) 1. This provision has now been constited and the Court can without any such examination or investigation act under this Rule if it is satisfied by affidavit or otherwise of the existence of the circumstances specified in those clauses. Before the Court can act under this Rule it must have acison to believe on adequate materials, that, unless the jurisdiction is excissed there is real damper that the defendant will remove himself or his property from the unbit of the powers of the Court 12 Order 38 Rule 1-Note 2 See (1897) 11 Cul 635 [ 02)]

Where there was reason to behave that the defendants were removing goods and selling them at less than cost price, and that they were evading arrest without furnishing any security, it was held the Rule was properly applied to the case <sup>2</sup>. Bu, where the defendant had to leave his place of residence for attendance in a criminal Court, it was held that the departure could not be said to be with a new to delay the plaintiff or to avoid the process of the Court or to obstruct or delay execution and that therefore an order under this Rule should not be passed <sup>3</sup>

6 Suit must be hone fide

Before exercising the powers conferred by this Rule a Court should be satisfied that the plaintiff's suit is bona fide' and that his cause of action is prima facte an unimpeachable one subject to his proving the allegations made in the plaint?

Where the plaintiff is indisputably entitled to a part of his claim the mere circumstance of the rest of the claim heing of a disputable character does not render the suit mala fide.

7 To show cause why he should not furnish security for his appearance

Where the Court issues a warrant of arrest against the defendant, he is entitled to show cause against his arrest. The cause must be either that he is not going to leave the jurisdiction of the Court or not for so long a time as will obstruct or tend to obstruct the plaintiff should be succeed or that the suit is not bona fide one or that even if it is the institution of it has been evantously delayed till the defendant is about to depart in order to embarrass or coerce him.

1 Security

In a suit for the recovery of Rs 29 508 the plaintiff obtained a warrant for arrest of the defending but the warrant directed the warrant officer to demand Rs 10,000 and if the sum was not paid then, to arrest him. The defendant did not pay the amount and was arrested and brought before the Court It was held that the Court should limit the security to he aren to Bs 10 000 as per terms of the notice in the warrant and not to order security to be given for amount claimed in the suit 1

2 Deposit not open to rateable distribution - See the last paragraph of Note 4 to S 73

3 Deposit by defendant-Effect of insolvency

Money or other property deposited by a defendant arrested before judg ment sufficient to answer the claim is earmarked for the suit and is subject to the hen of the plaintiff in the event of his success. Consequently if the defendant becomes insolvent the plaintiff is entitled to appropriate it to the exclusion of the Official Receiver and other creditors But a security given for the appearance of the defendant in Court whenever called upon cannot be said to be to the credit of the suit of earmarked to the general purposes of the suit 1

Or to furnish security for his appearance

Where a judgment debtor was released on furnishing security for his appearance on a certain day and the surety executed a bond for the due perfor mance of the decree on failure of the judgment debtor to satisfy it it was held that the bond was not in accordance with the Court's order and the surety was dis charged from his responsibility on the appearance in Court of the judgment debtor on the specified day 1 Where on an application by the plaintiff for arrest of the defendant a pleader appeared on behalt of the latter and stood bail and thercupon the defendant was not arrested it was held that the surety could not be allowed afterwards to contend that the security was illegal by reason of the fact that the defendant was not arrested 2

5 Extent of surety's hability

The security to be furnished under this Rule is for the appearance of the defendant while the suit is pending and until satisfaction of any decree that may be passed against him. But the fact that the surety bond went beyond the terms of this Rule and provided for the jayment of the amount claimed in the suit in the event of a decree being passed against the defendant will not render the bond unenforceable 1. Nor will a surety tor the appearance of the defendant, be relieved of his obligation merely because the decree is a compromise decree instead of being Order 38 Rule 2-Note 1

The object of the security bond under this Rule is merely to seeme the rights of the judgment-creditor. The Government is not interested in the proceedings in any way. On the failure of the defendant to appear as required the Court cannot suo modu make an order forfeiting the bond and direct him to pay the whole of the maximum sum therein stipulated to Government. The enforcement of the bond should only be made on the application of the judgment creditor and then only to the extent of the sum of money found payable under the decree?

1 Legislative changes

The following are the material changes effected in this Rule -1 The words 'or has quitted the pura-diction of the Court leaving therein property belonging to him ' which formed part of S. 483, Cl (b) of the old Code have been

2 The Irovision for the examination of the applicant which occurred in S 484 of the old Code has been omitted

2 Scope object and applicability of the Rule.

Is about to dispose of the whole

The object for the provisions for arrest and attachment before judgment is to tree it my attempt on the part of the defendant to defeat the realization of the decree that may be passed against him 1 It follows that the Rule applies only where the defendant is about to dispose of, or remove from the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court, his properties, and not to cases where he has already disposed of them 2 It is also necessary, before the Rule can be applied, to show that the defendant has acted, or is about to act with the intent to obstruct or delay the execution of any decree that may be passed against him 3

The Rule applies, in terms, to suits An application to enforce an award under paragraph 20 of the second schedule to the Code, when numbered and registered as a suit, becomes a suit for the purposes of this Order and the Court can pass an order for attachment before judgment under this Rule 1 It has been held by the High Court of Lahore that this Rule may be applied to proceedings other than suits by virtue of S 141 of the Code, and that therefore a liquidation Court dealing with the proceedings under the Companies Act can make an order under this Rule for attachment before judgment 5 According to the High Court of Calcutta an attachment before sudgment is a matter of relief and not of procedure 8 It would seem to follow from this that S 141 under which the procedure provided in the Code in regard to suits should be followed in other proceedings also, will not enable the Court to apply this Rule to such proceedings

An application under this Rule should specify the property to be attached and the estimated value thereof, an application generally for security being taken for the satisfaction of any decree that may be passed, without specifying any property is not one falling within the scope of the Rule In the undermentioned case where an application for injunction was made to restrain the defendant from withdrawing certain amounts standing to his credit, it was held that the order issued thereon really amounted to an attachment before judgment

The Court can pass orders under this Rule even if the trial of the suit has been staved under S 10 of the Code (See Note 12 to S 10, ante) As to whether the Court has power in cases not covered by this Rule, to pass orders for attach. ment hefore judgment, see Note 2 to S 94

The provisions of the Code relating to attachment before judgment apply to all proceedings referred to in S 265 (3) of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act (VI of 1908) and in S 16 of the Bengal Rent Act (VI of 1862)

3 Mortgage suits

The provisions of this Rule are not mapplicable to mortgage suits. Where there is a reasonable probability of the mortgaged property being insufficient to discharge the mortgage debt and of the mortgagee being entitled to get a personal decree in his favour for the halance, properties of the defendant other than those covered by the mortgage can be attached before judgment under this Rule, if the requirements of the Rule are satisfied 1 The Courts should, however act with extremo caution in such cases 2 judgment is a matter of relief, not of procedure, that therefore in livorce cases to which the Divorce Act, 1869 is applicable the Court is to be suided by $ 7 of that Aot and that it cannot pass an order under this Rule for attrichment before udgment 1

5 Application for leave to sue in forma pauperis

It has been held in the case cited below that an application to suc in forms pauper is does not become a suit until the same has been granted, and that consequently, the Court has no jurisdiction to make an order for attachment before judgment under this Rule 1 The decision does not however, advert to the applica bility or otherwise of S 141 in such cases

  - 10 Power of Insolveney Court to attach properties

Under S 21, Cl (2) of the Provincial Insolvency Act 1920, the Iusolvency

Court can attach the property of the debtor under circumstances similar to those specified in this Rule Where the Court is satisfied

Under 9 484 of the old Code the Court could issue an older for attachment

before judgment where efter examining the applicant and making any further investigation which it thought fit it was satisfied that the defendant had removed or was about to remove or dispose of his property with the intention of obstructing or delaying the execution of any decree that may be passed against him provision has now been omitted and the Comt can, without any such examination or investigation act under this Rule if it is satisfied by affidant or otherwise of the existence of the specified circumstances

The purisdiction of Courts in attaching property before judgment is of an extraordinary nature and should be exercised spainaly and strictly in accordince with the procedure prescribed by the Code 1 The Court should be satisfied on two points namely -

- (1) that the defendant is about to dispo e of the whole or part of his
- property, and (2) that the disposal is with the intention of obstructing or deliving the
- execution of any decree that may be passed against him 2 absolute right to isk for attachment Note 4

Is about to dispose of the whole or any part of his property

Before excreising purediction under this Rule and passing orders for the ittachment of properties before ind ment the Court should satisfy itself of the practical certainty of the plaintiff's success and of the existence of a grave danger and of a real fear that a dishonest defendant, undoubtedly hable as making away with the probable fruits of the jud_ment 1 For this purpose it is not sufficient to merely allege that the defendant is likely to dispose of the property. Nor is it sufficient to state that ho is about to dispose it of, without stating the sources of such information ' Pho word property 'includes property of every description whether moverble or immoverble and whether in the possession of the defendant or of some other terson on his behalf. It includes a debte of a chose in action But the debt must be one that is accrum, or has accound a Joint property belonging to a partnership of which the judgment debtor is a member is not the property of the judgment debtor and cannot be attached before judgment under this Rule with intent to obstruct or delay

The Court must be satisfied not only that the defendant is about to dispose of his proporty or to remove it from the jurisdiction of the Court but also that his object in so doing, is to obstruct or delay the execution of any decree that may be passed against him 1 Such an intention cannot be inferred merely from the fact that the defendant has entered into an agreement to sell a Portion of his proporty or that he has actually alienated a portion of his properties of that he has allowed his properties to be sold in execution of decrees or for arreads of lovenue or that he is running into debts or is attempting to secure debts already incurred by oxecuting a most ago in respect thereof ' \ man is not debarred from dealing

17 Properly situated outside jurisdiction

As has been seen in Note 7 to 8 136 ante there was a conflict of decisions under the old Code as to whether a Court could statch before judgment property situate outside its jurisdiction. But in view of the omission in the present section of the words, within the jurisdiction of the Court, in no row order the attackment of properties whether stuated within or without its jurisdiction? In the latter case the proper procedure for attackment is to transmit the order to the Court in whose jurisdiction the property is situate?

See Note 5 to 8 64 and Note 11 to 0 21, R 54. An ittachment of pioperty involves the ittachment of the profits of that property, but the creditor does not thereby become entitled to such profits. The debtor who collects such profits cannot be called upon to account for the profits received by hm. An attachment of a debt, does not prevent the creditor from suing for the debt. See also Note 16 to 0.21, R 46. An attachment before judgment without complying with the provisions of R 5 is altra arres and does not come in the way of an alternation product such attachment.

19 Money deposited into Court in pursuance of the attachment, if liable to rateable distribution

Where mones and movables his attached before judgment by several redditors in various suits and they are reclized by Court before any of them his obtained a decree, they should be held to the excit of all the suits and distributed rateably among all the creditors who have obtained decrees, before any of the others apply for payment. Attachment before judgment does not give any priority over another who attaches in execution and applies for payment. Money paid by a surety after the decree holder takes out execution is also hable to rateable distribution. See also Notes to O. 21 R. 22 and Note 4 to S. 73.) Where however, property attached before judgment is released on the defendant giving security of some of the items attached before judgment is released on the defendant giving security of some of the items attached the plaintiff on obtaining the decree is entitled to a preferredual right and on execute against the security.

20 Vesting order in insolvency how affects attachment before judgment

Where the property of the defendant is attached before judgment and subsequently the defendant becomes isoslvent, the attachment will not give any priority to the plaintiff over the Official Receiver or Official Assigned in respect of such properties. If the defendant pays money into Court as security for issing the attachment and subsequently becomes insolveet, the plaintiff will not got any charge over the money as against the Official Assignee. (See also Notes 10 and 14 to 9 64 and the case noted I clow?)

21 Right of survivorship if defeated by attachment

There is a conflict of opinion as to the effect of attachment before judgmoot on the right of survivorship among members of a joint Huddi Yuni). Locarding to the High Courts of Dombry and Patar where the judgment debtor dies after in titlehment before judgment but before it is converted into an ittachment in execution the right of survivorship would provail over the attrohment. In High Court of Madras his dissented from the said view ind has held that as soon as a decree is presed in the sit the attachment before judgment would operate so is to defeat the judic of survivorship and that it is not necessary that any steps need.

22 Liability for wrongful attachment

The scheril principle is that it is not an actionable wrong to institute Civil Proceedings. But proceedings taken for the arrest of the defendant of for the attachment of his property form an exception to the general rule and a suit is maintunable for damages for wrongful viest or attachment. In such a suit the plantiff must show that the defendant was instituted by malice, that the 110 ceedings were nithout reasonable and probable cause and that damages have been sustained thereby. It should also be shown that the attachment was withdrawn in plantiff statour. The General and special damages may be awarded according to the circumstances of the case.

The cause of action for the suit is the date of the wrongful seizure and not the date when the seizure is declared wrongful  $^4$

23 Conditional attachment

'Conditional attachment' means an immediate attachment of a previsional kind conditioned to become plenary if security should not be furnished or cause shown according to the terms of the order? The power given by O 38 R 8 to make an alternative order directing the defendant within a specified time to furnish security or to appear and show cause carries with it sa an incident the power to confirm the order that security be furnished? A conditional order of attachment cannot be made without at the same time making an order directing the defendant to furnish security or to show cause why he should not furnish security without such an order the order of attachment will be invalid. A conditional order of attachment produced the appearance of a successful control order of attachment produced to the appearance of a successful control order of attachment will be an application for the appearance of a subsequently comes and states that he is unwilling to at? When after a conditional order is passed under this Rule the surt is transferred to another Court the latter Court can press further necessary orders in the matter?

A conditional order has effect only till the defendant shows cause or furnishes security 6

This Rule contemplates orders of two kinds -

- 1 An unconditional order directing attachment under Cl 1 on the defendant's failure to furnish security or to show cause against the order for security, and
  - 2 An order withdrawing a conditional attachment made under R 5 on the defendant furnishing security or showing cause

Both these orders are appealable under O 43, R 1 (q)1 but an order directing security to be furnished is not appealable. Similarly where on an application for attachment under R 5 the Court issued notice to the defendant without ordering any conditional attachment and on the defendant's showing cause, in answer to the notice the Court dismissed the application, it was held that the order of dismissal was not one under Cl 2 of this Rule and is therefore not appealable 3 But where the defendant appears in inswer to the cotice and gives an undertaking not to alionate certain properties and the petition is thereupon closed, it has been held by the High Court of Midris that there is an order goder this Rule from which an appeal lies 4

In appeal against an order directing attachment before judgment is not restricted to the grounds mentioned in Rule 5 aute and this Rule. Thus the question whether a certain property can be attached having regard to the provisions of S 60 aute, can be rused in the appeals to order passed under this Rule is a discretionary order and therefore, an appellate Court ought not to interfore with the exercise of the discretion by the first Court, unless it is extissed that it acted on wrong principles. The mere fact that the inpellate Court might have tallen a different view is not a sufficient ground for interference "

An appeal against an order of attachment before judgment under this Rule does not become infructuous merely because of a decree having been passed in favour of the plaintiff

This Rule provides that the attachment before judgment shall be made in the manner provided for the attachment of property in execution of a decree 1c, in the manner provided in O 21 1a

Thus an attachment before judgment of immoveable property must be effected in the manner provided by O 21 R 14 by a prohibitory order Where no such order is passed or published there is no legal attachment 1 Similarly an attachment before sudement of a debt must be made in the manner prescribed by O 21 R 46 and as in cases under that Rule the Court cannot enquire into the truth or genuineness of the debt 3 Sec also Note 7 to O 21 R 46

Where there is no positive evidence that the attachment was not effected in accordance with the law the Court should give effect to the presumption regarding the regularity of official acts 5 Sec S 114 of the Lyidence 1ct Note 3 to S 64 and Note 5 to O 21 R 24

This does not mean, however, that where the suit is dismissed that attach ment continues in the absence of an order of withdrawal. Even without any such order, where the suit is dismissed, the attachment before judgment, like all other ancillary and interim orders in the proceedings falls with it and is not revived by the subsequent restoration of the suit or by the dismissal being rever ed in appeal 1. On the same principle when a suit abates, the attachment ceises and the subsequent setting aside of the abatement has not the effect of neviving the attachment2 The High Court of Midnas has held that this principle does not, however, upply to a case where the suit is dismissed for default and that on the restoration of the suit the order for attachment before judgment is also restored and the party is entitled to have the benefit of it 23

1 Rights of third persons not affected by attachment before judgment

An attachment before judgment does not affect the rights of persoos not parties to the suit Thus a stranger to whom the property has been transferred before attrehment or a receiver of the property who is not a party to the suit is not affected by the attachment. Where an agreement for sale has been en tered into in respect of a property before the attachment thereof the right of the purchaser to have the conveyance executed is not affected by the attachment's A puisne mortgagee has a charge over the surplus sale proceeds in Court after the property was sold at the iostance of the prior mortgages. He is not affected by an attachment before judgment effected subsequent to the mortgage

2 Other decree holders right to execute their decree not affected

It has been seen to Note 5 to S 64 and Note 11 to O 21 R 54 that an attachment does not confer any title charge hen or pilority in the property in favour of the person attaching it 18 It will not therefore provent the property from being attached and sold in execution of any other decree against the same judgment debtor 1 Where A attaches before judgment money deposited in Court to satisfy Bs doctee he does not thereby got any right or title to the money and cannot al ply to the Court holding the money for payment Ho must apply for execution of I is decree and for transfer of the money to his one suit

The words upon an application for the execution of such decree to apply for a relationment of the property" have been substituted for the words to re attach property in execution of such decree " The words 'upon in application make it clear that after decree the plaintiff must apply like any other execution creditor

2 Scope of the Rule

Where an attachment before judgment has been made, the decice passed in the suit does not determine the attachment. It, therefore, continues to temain in force in the absence of a specific order of the Court raising it 1 Upon an application for execution of the decree, it is not necessity to re-attach the properties 2

But as has been seen in Note 10 to S 73 an attachment before judgment confers no right on the party who obtains the attachment, and he will not thereby become entitled to get rateable distribution under S 73 unless like other decree holders, he applies for execut on after getting his decico 3

3 Re-attachment if operates as waiver of attachment

If an attachment is made before judgment it does not terminate with the decree unless there is proof of an intention on the part of the plaintiff to abandon The more fact that the properties were se attached after judgment is no proof of such abandonment 1

4 Objection that property is not attachable can be raised after decree

When attachment before undement is asked for the defendant is not bound to take exception to the validity of the attachment on the ground the property is malienable Ho could take such objection whom an application is made for execution of the decree passed in the suit 1

Is his been seen in the Notes to S 7 ante, that before Act I of 1926 was passed it had been held that an attachment of immoveable property before judg ment could be passed by a Small Causo Court This Rule newly introduced in this Order now makes it clear that such an order cannot now be passed by a Small Cuse Court 2

It bis been held in the undermentioned case3 that Act I of 1926 operates restrospectively and that an order for conditional attachment before judgment mide before the let came into force cannot be confirmed and made absolute after the Act came into force

In the last paragraph of the Rnle the words for refuse such injunction or other order) which occurred at the end of the old section have been omitted and the words until disposal of the suit or until further orders have been newly added

2 Injunctions temporary and perpetual

An injunction is a judicial process whereby a party is required to do, or to refrain from doing any particular act 1 It is in the nature of a preventive relief granted to a litigant quia timet : c. because he fears future possible injury 2 Its main purpose is to preserve the subject matter of the suit in status and for the time being 3

Injunctions are of two kinds temporary and perpetual. A perpetual injunc t on restrains a party for ever from doing the act specified. It is regulated by So 54 to 57 of the Specific Rehef Act I of 1877 and can be granted only by a decree passed after the hearing of the suit on the merits. A temporary injunction, on the other hand enures only until the disposal of the suit in which it is granted or until the further orders of Court It is regulated by the provision of O 39 of the Codes and can be granted on an interlecutory application at any stage of the Although temporary injunctions are regulated by the Code the general principles governing their grant have been hold to be the same as those governing the grant of perpetual injunctions,6 though in the undermentioned case, the rule was held to be too broadly stated An injunction whether temporary or perpetual, compelling a party to do a particular act is called a mandatory injunction. In a Bomhay case 8 Beaman J doubted whether a mofussil Court in India had nower to issue a temporary injunction in a mandatory form. Such a power has, however, heen recognized in the undermentioned cases

3 Scape and principle of the Rule

This Rule lays down the circumstances under which a tempolary injunction cin be granted 1 and unless those circumstances exist, a Court has no jurisdiction to grant it 2 But the fact that these culcumstances exist does not compel the Court to grant it in all cases masmuch as the Rule only says that in the cases mentioned therein the Court may grant an injunction. Thus the granting of an Injunction under the Rule 1s purely within the discretion of the Court This Order 39 R 1-Note 2 8 (1315) 131 Low 44 (4) S3 low 531 1 (S-a lase (1933) 1933 Lab 48 (50) An order 9 (1931) 1931 Low 13 (1930)

exercised in accordance with reason and on sound judicial principles 4

on the facts before the Court there is a probability of his being entitled to the relief asked for hy him

Secondly that the Court's interference is necessary to protect him from that species of injury which the Court calls irreparable before his legal right can be established on trial, and

Thirdly that the comparative mischief or inconvenience which is likely to issue from withholding the injunction will be giester than that which is likely to mise from granting it

The power to grant temporary injunctions under O. 39 extends to an appellate Court in regard to appeals pending before it <sup>18</sup> The provisions of O 39 apply also to proceedings in liquidation <sup>19</sup>

Has a Court inherent jurisduction to grant a temporary injunction? It has been held that the inherent jurisduction of the High Courts, as Courts of Equity, to grant such injunctions independently of the Civil Procedure Code, is beyond ill doubt <sup>20</sup> (See also Notes under Note No 22, infia) As regards other Courts there is a conflict of opinion for which, see Note 2 to S 94, ante and the undermentioned cases. <sup>21</sup>

4 Applicability of the Rule to probate proceedings

It has been held by the High Court of Bombay that the Rule does not upply to probate proceedings on the ground that the provisions of the Probate and Administration Act 1891, indicate the intection of the Legislature that that let itself should be looked to, for the powers necessary for the proper custody of property pending the proceedings instead of leaving the Court to act under the Civil Procedure Codo! The High Court of Calcutta has held that, assuming that the provisions of O 39 apply to such cases, there could be no "property to dispute" in such a proceeding and that, therefore, no influention can be issued under this Rule, though, in proper cases, the Court could act under R 7, infra*

5 'Any properly in dispute in a suit '

The Rule contemplates eases where the property in dispute in a suit is to danger of being wasted, damaged, etc. "Property in dispute in the suit" means only such property is in the subject-matter of the suit. For cases of suits for partition of joint estates see the undermentioned cases?

6 In danger of being wasted damaged or alienated by any porty to the suit '

An injunction cin be granted under this Rule only if there is a real danger of the subject matter of the sub being wasted, or damaged, etc. by a party to the suit. Where there is oo allegation of danger of such waste or [See 140 [1932] 1932 Rom [16, 1167] 2, [1933] 1932 Rab [23] [62])

In order to show that property is in danger of being alienated, some overt act towards the alienation of the properties such for example as negotiations or offers for sale should be alleged and

An injunction can be grinted to restrain a party from proceeding with undicial proceedings (other than execution proceedings) pending in the same or in another Court if such injunction is necessary to provent multiplicity of proceedings and not otherwise 1 It can be issued even in respect of proceedings pending in a foreign Court if the party to be so restrained resides within the jurisdiction of the Court assuing the injunction In Madras however it has been held that such a power exists only in the High Court under its equity jurisdiction and not in the mofus-il Courts ' Speaking generally, a civil Court in the mofussil, cannot issue

As regards proceedings in execution of a decree, it is clear that the High Courts have the power under their courty inrisdiction to restrain a party by a temporary injunction from executing his deeree in another Court of even coordinate jurisdiction But the mofussil Courts have no such power unless the case comes within the terms of O 39. Rr 1 and 2 or unless they could act noder their inherent powers. As to whether and where the Court can restrain a party from taking such proceedings under the provisions of O 39, Rr 1 and 2, see Note 3 above and also the undermentioned eases 7 As to the inherest powers of the Court to grant temporary injunctions, see Note 2 to S 94, ante

Courts cannot be too careful as to the mode in which their machinery 19 used to delay a decree holder in another suit in obtaining the fruits of his decree 8 Consequently re injunction in respect of a judicial proceeding should not be issued except in strong cases or neless the facts fall within the express provisions of O 39 9

A permanent injunction can, of course, be granted under the provisions of the Specific Relief Act restraining a party from proceeding with the execution of a decree in neother Court 10

10 'Wronefully sold in execution of a decree"

The provisions of this Rule will not apply unless the property is in danger of being wron fully sold in execution of a decree A obtains a decree against B and in execution thereof proceeds to sell properties belonging to B B thereupon files a suit for a declaration that the decree is not binding on him for various neasons He also prays for a temporary injunction under this Rule Does such an application lio? No The reason is that until the decree is set aside it is binding on the parties thereto, and I has every right to execute it. There is thus no danger of property being wrongfully sold in execution of the decree 1 But suppose A, in execution of a decree obtained by bim against B, attaches or otherwise proceeds against properties which belong to C, and the latter, thereupon, files a suit for declaration of his rights thereto and prays for a temporary injunction restraining 4 from executing his decree This is a case of properties being wrongfully sold in execution of a decree and the application for injunction is maintainable under this Rule 2 The words "or wrongfully sold in execution of a decree were deleted from sub rule (1) by the Allahabad High Court by rules framed under S 122 of the Code with the result that an application under this Rule was held not maintainable in Allahabad on the ground that any property is in danger of being wrong. fully sold in execution of a decree 3 The said words have, howover, now been restored See also the Local Amendments for Rangoon, Nagpur and Oudh

In granting injunctions restruining siles in execution Courts should exer case their discretion cautiously and wisely, and see that the machinery of the Court is not abused for fraudulent purposes?

A Court is not debarred from restraining a party in cases covered by Rr 1 and 2 from executing his decree in another Court merely by reason of the fact that such Court is of a superior grade to that of the Court which issues the injunction masmuch as the latter Court has prisdiction over the suit and to pass orders on all interlocutors applications a

An injunction can be granted against persons within the Court's jurisdiction restraining them from doing acts outside jurisdiction though it will not be granted unless the remedy is likely to be an effective one 22

An injunction will not also be ordinarily granted against a person residing outside the jurisdiction of the Court granting it, and against whom the order cannot be enforced within that Court's misdiction & Where, however, the order can be so enforced, or, where the person has submitted to the jurisdiction of the Court, it can be issued against him. No injunction will ordinarily he issued against Government Officers long fide exercising rights or alleged rights in the course of their duty, of nor against public hodies under similar circumstances, unless it would amount to a manifest injury to refuse to do so 8

An injunction does not run with the land and cannot, therefore, avail against property in the hands of a purchaser 9 But when it has been issued against a defendant it can, if the defendant dies, he enforced against his legal representatives 10

An injunction can be granted against a co-owner or a co sharer in possession restraining him from using the property in a manner which will change the nature of the property 11 Great caution should, however, be exercised in such cases 12

2 Scope and principle of the Rule

This Rule deals with the grant of injunctions in a particular class of cases not covered by the provisions of R 1, tiz, cases of apprehended breach of contract or other injury of any kind. Where therefore, there is no such apprehended breach of contract or other injury of any kind, this Rule will not apply.

As has been seen in Note 2 to R I above, the general principles governing the grant of temporary injunctions is the same as those governing the grant of perpetual injunction. Now S 56 Cl (f), of the Specific Relief Act, 1877, provides that an injunction cannot be granted to prevent the breach of a contract the performance of which would not be specifically enforced, and under S 2I Cl (a) of that Act, a contract will not be specifically enforced when the non performance of it can be adequately compensated for, by the award of damages. This therefore furnishes an important test to see whether temporary injunction should be granted in cases of breaches of contract. Further the general principles governing the grant of an injunction under R 1, also govern the grant of an injunction under this Rule. Thus—

(i) Refore the granting of an injunction under this Rule the Court

(t) Before the guantug of an unjunction under this Rule the Court should be satisfied that the plaintiff has a prima face case 2 that the Court's interference is necessary to protect him from irreparable or at least serious injury 2 that the balance of convenience is in favour of the applicant 25 and that there is no other sufficient.

3 Injunction to restrain breach of contract

Pending a suit relating to a contract, the Court can, under this Rule, grant an injunction restraining the commission of any act which will involve a breach of the contract 1 Before such injunction is granted, however, the applicant must satisfy the Court that there is a completed contract under which he has acquired a right2 and that erreparalle enjury will be sustained by him unless the injunction 13 granted 3 Further, as has already been noticed under the provious Note, no in anction will be granted in respect of a contract of which specific performance will be refused Thus.

Where the defendant alleges a breach of contract and refers the matter to arbitration under a provision contained in the contract, and the plainth thereupon files a suit attacking the contract and asks for an injunction restraining the arbitration proceedings pending disposal of the suit, the injunction asked for will not be granted if the suit is based on a denial of the existence of the contract, but will be granted if the suit is based on an attack of the contract on equitable grounds like fraud or misiepiesentation on the put of the other party.

4 Or other injury of any kind

Under the old Code, the words of any kind were absent. It was held by the High Court of Allahabad that the word 'njury' referred only to injuries akin to beaches of contract and that, therefore, no injunction could be granted in respect of other kinds of injury such as trespies or nuisance. The addition of the words of any kind after the words 'or other injury in the present section, makes it clear that an injunction can be granted to restrain any kind of legal injury. The word injury connotes an act or omission contrary to law, resulting in an infringement of a right vested in a person. Thus an infringenment of a copyright or of a

5 Grant of injunction on terms

Sub rule (2) empowers the Court in grunting injunctions to impose such conditions as it deems necessary. Thus it may cill for an undertaking from the plaintiff that he will able by any order which the Court may make as to damage. I or where the plaintiffs are a foreign firm and do not carry on business in British India it is reasonable that they should be nut on terms.

6 Disobedience of injunction Effect-See also Note 18 to Rule 1

A disobedience of an order of injunction is a contempt of Gourt Sub rulo (3) confers on Courts the power to punish such contempt and further prescribes the punishment to be awaided therefor. While the High Courts as Courts of record have inherent jurisdiction to commit for contempt, the other Courts have no such power apart from the provisions of this Rule?

The provisions of the sub rule apply not only to disobedience of an order issued under Cls (1) and (2) of R 2 hut have a more general application and apply equally to disobedience of all injunctions issued under S 94 of the Code

As regards the power conferred by this sub rule for punishing disobedience of injunctions the following points must be noted —

(1) The Court which ordered the injunction is the Court which can punish its disobedience. Thus where an order of injunction was passed by a particular Court and the suit was thereupon transferred to another Court it was held that the letter Court had no power to punish disobedience of the injunction passed by the former Court. It has also been held that an interlocutory application to punish for contempt under this sub rule cannot be transferred to another Court, and thus give that Court jurisdiction to deal with it. But a Court to which the husness of the Court granting the injunction has been transferred under S 150 of the Code can exercise the power of punishment under this sub rule. The appellate Court has the same power to order punishment as the original Court.

(2) In taking action under this sub rule the Court cannot act suo motule that only on the application of the aggreed party?

7 (1903) 26 Vad 494 (49 )

As regards the penalty for disobedience of an immetion it has been held that the sub rule should be strictly construed and that it cannot be read as providing any regulty other than that specifically mentioned in it . Thus the disobedience will rot render any transaction youd," nor can a separate suit be filed for damages for non-countrynce with an order of injunction. 10 the six months period of deten tion tre-cribed in the sub rule cannot even inducetly be added to 11 But the two modes of tunishment prescribed are only alternative and it is not necessary that a. achment should be effected before impresenting its ordered 12. Where in income ion was issued against a person restraining him from bringing about the marrage of a girl, but the marriage took place, the person injuncted not being responsible for it and he was sought to be punished for contempt on the ground that he did not do all in his power to prevent the marringe, it was held, refusing the all lication that the injunction order contained no direction that he should do all in his power to present the marriage 23. In another case, where a company had been restrained from holding a meeting but the share helders had not been restrained from voting and, at a meeting held in a private house, some of the share I olders attended and voted, it was held that they were not liable to punishment for disobedience 14

Ithough there might be a breach of an injunction in the literal sense yet if the party acted in good faith and without any intention to violite the order, he will not be jubble for punishment 19

Where an injunction has been disobered the fact that the injunction has been subsequently dissolved will not exempt the party from punishment 18 Milnough an injunction takes effect from the date of the service of the order, yet, if the order bad been passed in the presence of the counsel for both sides, it is no excuse to say that the order was not communicated to the party personally in

A person against whom no injunction has been ordered cannot be punished under this sub rule on the ground that he abetted the disobedience of the order 18

An undertaking not to alienate, duly recorded in the order of the Court, amounts to an injunction and a breach thereof is liable to be punished under the Rule.

3 Inspection of subject matter of suit

Where in respect of the property of one person a right accuses in favour of mether and that right cannot be measured without inspection of the property, such inspection can be ordered under this Rule 1 Thus in a suit for dama_cs alleged to have been crused to the plaintiff by the defendant's construction in his premises the extent of the alleged many has to be ascertained and the Court has purisdiction under this Rule to order an inspection for the purpose 2 Similarly where the question to be decided is whether certain structures us old or now. the proper procedure is to issue a commission under this Rule and not under O 26 Rr 4 or 9 ante23 In ordering such inspection, the Court should take care to impose as little inconvenience is possible on those against whom the order 15 made 8

4 Inventory

The power to order inspection implies a power to order the preparation of in inventors if such inventors to essential for a proper decision of the case 1. If such an inventory is not so essential, it should not be ordered

5 Application for such order to be after notice

An application for an order under this Rule can only be made after reasonable notice to the parties concerned 1

2 Scope and object of the Rule

This Rule unthories a Court to appoint a receive in whenever it appears to it to be jut in deconvenient to do so. The matter is thus left to the discretion of the Court of Such discretion must, however, he exercised, not arbitririly but judicially and ecording to lead principles. (See Note 11, 18/7a.) The object and purpose of the appointment of a loceiver may generally be studed to be the preservation of the object matter of the litigation pending a judicial determination of the rights of the lattes thereto. The Court does not, at the time of appointment of a seconder, intrincat my final decision on the ments of the case, its run being merely to jie eve the status quo ante during, the litigation. Where a receiver is appointed under this Rule in respect of any property, such property in existed legis for the lenent of the several patters according to their titles (see Notes 27 and 28, 18/1s). When the Court appoints a person as the manager of the sur property, it really appoints a receiver, the term 'manager' being only another name for a

3 Receiver if can be appointed in proceedings other than suits

The omission in R 1 of the words subject matter of suit which occurred in S 503 of the old Code makes it clear that a receiver can be appointed in proceedings other than suits. Thus, a receiver may now be appointed in proceedings for the appointment of a guardian under the Guardians and Wards Act, or in a suit for rent and ejectment under Bengal Act VIII of 18693 or under S 32 of the Bengal Settled Estates Act III of 1904 for the purpose of recovering the amount of any decree against a tenant for life of a settled Estate But a Court has no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver in pinceedings under the Succession Certificate Act or in proceedings for the removal of a trustee under S 74 of the Trusts Act to to manage any occupancy holding under the Central Provinces Tenano. 4 Receiver if and when may be appointed in mortgage suits

The High Courts of Albahada and Patna have held that O 40 has no application to mortgage suits inasmuch as O 34 provides in itself a complete machinery for such suits. But the general trend of opinion of the other High Courts is that O 40 is not inapplicable to mortgage suits and that a receiver can be appointed even if the mortgage is a simple one? The test to be applied in this class of suits is, as in the case of other suits, to consider whether it will be just and contenent to appoint a receiver <sup>23</sup> A receiver cannot be appointed merely hecause it is convenient to the mortgagee to do so? or hocause a private sale by the receiver will fetch a higher price than the Court sale, or because the mort

11 Who may be appointed receiver 1.

A party to the litigation should not be appointed a receiver except under very special circumstances or with the consent of the other parties, because, as a general rule, absolute disinterestedness is an indispensable qualification for a receiver 3 Subject to the above general rule however in the case of partnership and partition suits, a party is more readily appointed a receiver than in other cases 3 There is nothing to prevent a Hindu from being appointed receiver of the properties of a Muhammadan ualf where his duties do not juclude the performance of religious ceremonies 4 Similarly the appointment of the guardian of a minor as receiver of his properties is not illegal 5 But the attorney of a party to the litigation caunct be appointed receiver, as such appointment will interfere with the arrangement made by such party for the conduct of his case 6

The fact that the receiver lives far away from the properties is a disqualt fication, which though not absolute, should be taken into consideration in making the appointment 7

12 What Court may appoint or remove a receiver

Under S 505 of the Code of 1682 a receiver could be appointed only by the High Courts and the District Courts and not by Courts subordinate to the District Court 1 Under the present Code, a receiver can be appointed by all Courts The appointment can be made only by the Court before which the suit wherein the receiver is sought to be appointed is pending, or where the decree has been appealed against, by the appellate Court 2 Hence a District Court cannot appoint a receiver in a suit pending in a Court subordinate to it 3 Now that the words "property, the subject of a suit or attachment" which occurred in S 503 of the old Code have been omitted in the present Rule, a Court can appoint a receiver even of property situated beyond its local jurisdiction* and even before deciding the question of jurisdiction, where such a question is raised $ (A Court of Small Causes cannot appoint a receiver of immoveable property Ss 7 and 94 of the Code 6) A civil Court in the Punish can appoint a receiver to Note II

where there is no allegation of misappropriation or waste 9 But in the undermen tioned cases the insolvency of the person in possession of the disputed property was held to be good ground for the appointment of a receiver 10

I receiver cannot be appointed for the purpose of ascertaining the real income of a property so that the Court may have connect data for fixing the rate of maintenance payable to a widow 11 The allegation against a defendant a trustee that since his acceptance of office, he has not paid allowances to the beneficiaries, without any allegation of waste or mismanagement etc., is no ground for appointing a receiver in his place 13 Nor should a receiver be appointed merely because the relations between the parties are strained13 or because the manager of the estate of the defendant produces his accounts and documents late 14 But where the defendant removes under suspicious circumstances a large extent of property during the pendency of a suit in which the title to the property is to be determined 15 or where a Hindu widow in possession of her husband's estate is found to be wasting the property16 or where a life tenant intends to transfer the estate to a stranger thus constituting a danger to the reversionary interests, 17 a receiver may be properly appointed. In a suit for possession where it is clearly proved that the estate is grossly mismanaged and wasted a receiver should be appointed 18 It is not necessarily improper that a receiver should be appointed to deal with the rents and profits of land assigned to a Hindu widow for her mainten ance, oven if she has no other source of income 19 The mere fact that the party in possession is a Mahomedan widow claiming a lien for her dower debt is no but to the appointment of a receiver if there are good grounds for such appointment See also the undermentioned cases 21

A receiver may be appointed in a suit for a declaration22 or in a more suit for money "8 But in such cases the cieditor must establish a special equity in his favour 24 The High Court of Calcutta has however held that a simple ereditor denying plaintiffs rights as co owners to share in rents and profits 9 (1921) 1971 All 91 (92) 43 All 311

1. manner but cautiously, judicially and according to legal principles after a consideration of the whole of the encumstances of the case 8 A receiver cannot be appointed merely because it is expedient or convenient to the mortgage to do so or because it will do no harm to do so to because it will do no harm to do so to because it will do no harm to do so to because it will do no harm to do so to be disturbed by the appointment of a receiver unless there is some substantial ground for such interference. Such as a well founded fear that the property in question will be dissipated or that other irreparable mischief may be dono unless the Court gives its protection. As has been said already in Note 13 ante the Court will refuse to interfere unless the applicant establishes some special equity in his favour.

O 40 R I suh rule (2) applies only to the dispossession of third parties (See Note 19 infra). Hence it is no bar to the appointment of a necewire in a suit for partition. But a receiver will not be appointed in such a suit in the absence of special circumstances necessitating interference by the Court? The mese fact that there is a dispute as to the share to which the plaintfit is entitled? or that the relations between the parties are strained is no ground for appointing a receiver. Nor is a mere apprehension of future waste sufficient for that purpose. There should be some specific act of misappropriation malvession, of mismanning ment shown and this principle is practically to be applied in the case of partition of Hindu joint family property in the hands of the eldest brother who is the manager of the property. But this Rule does not apply when one colowner occupies the whole property and excludes the other colowners from their shares of the limit of the case of the property and excludes the other colowners from their shares of the limit of the property and excludes the other colowners from their shares of the limit of the property and excludes the other colowners.

16 Executor in possession

In England the rule is that the Court will not interfere with the possession of an executor of a will by appointing a receiver except where a case of gress mis conduct is established against the executor 1 In India also very strong reasons are necessary to appoint a recenier in such a case 2 (See the undermentioned cases3 for instances in which a receiver was appointed) But in the case of Muhammadan will the executor is not entitled to this same degree of protection from interference is is given by the English Liw and a receiver can more readily be appointed in displacement of such an executor than in the case of the executor of a will made by other persons . This is because a Muliammadan can dispose of by his will only a third of his property and the reason for the English rule, viz that the executor is a person enjoying in a marked degree the testator's confidence and as such his possession should not be lightly interfered with, does not apply with the same force to the executor of a Muhammadan will

19 Receiver in Execution proceedings

The appointment of a receiver is prescribed by S 51 of the Code as one of the modes of executing a decree This Rule prescribes the conditions and limitations under which such appointment is to be made. Reading S 51 with this Rule, as it ought to he, it is clear that the Court can appoint a receiver in execution proceedings only when it considers just and contenient to do so 1 The decree holder's consent is, however not necessary for such appointment 2 Nor can be as of right and as a matter of course apply for execution by the appointment of a receiver 2a

Although in India where there is no distinction between law and equity it is not always necessary that legal execution should be exhausted before equitable execution by the appointment of a receiver is made, such appointment is not to be resorted to when there is no impediment to execution being levied in the ordinary way as provided by the Code, the person seeking equitable execution must show that he was met by difficulties arising from the nature of the property which prevented his obtaining relief by the usual modes of execution and that it is necessary and advantageous to appoint a receiver 3 The mere fact that the defendants belong to an old family and that, unless the Court steps in and saves them from the consequences of their debts they may be ruined, is not, in itself, a sufficient ground for such appointment 4

A receiver should not be appointed where it would unduly delay the realisation of the decree debt In execution of a decree against a legal representative of a judgment debtor a receiver cannot he appointed of properties which do not form part of the assets of the deceased o nor can be be appointed where such appointment has the effect of depriving one of the legal representatives of the entire profits from the portion of the estate in his hands without anything being left oven for the maintenance of himself and his family while the other legal representatives who are in enjoyment of substantial portion of the deceased's

Where the decretal debt will be equally and as surely satisfied by the appointment of a receiver as in any other way and at the same time the undement debtor will be saved from great prospective loss the Court can appoint a receiver 8 Such an appointment can also be made where the interests of both the decree holder and the judgment debtni can be safeguarded and where such appointment annears to be the only way in which the decree holder can hope to realise any appreciable part of his dues 9 Thus where a decree has been obtained against trust property and such property cannot be sold in execution of the decree 10 or where the debts and rents due to the judgment debtor are sought to be attached in execution of the decree and the person owing the same denies his hability to the judament debtor 11 or where a decree in favour of the jud ment debtor is attached in execution of the decree in favour of his decree bolder 1° a receiver can properly he appointed See also the under mentioned case 15 where a receiver was appointed to sell a colliery directed to be sold by the decree so as to safeguard the interests of all parties

A receiver can be appointed for the preservation of a property after its sale in execution and before its confirmation 14

The appointment of a receiver in execution does not operate as a stay of execution so as to disentitle the decree bolder from executing his decree in respect of the same debt in any manner provided by the Code. The mere fact that the decree bolder consented to the appointment does not estop him from subsequently seeking to enforce his decree by execution 15
20 Receiver after decree

The words whether before or after decree are new and make it clear that a receiver can be appointed even after a decree has been passed in the suit 1 These words have given effect to the undermentioned case under the former Code A receiver can be appointed even after execution sale and before its confirmation or after the grant of leave to appeal to the Privy Council But the Court has no puried ction to appoint a receiver when there is no litigation pending before it. in which such appointment can be made. Thus no receiver can be appointed after a suit has been dismissed or complomised or after the decree has been satisfied 7

21 Receiver of property in the hands of a common manager 1.

Under this Rule a receiver can be appointed for property in the hand of a common manager under S 95 of the Beogal Tenancy Act 1 A receiver car also be appointed pending proceedions for the appointment of a common manager I Civil Court can appoint a receivor of property to respect of which proceedings for the appointment of a common manager are peoding before the District Judge 3

22 Powers of receiver

I receiver has no powers except what have been conferred on him expressly or impliedly by the Court 1 His powers are therefore conditioned by the terms of his appointment subject to any subsequent modification by the Court " In the absence therefore of any provision express or implied as to the powers conferred on him there is no presumption that all the powers mentioned in Cl (d) of the Rule are conferred on him and he caonot deal with the property of which he is the receiver in any way without the consent of the Court * Thus he has no nower to lease out debutter property without the sanction of the Court 5 Eren if full nowers are conferred on the receiver be should take the directions of the Court in all important matters if he wishes to have complete protection for lumself 6

A receiver who has been given all the powers mentioned in Cl (d) will have impliedly a discretionary power of sale? The authority will also include a power to give notice to quit or to sue for compensation for use and occupation without the special leave of the Court " A general power of manage ment will include a power to exercise the powers of a proprietor under Madras Act II of 1894 9 \ bona fide achoovled meet of a dobt by the receiver is an acknowledgment by ar authorized person which will extend the period of limitation under S 19 of the Limitation Act 10 But a receiver can have at the most ool, such powers and rights over the property as the parties to the suit are found to possess when their rights are finally determined it misrepresentation or concealment of material facts from the Court in connexion with a proposed transaction by the receiver would vitiate the authority can ferred on the receiver 1" Nor can a clause be added to a lease ranted by the receiver subsequent to the grapt of the sanction if it was not mentioned in the terms proposed in the application for sanction 13 When property is sold by a receiver in auction under the directions of the, Court, the sale is as much a Court sale as an execution in the usual course, and is therefore not complete till it is confirmed by the Court 14 Nor can it be attacked by the pirties collaterally 1. In the case of a private sale by the receiver, a right of proemption can be exercised to the same extent as if the sale was by the owner himself 16

A Court has no power to confer on the recover any fiesh power such as a liberty to sell after the suit has been dismissed 17 It is also irregular for the Court to order payment of the debts of any party from the estate before the ascertainment of the estate. In exceptional cases, as where a plaintiff applies for payment to the creditors from out of the estate in the hands of the receiver. payments might be ordered out of the share of the plaintiff, where such share is admitted and it is more than enough to satisfy the debts of the creditors. subject to the plaintiff liter on proving that they are liabilities of the estate and as such must come out of the whole estate 18 No Court other than that by which the receiver was appointed can make or give any directions to the receiver as supplementary to those given by the appointing Court 10 A mortgage by the receiver under the Court's order directing that it should be entitled to priority over the pre-existing charges, takes precedence over such mortgages as a salvage han 30 See also Note 42 below

23 All such powers as to bringing or defending of suits as the owner himself has '

A right to suo is not necessarily incidental to the general powers of a receiver and does not exist unless it has been conferred on him expressly or by necessary mplication. It depends solely on the order of the Court and not on the wishes of the parties A Court can expressly authoriso the loceiver to suo in his own name But such an authority may also be given impliedly. Thus a receiver who is given the same powers of suing and defending suits as the owner himself has, is entitled to suo in his own name though not expressly authorised to do so " Similarly, a receiver appointed to collect outstandings can suo in his name 6 On the appointment of a receiver with the requisite powers he is the only person competent to bung suits and obtain decrees. Hence, after such a receiver has been appointed for an estate the landlord cannot sue for sent 7

The only person who could sue therefor is the auction purchaser 92 A receiver s dis cretion to spend money in litigation ought not to be interfered with by the appellate Court the Court of first instance will, if necessary take security from him for restitution of such expenses in certain events 10

It was held in the undermentioned case that a neceiver of a Zemindari was entitled to sue for sums spent by the Zemindar at the defendant's request before the appointment of the receiver as it was found that the claim arising out of such expenditure was one unnexed to the estate

24 Realization of property

A receiver appointed to get in and realise the estate of a deceased person and to pay debts has a power of sale also I Similarly, a receiver of mortgaged properties in respect of which mortgage decrees have been passed, who has been given powers of realisation, management protection and preservation of the property has a discretionary power of salo 2 But a necesivel empowered to collect outstandings and do all things necessary for the realisation and preservation of the assets of a firm has no power to mortgage the property of the firm 3 A recover of debts due to a judgment debtor can take legal proceedings by way of suit or execution proceedings to collect the outstandings A necessor however, cannot recover property sold away by the judgment debtor, on the ground of the sale heing voidable under S 53 of the Transfer of Property Act 8 Rent accided due to the estate prior to the oppointment of the receiver is not part of the estate in his hands and therefore a payment to the proprietor on account of such hability is a sufficient discharge of the debt " For further information, see Notes 22 and 23, supra

A receiver being an officer of the Court, is responsible to the Court for the due discharge of his duties. He is not entitled to delegate to another any of the duties entrusted to him by the Court, or assign to another for valuable consideration any of his rights as receiver 18. Similarly, a receiver of mortgaged properties in respect of which mortgage decices have been passed, who has been given powers of realisation, management, protection and preservation of the property has a discretionary power of sale? But a receiver empowered to collect outstandings and do all things necessary for the realisation and preservation of the assets of a firm has no power to mortgage the property of the firm? A receiver of debts due to a judgment debton can take legal proceedings by way of suit or execution proceedings to collect the outstandings? A receiver, however, cannot recover property sold away by the judgment debtor, on the ground of the sale being voidable under S 53 of the Transfer of Property Act. Rent accived due to the estate prior to the appointment of the receiver is not prit of the estate in his hands and therefore a payment to the propieton on account of such liability is a sufficient discharge of the debt. 29 Possessian of the receiver enures for the benefit of the true owner

The possession of the receiver is the possession of the Court.12 and the possession of the Court by the receiver is the possession of all the parties to the action according to their titles The property passes into legal custody (custodia legis) and such custody is for the benefit of the true owner. The receiver thus holds the property for the benefit of those ultimately found to be the true owners 1 By the appointment of a receiver the Court takes upon itself the management of the property during the continuance of the litigation But the proprietary right or interest in the property is not transferred from the rightful owner either to the Court or to the receiver appointed by it 2 The receiver s possession being possession sion on behalf of all the parties to the action according to their titles none of them can claim to be in adverse possession during the continuance of the receiver's possession against the party ultimately found entitled to the property 3 Noi is it onen to the receiver during the continuance of the receivership to set up a title in himself adverse to that of the parties Even if the receiver is discharged be would still hold the property on behalf of the rightful owner 1 Thus the title of the real owner is in no way affected either in theory or principle, by the appointment of a receiver A payment made by a receiver out of the funds of an estate 18 equivalent to a payment made by the owner of the estate and where he would be entitled to set reimbursement from a third person if he had made the mayment himself he would be equally entitled to such reimbursement if the payment is made by the receiver 5 If despite the appointment of the receiver the defendant continues in possession he can be sued by the true owner for the prefits misapproprinted by him 6

The appointment of a receiver does not supersede a prior attachment of the property?

When the owner of a property is himself appointed receiver he does not lose his rights as a proprietor of dealing with the property during the receivership except that he cannot impair the value of the propert; in his hands or cause in terference with his possession of the property as receiver?

Such leave is necessary even where the property is sought to be proceeded against in execution of a mortgage decree, although no attachment is necessary for sale in such a case 3 The High Court of Calcutta is, however of opinion that as no attachment is necessary in the case of a sale under a mortgage decree the permission of the Court is not necessary for such a sale a Even where an attachment was levied on property before the appointment of the receiver it is within the discretion of the appointing Court, to refuse to permit a sale of property under such attachment \ purchaser in Court auction at a sale held without the previous permission of the Court, buys at his peril, as the sale may be cancelled $ Permission is neces ary even for an application for rateable distribution against the receiver sa

A sale of property in the hands of a receiver without the leave of the Court, is however, not roud but is only v idable, i e, it is valid until set aside by appro priate proceedings. If the persons interested do not impeach the sale it is not open to others to do so 4 It has even been held that the sale cannot be set aside if the person seeking to have it set aside has in no way been prejudiced by the sale?

But where a decree obtained by a receiver is attached without the Court's permission and is then transferred by the receiver to a third person who takes tho assignment in good faith and without knowledge of the attachment the attachment being irregular does not affect the title of the assignee "a

31 Suits by or against receiver-Leave of Court -See also Note 43 infra

A receiver can neither sue nor he sned without the leave of the Court 1 He is merely an officer of the Court and not the representative of the owner of the estate Hence, no cause of action vests in him and he has no locus stands to sue except with the leave of the Court 2 "There is no statutory provision which requires a party to take the leave of the Court to sue a necesser. The nule has come down to us as a part of the rules of equity, binding upon all English Courts of Justice in this country. It is a rule hased upon public policy which requires that when the Court has assumed possession of a property in the interests of the litigants before it, the authority of that Court is not to be obstructed by suits designed to disturb the possession of the Court The institution of such suits is in the eye of the law a contempt of the authority of the Court and therefore the party contemplating such a suit is required to take the leave of the Court so as to absolve himself from that charge. The grant of such leave is made not in the exercise of any power conferred by statute, but in the exercise of the inherent power, which every Court possesses to prevent acts which constitute or are akin to an abuse of its authority ' 3

A Court will, however readily grant leave to sue the receiver if it is satisfied that there is a case to be tiled so that the claim of the third party may be tried in the presence of the receiver *

The omission to obtain the sanction of the Court prior to the institution of the suit can be rectified by leave granted subsequent to the institution of the suit 5 In the undermentioned cases 6 however, it was held that the Court's sanction was a condition precedent to institution of the suit and the defect due to the want of such sanction could not be rectified by leave obtained subsequently 's suit against a receiver without the leve of the Court is hable to be dismissed. If a decree is passed in such a suit it can bused as the sales. The absence of an objection by the receiver, that no leave was obtained will not entitle the Court to pass a decree against a receiver. But when the receiver has been discharged. On his cassed to exist and has been replaced by the berrs of one of the parties who were on the record. One objection that the suit against the receiver was instituted without the leave of the Court will not stand. The leave of the Court is not necessary for a suit against a receiver, under S 83 of the Madris Act VIII of 1865.

It is the Court appointing the receiver that can grant leave for the institution of a suit by or against the receiver. The Court trying the suit cannot gain it 12 \ Court does not by granting leave to suc the receiver relinquish its possession of the property to the Court in which the suit against the receiver is instituted 13. The Court trying such suit cannot issue an injunction against the receiver restraining him from dealing with the property as it would lead to a conflict of jurisdictions 14. Nor can a Court other than the appointing Court issue a ridder to the latter Court requesting it to restrain the receiver from taking possession of a part of the property in respect of which the receiver has been appointed 15. The proper course for a person who has obtained a decise against the receiver is to apply to the Court by which be has been appointed, to direct the receiver to act according to the decree 16.

A receiver is not a necessary party to a suit for declaration of title and possession in respect of the property in the receiver's hands. The decree passed in such a suit can always be carried out against the property in the hands of the receiver with the leave of the Court appointing bim, although he has not been made a party to the suit (See also Note 44, infina)

A receiver appointed by a Civil Court is not a necessary party to proceedings in respect of the property under S 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code <sup>18</sup> A Criminal Court has no jurisdiction in such proceedings to interfere with the possession of a receiver appointed by a Civil Court, without the permission of such Court in Novare of an estate crimot such for accounts a Juhiedra improvided by the entered into by him in the course of his mana_cment of the estate, but he is entitled to indennity from the estate for such debts. The creditors can doo proceed against the estate for the recovery of such debts in priority to other creditors of the estate the principle being that as the acts of the receiver acting within his sutherity are the rets of the Court, the estate cannot be permitted to enjoy the benefits of those acts without being held bubbe for the obligation arising therefrom. The ordinary rule that the creditors who have advanced money to a receiver for the mina_cment of the estate ein proceed against him personally does not apply where the advance has been expressly made on the condition that the estate dean should be highe?

33 Loss caused by receiver a default

The receiver is not the ament or representative of any party to the suit if therefore less arises from the default of the receiver, such loss, subject to the receiver is tradity for his default, must be borne by the estate, and not by the pirty it whose instance he was appointed receiver. But in the undermentioned cite. I luft Bench of the Oulh Chief Court has held that where a receiver in execution misappropriates the moneys paid by the judgment debtor, the less should be borne by the decree holder end not the judgment debtor, the reason given being that the payment to the receiver absolves the judgment debtor from all further responsibility.

34 Agreement with receiver-Contempt of Court

It is only the Court that can control the powers of the receiver As an officer of the Court, he has only such powers as the Court chooses to give him. It is a contempt of Court for anyone else to enter into an agreement with the receiver restricting and controlling his powers. Similarly, a promise by a party to pay remuneration to a receiver as gingst law and not enforceble.

37 Liability to account

In Mohine Mohan Patra v Baroda Kanta Sarkar 1 Then Lordshins of the Calcutta High Court expressed themselves as follows -

The receiver is but an officer of the Court appointing him and is therefore bound to account to that Court for all property which he has received. It is his duty to keep his accounts and youchers in such condition that they wilt be ready for examination it any time and as a general proposition whenever property or funds come into the hands of a receiver pending hitgation the Court may require him to report his acts and doings and to render in account in order to ascertain the condition of the properly and to auable the Court to settle the rights of and do justice to all the litigant parties. When the accounts of the receiver como up for adjustment, he is a pirty in interest, entitled to be heard, and it is the duty of the Court o see that his rights are protected But so also all other interested parties are cutified to notice and an opportunity to attend and be heard All pe sous having an interest in the estate which the recover represents have tho right to be present and be examined or any subject pertinent to the inquiry which springs out of the proceedings itself and to take extention to the receiver's accounts Courts are disposed to hold receivers to great strictness in rendering their accounts and a thorough sprestigation of the accounts and southers is Fromer where as here the rights of infants are involved. A receiver is bound to exercise the same dearee of difigence in Aceping down expenses and in caring for the estate in his po se sion as a prudent man would observe in connection with his own property under similar circum saturces A raceiver therefore will not ordinarily be permitted without the sanction and authority of the Court to incur any expenditure which will seriously diminish the funds currently of this charge and its bir duty if he wishes to protect himself to all jib to the Court bur elwarar lo el

He is responsible not only for sums actually received by him but also for all such sums which he might have received but for his default or negligence <sup>6</sup>. A party appointed receiver is liable to account in the same way as a stranger so appointed <sup>7</sup>.

It is not right, when considering the accounts submitted by the receiver, to go into the question of the hability to account for periods other than the period covered by the account itself. Nor does the question of had management by the receiver arise when he submits his accounts for being passed 9

The accounts of the receiver can be examined only by the Court appointing him 10 And where it has overruled the objections of a party impinging the accounts and passed them, a suit will not be against the receiver for damages for negligence, etc, based on allegations which have already been considered and overruled by the Court 11

A trustee or executor is not personally liable for debts incurred by him in the course of the management of the estate, but a receiver is personally hable for such debts '

39 Liability to criminal prosecution

A receiver of property cannot be prosecuted for criminal breach of trust in respect of the property without the sanction of the Court appointing bim. I The same rule applies to any other offence committed by the receiver in his capacity of receiver. But where the offence committed by the receiver has nothing to do with the offence lield by him the Courts sanction is not necessary for his prosecution.

Where the order appointing a person as receiver requires him to give scenniy so that the order is conditional on the security being given, the appointment is not complete till such security is given. But the Najpur Judicial Commissioners Court has held in the undermentioned case that the appointment of the receiver is complete on the passing of the order of appointment although he may not be able to take actual possession of the property until security is approved

Where there is no direction as to security and the order appointing the receiver is unconditional, it takes effect immediately it is made <sup>3</sup> But the transfer of the property to the receiver s possession, actual or constructive, and the conferment of special powers on him require specific orders under Cls (b), (c) and (d)

41 Security to be given by receiver

Rule 3, infia, requires a receiver, inter alia, to furnish such security as the Court thinks at As to whether the appointment of a receiver is complete before the payment of security, see Note 40

42 Receiver a hen

A receiver has a lien on the estate for all his just claims and allowances 1 "On this principle it follows that a Court will not compel a receiver who has been discharged, to make over the property in his possession until his lien has been satisfied or provided for hy a sufficient indemnity 2

43 Remedy of third party aggrieved by receiver's action

A third person feeling aggreeted by the receiver's conduct has ordinarily two remedies -

(1) He may apply to the Court in the very suit in which the receiver has heen appointed for a summary order against the receiver .

(2) He may, with the leave of such Court, sue the receiver

The more proper and usual mode is by applying to the Court for summary This is done by the aggreed person applying to the Court for permission to come in and be examined pro interesse suo (for his own interest). If no question of title is involved and if the applicant has shown diligence, the Court will decide the matter on such an application But otherwise, it will refer the third person to a separate suit against the receiver 1 Where debatable questions, not easy to he dealt with at the passing of the receiver's accounts, are involved, the Court will decline to go into them in summary proceedings in the suit itself 3

44 Receiver if and when a necessary party to a suit

In a suit for money against the representatives of a deceased person, the receiver holding possession of the deceased s estate is not a necessary party 1 Nor is he a necessary party in every suit concerning the property of which he is the receiver 2 Thus he is not a necessary party to a suit between third parties for declaration of title to, and possession of, the property in his charge 8 In such cases, if the plaintiff obtains a decree he can go to the executing Court, obtain the leave of that Court to execute the decree against the property in his hands and then enforce the decree Where, however, the property, in the hands of the

45 Notice to opposite party if necessary before appointment

Notice to the other side is not indispensable in every ease before a receiv is appointed. The very object of appointing a receiver may be defeated in man cases if notice were insisted on 1 Hence in emergent cases a receiver may l appointed without notice to the opposite side 2 But except for year special reason notice should not be excused before an order is made for such appointment 3

46 Appointment of new receiver in place of old receiver

Where a receiver ceases to bold the office of receiver pending a suit filed h him the suit does not abate but may be continued by his successor in office 1 Se Note 31 supra as to a present receiver's power to sue a former receiver for act done by the latter during his tonute of office as receiver

47 Joint receivers

It is competent to a Court under this Rule to apppoint two or more person as joint receivers of the same property. In such a case, the retirement or resig nation of one of the receivers does not put an end to the order appointing receiver 1 In a partition suit where the Court ordered the plaintiff to be it charge of one portion of the suit properties and the defendant to be in charge of the remaining portion it was held that the order was not ultra unes 2 Ordinauls it is not open to a Court to appoint a receiver when a receiver has already been at pointed in respect of the same property by another Court 3 But a receiver can he appointed in a mortgage suit where the decree is for sale although a receiver has already been appointed in respect of the same property in a prior partition suit

48 Duration of office of receivership

A Court appointing a receiver may order that the office should continue permanently or for such period as is deemed necessary 1 It can also cancel the order of appointment at any time if it considers it necessary 2 Even if such appointment has been made with the consent of parties 27 it has an inherent power to discharge or 1 emove the receiver al pointed by it 3 But until otherwise N to 47

ordered by the Court the receiver will continue in office+ though the suit in which he has been appointed has come to an end, but the purpose of his appoint ment has not been acknowed a fortiors a receiver in a partition suit is not discharged merely by the passing of a preliminary decree in the suit 6 \ receiver in an administration suit cannot ordinarily be discharged before the completion of the administration 64

A consent order of appointment of a receiver does not prevent a party from impuguing the administration thereunder which is of such a character as to amount to a malfeasance or to be, in substance so protracted and imperfect as to be futile

The removal of a receiver is a matter of discretion to be exercised by the Court with care after due and pioper enquity. A necessor should not be dismis ed summarily merely at the instance of one of the parties " The builden of proving the encumstances instifting the removal is on the party applying for such removal Where incaniaty on the part of the receiver is alleged it should be clearly proved 10 \ receiver may be removed for partiality 11

1 Court which appoints a receiver has authority to pass orders pecessary to wind up his charge even after the suit has been disposed of 12 It can also examine the receiver - recounts and pass all necessary orders 16

Where the receivership is put an end to pending a suit filed by the receiver the party ascertained to be the true owner can continue the suit 14

Where a claim for restitution is made on the cancellation of in older of appointment of a receiver the Court will not, in ordering restitution, consider the fact that the receiver's appointment was to the applicants advantage 10

Where any property in the receiver's possession is duly sold away to another the recency cannot be allowed to continue in possession 10

49 Court may remove any person from the possession or custody of property

The Rule empowers the Court to remove any person from the possession of property in respect of which a receiver has been appointed. The only case in which the receiver's possession can be resisted is that provided for by sub rule (2) according to which the Court has no power to deprive a third person of the possession of any property when no party to the suit has a present right to do so ! When therefore a third person in possession of property in respect of which a receiver has been appointed objects to deliver possession to the jeceiver, the Court

₹ 1. must hold an enquiry into his claim with a view to ascertain if he was under a present hability to be removed from the possession of the property 2

It has been held by the High Court of Calcutta that the person in posses sion of the property though he may have a right to continue in possession cannot interfere with the receiver but should apply to the Court for redress and that otherwise he will be guilty of contempt of Court 3 According to the High Court of Patna on the other hand the third party in possession is not bound to deliver possession to the receiver pending the enquiry into his claim 4 Sub rule (2) applies only to third persons in possession of the property and is no har to the removal of any party to the suit, from possession . Thus a mortgages decree holder who is in possession of the mortgaged property under an arrangement with the judgment debtor for the liquidation of the mortgage debt is not entitled to possession as against a receiver who is subsequently appointed 6 The Rule does not empower a Court to authorise a receiver to enter upon immoveable property in the possession of another person without his consent, in order to take an inventory of such property as the plaintiff may indicate as the property in dispute 7 The Court, instead of actually evicting the party in possession, may order him to pay the secenter a certain occupation rent 8 Sub rule (1) (b) refers to the removal of persons other than the receiver

Hence an order removing a receiver does not fall under Cl (b) 9

50 Summary jurisdiction

A Court has power to enforce summarily a contract made by the receiver 1 But where a lease has been granted by the receiver and the lessee has been put 10 possession the lease cannot be set aside in summary proceedings 2 Where a judgment debtor took a sum of money from the receiver and refused to pay it back, it was held that the Court could order repayment and that such order could he enforced as a decree s Although, ordinarily, proceedings for contempt are start ed at the instance of the parties and not of the receiver, there is nothing in law to prevent the receiver from applying for process for contempt 4 51 Appeal

Under O 43, R 1 (s) an appeal hes from an order under O 40, R 1 or R 4. An order under R. 1 may be one either appointing a receiver or may be one refusing to appoint a receiver In either case the order will be appealable 1 The

R 1, and therefore is appealable as an appealable order and not as a decree 5 The reason is that the definition of a decice in S 2, Sub S (2) does not include an appealable order though it may fall within the terms of S 47 It has been held by the High Court of Bombay that an order in execution proceedings refusing to remove a receiver comes within S 47 of the Code and is appealable as a decree 6

It is only a final order of appointment or refusal that is appealable. Where an ex parte order is confirmed by a second order, an appeal lies only from the latter order ' In order appointing a receiver subject to his furnishing security is

I.

An orler appointing a receiver in a case in which the Court has no jurisdic tion to appoint a receiver as for metance, in a proceeding under the Succession Certificate Act, can be set aside in iccision by the High Court 1 Where an objection of a third party in nos-ession of the property, to the appointment of a receiver was dismissed it was hold by the Patna High Court that the third party had no right of appeal but could apply for revision of the order dismissing the objection In the undermentioned case, it was beld by the Vadias High Court that the ic fusal of a Court to join a receiver as a party to proceedings for the sale of pronects in his hands in execution of a decree for salo on a mortgage, was a material irregularity in the exercise of jurisdiction by the lower Court and that a revision lay 3

Z Liability of surety

A surety for a receiver is hable to the payment of interest on balances improperly retained by him, as also for the costs of proceedings in Court necessarily or properly incurred in consequence of the receiver's default, such as the costs of a proceeding to take accounts of an attachment for failure to account, of an application for his discharge and for the appointment of another person in his place, and of any proceedings taken to enforce the recognizance The liability of a surety upon the bond of a receiver conditioned for the due discharge of his duties is, however, limited to cases of a violation of those duties which may properly be said to be within the scope of his appointment as receiver, in other

If he could not the surety is not hable if he could be held hable in that proceeding as receiver the surety is also liable. But a surety who has satisfied the claim against the receiver is entitled to stand in the place of the receiver and to reimburse himself from the sums ordered to be paid to the receiver 1

3 Submission of accounts-Clause (b) -Sec Note 37 to R 1 sipra

The sunction of the Court is necessary for all expenditure of special nature incurred by the receiver 1 \ receiver is liable for all unauthorised expenditure incurred by him such as salaries of unnecessary servants appointed without the lowe of the Court bribe to the Police for obtaining the release of a minor of whose estate he is the receiver and sums advanced to the minor owner of the estate in excess of the limit sanctioned by the Court 2 Where litigation expenses tro incurred by the receiver the latter must show not merely that he paid the expenses but the details of such expenditure 3

The liability of a rocciver not appearing on the face of the accounts, such is for imprudent management for wilful default or neglect for the mal practices of his solvants etc cannot be properly sone into on the receiver's application for the passing of his accounts A separate suit is the more appropriate procedure tor the investigation of such matters 4

Before passing an order for the attachment of the receiver a property under R 4 the Court should examine the accounts under this Rule and give him an opportunity to pay the amount found due by him 5

If on an application to discharge a receiver the latter puts forward a claim to a larger amount than what is due to him and such amount is deposited in Court he is liable if such amount is found to be in excess of that actually due, to interest on the excess amount but if the receiver a action has compelled the owner of the estate to borrow money at a lusher rate than usual the question of the accerves a hability in consequence of that fact should form the subject of a separate suit 6

No older can be passed against the receiver to make good the loss to the estate due to his gross negligence till the passing of the accounts ?

A receiver appointed to collect the rents due to an estate must make good the loss caused to it hy a breach of his duties. Thus if he delegates his duties to another (which he is not competent to do) and the latter misappropriates the funds collected by him or if he fuls to realise rents by takin, projer proceedings he will be hable for the loss Mistaken proceedings though talen in good futh will not absolve the receiver from hability. A decree holder is not bound to ac cept pro notes obtained by the Receiver from the tenants for the rents due and the receiver must make good the amounts of the rent not collected arising from the default of the receiver will, as between the pirties, devolve on the estate to which the appointment relates and not on the decree holder at whose instance he may have been appointed the Alecence is not entitled to recover the costs of proceedings initiated by him through mistake? A succeeding receiver cannot sue a former Receiver for fonds which he should have realized and accounted for 9 Ordinarily circlitors advancing money to a receiver for the purposes of management can proceed both against the estate and the receiver personally. But the receiver spersonal hability may be expressly excluded by the terms of a particular loan? A receiver shribity on account of his wilful default or neglect, can more approprinted be investigated in a separate suit against him than in an application in the suit wherein he was appointed as receiver? See Notes 31 to 33 to R. 1.

T.

An order under this Rule is not one that is appealable under O 43, R 1 (s). Thus an order holding a receiver of an estate hable for a certum sum of money is not appealable. But where such an order is followed by another one under R 4 for coercive action against the receiver, an appeal hes and in the appeal the prior order under R 3 can be attacked. An order directing the receiver to pry a certum sum of money is alamages or an order of the Court giving directions to the receiver in passing, his accounts is not open to appeal. No appeal has a gainst an order constrainty an order of appointment of receiver under R 1.4 Where a receiver is appointed subject to his furnishing security the appointment is not complete till security is given and till then there is no right of appeal. See also Note 51 to R 1.

An order under this Rule is open to revision 6

The Rule provides for coercive steps against the receiver who fails to carry out his duties as laid down in R 3. The Court has got a discretion in deciding whether to take action or not under this Rule as against the receiver. <sup>18</sup> When the receiver is guilty of a willful default or gross negligence the only provision for taking action against him apart from proceeding against the security, is that his property can be attached arrest and imprisonment are not to be the methods of enforcement. <sup>1</sup>

2 Loss to property by wilful default or gross neglect

Property includes not only corpus of the property entrusted to the recent or but also the recome derived from it. The Rule is a residuary provision and covers a case of misappropriation also. Even a partner who is appointed receiver of partnership assets will be guilty of gross misconduct if he appropriates to his own use any of the partnership assets.

the basis of a wilful default and neglect . Such a suit may be filed even after his discharge if it transpires that he has in his hands moneys belonging to the estate 5 Similarly his accounts may be re opened on discovery of errors, even where he has been discharged after the passing of his accounts. The proper procedure however, in such a case is to hold an enquiry to find out whether any loss has been occasioned by his wilful default or gross negligence and to pass an order under this Rule or if desired to proceed against him under S 145 of the Code A separate suit against him is not necessary in such circumstances 6

If money paid by a receiver does not reach the proper destination he must make good the loss unless he can show that he acted with perfect regularity and has used such a degree of prudence as would be expected from an ordinary individual in his own affairs.

Where at the time of appointing a receiver, there was a decree in favour of the estate about 11 years old and after his appointment the receiver applied for the arrest of the debtor but not for attachment of his properties on the ground that it was very much encumbered it cannot be said that the receiver is guilty of any negligence at all. It must be shown by the party wishing to ostablish gross negligence on the part of the recener that it would have been profitable to the estate if the dehtor's property had been attached a decree has not yet been prepared3 or the appellant is under an erroneous impression that it has not yet been prepared 4 It has been held that the Court may in such cases give time for getting a copy of decree prepared and filing the same 4a But see the criticism of this view in S 2 (2) Note 8 The Court may however, where the copy of the decree is filed after the expiry of the period of limitation, excuse the delay under S 5 of the Limitation Act to The fact that a copy of the decree has already been filed in another proceeding is not sufficient 5 In an appeal in a land acquisition case a copy of the award which is the decree in the case should be filed along with the memorandum of appeal 6 Similarly in a probate case, a copy of the decree should accompany the memorandum of appeal?

A memorandum of appeal should also be accompaned by a copy of judgment appealed from Only the final judgment need however be filed It is not necessary to tile unterim orders and judgments disposing of preliminary issues in the case * This Rule makes a distinction between the filing of a copy of the decree and the filing of a copy of the judgment. The Court has no power to dispense with a copy of the decree,9 but it can dispense with a copy of the judgment. But unless dispensed with, a memorandum of appeal unaccompanied by a copy of the judgment is not valid to Where, however an appeal is adimitted without a copy of the judgment, the order admitting the appeal may be taken to amount to an order dispensing with such con " The power to dispense with the copy of the judgment should ordinard, be exercised at the first hearing 12 The fact that a copy of the judgment has been filed in another proceeding is not a sufficient ground for dispensing with the copy 13 By force of O 43, R 2

An appeal from a decree which has been encoded must be accomplanted by a copy of the angented decree and not i copy of the august decree <sup>14</sup>. Where the decree is amended after the filing of the appeal the appeal the four may permit a copy of the amended decree to be attached to the mean random of appeal, and the appeal becomes from that moment an uppeal ignore the ancided decree <sup>15</sup>. Where the amendment of the dre is only for the purpose of making the meaning of the decree clear, there is no such alternation is to make it a new decree and no copy of the inherital decree need be filed in order to make the appeal, already filed competent <sup>16</sup>.

The word 'com in the Rule means a certified capy <sup>17</sup> A copy of the trai slation of the decree is not enough <sup>18</sup> Nu does the Rule require a printed copy of the judgment to be filed <sup>19</sup> It is also not necessary that the copy should be one obtained by the appellant himself <sup>20</sup> See also the case cited below <sup>1</sup>.

As to whether as second appeal a copy of the trial Court's judgment should be filed, see O 42, R 1, and the cases cuted in Note 2 thereof A copy of the trial Court's decree need not, under this Rule be filed along with a memorandum of second appeal <sup>21</sup> The Rule does not apply to appeals under the Madras Reit Recovery Ver<sup>22</sup> or under the Oudh Reit Vet <sup>23</sup>

1 Scope and applicability of the Rule

The Rule provides for coercive steps against the receiver who fails to carry out his duties as laid down in R 3 The Court has got a discretion in deciding whether to take action or not under this Rule as against the receiver 12 When the receiver is guilty of a wilful default or gross negligence the only provision for taking action against him apart from proceeding against the security, is that his property can be attached arrest and imprisonment are not to be the methods of enforce ment 1

2 Loss to property by wilful default or gross neglect

Property includes not only corpus of the property entrusted to the receiver but also the income derived from it 1 The Rule is a residuary provision and covers a case of misappropriation also 2 Even a partner who is appointed receiver of partnership assets will be guilty of gross misconduct if he apprepriates to his own use any of the partnership assets 3

1 Memorandum of appeal to be signed by appellant or his pleader

It is necessary that the memorandum of appeal should be signed by the appellant or his pleader By virtue of the provisions of O 3 R 1, supra an agent of the appellant, duly authorised may also sign the memorandum of appeal <sup>1</sup> A defect in the authority will not necessarily invalidate the memorandum of appeal <sup>2</sup> Where an appeal was filed on bebalf of a company by one of its officers not duly authorised to do so, it was held that the defect could be cured by putting in a power of attorney duly authorising him to do so 3 Similarly where a memorandum of appeal was signed by a pleader whose vakalat was not signed by the party, it was held that the defect could be subsequently recurified by the party signing it <sup>4</sup> It is immaterial, if the appellant has signed the appeal, that he has not written the memorandum of appeal humself <sup>5</sup> Where an appeal consisted of two documents one containing the names of the parties and the other containing the grounds of appeal, the fact that the latter was not signed by the party is not fatal to the appeal <sup>8</sup>

2 Presentation of memorandum of appeal

Order 3, Rule 1 provides that an appearance, application or act in or of any Court required or authorised by law to be made by a party may, except where otherwise expressly provided by any law for the time being in force, be made or done by the party in person, or by his recognised agent or by his pleader. The presentation of a memorandum of appeal by a pleader holding a power of attorney from the party expressly authorising him to present it is valid though the power is not filed with the appeal 1 A memorandum of appeal may be presented where the appellant is a minor, by the appellants guardian ad litem 2 But a presentation by an unauthorised agent is no presentation in the eje of the law 3 As to a presentation by the clerk of the pleader, see Note 9 to 0 3 R 4, ante

The memorandum of appeal should be presented to the Court or to such officer as it appoints in this behalf. A presentation to the Judge at his private residence after Court hours on the last day of limitation, is sufficient compliance with the law. A presentation during the vacation or even on a Sunday is valid, provided it is to the proper officer. It was held in the undermentioned cases that a memorandum of appeal must be taken to have been validly presented where it was deposited in the box put up by the appellate Court for the purpose. But a presentation to an officer of the Court

3 Presentation with defective vakalatnama

I.

The presentation of a memorandium of appeal by a valid without any authority from the party is not valid. But the mere fact that the party has omitted by oversight to sign the validationance or the fact that the validationance was not filed with the memorandium of appeal? does not invalidate the appeal Where an appellant executes a validationance in value of the opersons, but one of them alone accepts it, the presentation of the appeal by the latter is a valid messentance?

There is a difference of opinion as to whether the presentation of a memorandum of appeal is valid where the name of the valid presenting it, is omitted in the validationam. The High Court of Allahabad has held that it is not a valid presentation, the reason given being that the word shall in O 3 R 4 shows that the Rule is of an imperative character * The High Courts of Calcutta, * Lahore, * * Patna* and the Judicial Commissioner's Court of Nagpur, * on the other hand, have held that the presentation is not invalid and that the defect is one that can be cured See also O 3, R 4, Notes 14 to 16

decree has not yet been prepared3 or the appellant is under an erroneous impression that it has not yet been prepared 4 It has been held that the Court may in such cases give time for getting a copy of decree prepared and filing the same 4a But see the criticism of this view in S 2 (2), Note 8 The Court may, however, where the copy of the decree is filed after the expiry of the period of limitation, excuse the delay under S 5 of the Limitation Act 46 The fact that a copy of the decree has already been filed in another proceeding is not sufficient 5 In an appeal in a land acquisition case a copy of the award which is the decree in the case should be filed along with the memorandum of appeal 6 S milarly in a prolate case, a copy of the decree should accompany the memorandum of appeal?

A memorandum of appeal should also be accompaned by a copy of judgment appealed from Only the final judgment need however be filed It is not necessary to tile interim orders and judgments disposing of preliminary assue, in the case 8 This Rule makes a distinction between the filing of a copy of the decree and the fibng of a copy of the judgment. The Court has no power to dispense with a copy of the decree,9 but it can dispense with a copy of the judgment. But unless dispensed with, a memorandum of appeal unaccompanied by a copy of the judgment is not valid 10 Where, however, an appeal is adimitted without a copy of the judgment, the order admitting the appeal may be taken to amount to an order dispensing with such copy it The power to dispense with the copy of the judgment should, ordinarily, be exercised at the first hearing 12 The fact that a copy of the judgment has been filed in another proceeding is not a sufficient ground for dispensing with the copy 13 By force of O 43 R 2 a memorandum of appeal from an 1926 Lah 638 , 1927 Lah 449 , 1927 (1915) 1915 Cal 693 (694)

cases however where a formal order is not drawn imilato or where the formal order is an exact copy of the concluding portion of the judgment 13c the failure to the a conv of such order has been held not to invalidate the appeal

An appeal from a decree which has been amended must be accompanied by a copy of the amended decree and not a copy of the original decree 14 Where the derree is amended after the filing of the appeal the appellate Court may perint a copy of the amended decree to be attached to the memorandum of appeal and the much becomes from that moment, an appeal against the amended derice is Where the amendment of the decree is only for the purpose of making the meaning of the decree clear, there is no such alteration as to make 1 a new decree and no conv of the amended decree need be filed in order to make the anneal aheady filed competent 18

The word conv in the Rule means a certified copy 17 A copy of the trai slation of the decree is not enough is Nor does the Rule require a printed copy of the judgment to be tiled 19 It is also not necessary that the copy should be one obtained by the appellant himself 20 See also the case cited below 1

As to whether in second appeal a conv of the trial Court's judgment should be filed see O 42 R 1 and the cases cited in Note 2 thereof A conv of the trial Court's decree need not, under this Rule, be filed along with a memorandum of second appeal 214 The Rule does not apply to appeals under the Madras Rent Recovery Act22 or under the Oudh Rent Act 23

6 Omission to file copy of decree in rival appeal

Where there are several appeals from one judgment by different appealants a copy of the judgment and of the decree should be filed in *ach* appeal*. Thus in an appeal from an award under the Land Acquisition *Act the fact that the award disposed of many references and it was filed in an appeal filed by a party in one appeal does not enable its being dispensed with in the other appeals <sup>2</sup> But where the same appellant files different appeals from the same judgment in has been held that it is sufficient if he files a copy of the judgment in one of the appeals only <sup>3</sup>

7 Two decrees in two cross appeals

Where two cross appeals are heard together and disposed of by a single judgment but two seperate decrees are drawn up one in each appeal there is a conflict of opinion as to whether an appeal against the judgment filing a copy of one of the decrees only, is valid. The conflict is due to another aspect of the question, namely whether an appeal against one of such decrees only is barred by res judicata by the non-filing of an appeal from the other. This aspect is discussed in Note 29 to S 11, artie reopens 1 Under S 5 of the Act the Court has a discretion to admit the appeal after the expiry of the limitation period, if it is satisfied that there was 'sufficient cause' for not preferring the appeal within the time 2 In exercising the direction under the section, the Court must, on the other hand, be fully satisfied of the justice of the grounds on which the delay is sought to be excused 3 On the other hand, the expression "sufficient cause' should be liberally construed so as to advance substantial justice when no negligence. nor maction nor want of bona fides is imputable to the appellant 4 So construed it will include not only those circumstances which the law expressly recognises as extending the time, but also such circumstances as are not expressly recogmsed but which may appear to the Court to be reasonable looking to the facts of the case 5 As to what constitutes "sufficient cause" within the meaning of that section, see the undermentioned cases 6

An order admitting an appeal beyond houtation can be attacked in second appeal preferred against the appellate decree 10 But the lower Court's direction in dlowing or refusing to allow in appeal to be filed beyond limitation under S 5 of the Lumitation Act will not be highly in erfered with 11 5 5 of the Limitation Act does not apply to appeals in forma pauperis 19

The High Court of Madras has added sub-rule 3 to this Rule under which when an appeal is presented out of time, the question whether the delay in filing the appeal should be excused or not should be decided before the memorandum of appeal is admitted <sup>20</sup>

9 Exclusion of time in seeking review of judgment

An appellant is not entitled, as of right, to the exclusion of the time spent by him in seeking a review of the judgment, in computing the period of hinatation for his appeal. But if the appellant can show that he had reasonable grounds for applying for review instead of preferring an appeal and that he had exercised due diligence, the time taken up by the review application may be excused under S 5 of the Lumitation Act in computing the limitation for the appeal.

10 Misdescription in the memorandum of appeal

The mere misdescription of an appeal as where, it is described as being an appeal from an order instead of its being described as one from a decree will not invalidate the appeal.

11 Grounds of objection

The general principle is in favour of the correctness of the lower Courts judgment and the onus is on the appellant to show that it is wrong 1 Accord-

13 When appellate Court may not interfere with findings of fact

In Bombay Cotton Manufacturing Co v Moti Lal, their Lordships of the Privy Council observed as follows —

On uppeal the whole case including the facts are within the jurisdiction of the appeal Court. But generally speaking it is undesirable to interfere with the findings of the final Judge who sees and hears tho witnesses and has an opportunity of noting their demonstrate especially in cases where the issuo as simple and depends on the credit which attached to one or other of conflicting witnesses. Nor should his pronouncement with respect to their creditality is put wide on a mere calculation of probabilities by the Court of appeal.

In Prasanna Moyce v Barkunthnath,2 the Calcutta High Court observed as follows --

Two conflicting view points have to be reconciled namely on the one had the undoubted duty of the Court of appeal to review the recorded endence and to draw its own intercures and conclusions and on the other hand, the unquestionable weight which must least attached to the opinion of the Judge of the primary Court who had the advantage of seeing the witnesses and noticing their look and manner.

14 Competency of appeal

Where leave to appeal has to be obtained before pieferring an appeal, the memorandum of appeal should be accompanied by a petition for such leave 1 An objection as to the maintainability of the appeal should be considered by the Court, though it was not raised in the first instance by the respondent's pleader 2 See also the following cases 3 Where a party has accepted the order of the lower Court as correct and his enjoyed the benefit thereor he will be estopped from appealing against the same 4 (See also Notes under S 96)

15 Conselidation of appeals

A Court has inherent power to consolidate suits or appeals in proper cases. But this cannot be done so as to affect the provisions of the Court-Fees. Act or of this Code. Thus several appeals in cases disposed of by one judgment cannot be consolidated so as to enable the appellant to pay Court-fee on the value of the consolidated appeals and file only one valual? Where one decree only was passed in two appeals preferred by two sets of defendants against the decree of the trial Court it was held that one second appeal was enough?

16 Stamp on memerandum of appeal

It has been seen in Note 2 to S 149 auto that the institution of a suit or other proceeding will not be a legal institution if the fee chargeable under law is not peak at the time of the institution but that Court may urder the provisions of S 149, allow the payment of the stamp fee at any stage u d thus addate the institution A memorandum of appeal which does not bear the proper stamp-fee prescribed therefor is not validly presented, unles the Court allows under S 149 the fee to be pead subsequently tables.

Under S 5 of the Court-Fees Act, 1870, the decision of the Tring Officer as to the Court-fee required is final. Where however, no such decision has been given by the Faving officer, the respondent can raise the question at the time of the hearing of the appeal.

In order to see which part of the decree is the subject of appeal before it, the appellate Court must look at the memorandum of appeal and not in the stamp fee affixed thereon 3 Nor, where a memorandum of appeal is misufficiently stamped can the Court grant a relief proportionate to the strap affixed 4 As to the amount of fee leviable in appeals, see the Court-Fees Act, 1870, and the undermentioned cases 5

17 Refund where memorandum is over stamped

The Court has inherent jurisdiction in a fit case to order the refund of textes Court fee paid on the memorandum of appeal. But the Court can only grant a certuicate to the appellant authorising him to receive back such excess. The appellant should thereafter apply to the Collector for refund of the Court-fee. 4 Leave of Court to raise new point

The Court has under this Rule, a direction to permit a new point, not raised in the memorandum of appeal, to be raised and argued at the hearing <sup>1</sup>. The leave may however, be express or implied <sup>15</sup>. But, unless such permission is taken the Court will not allow such a point to be argued at the hearing <sup>15</sup>. The mere fact that the respondent has had notice of the fact that the appellant intends to raise such point at 156 bearing cannot dispense with the Court's permission under this Rule <sup>2</sup>.

The Court will refuse to permit a new point to be argued where at the time of taking it, the period of himilation for the appeal had expired and where the allowing of such a point to be argued would practically amount the appealant to set up a new appeal. But where the point sought to be raised is involved in the points already raised in the memorandium of appeals or is a question of law depending on no new facts except those already on the records or is a point to which the other side cannot legitimately raise an objection on the ground of surprise 6 the Court may grant the appellant leave to raise it. The Court should, however, grant the permission only on such terms as would indemnify the opposite party for the loss caused to him by reason of the failure of the appellant to raise the point in time?

5 Point of timilation

Under S 3 of the Limitation Act a Court is bound to reject a suit or appeal if it is barred by limitation even though the bar of limitation may rot have been raised in the pleadings 1 But this section does not apply where the plea is not that the appeal before that Court is barred by limitation but that the suit or appeal in the lower Court was barred by limitation 2 Hence, unless a plea that the suit or appeal in the lower Court was barried by limitation is taken in the memorandum of appeal preferred to the lugher Court under R 2, it cannot be urged at the hearing of the appeal without the leave of the appellate Court 3 As a general rule, the appellate Court will permit a point of himitation though not raised in the memorandum of appeal, to be raised at the hearing of the appeal, where it is apparent on the lace of the proceedings and does not involve any new question of fact 4 But it will not do so where such a plea involves an investigation of further facts 5

6 Point of jurisdiction

A point of jurisdiction not involving an investigation into other facts than those on the record will be allowed to be raised at the hearing of an appeal, though it was not raised in the memorandum of appeal. Thus a plea as to the jurisdiction of the Court to make a reference to arbitration or a plea as to the competency of the Court to grant the relief claimed2 or a plea of res judicata3 or a plea that the plaint does not disclose a cause of action against the defendants can be permitted to be argued at the hearing of the appeal.

1911 Pun Re No 81 But appellate Court has option of refusing to listen to plea of limitation even though it cannot advance at the hearing a point not so raised or taken. But the appellate Court is not confined in deciding the appeal to the points so raised or taken It is cutified to base its decision on grounds neither set forth in the memo rai dum of appeal nor taken with the leave of the Court 1 Thus it can suo motu trase a point of hmitation2 or of jurisdiction3 apparent on the face of the record and decide the appeal on that point. Where alternative grounds of appeal are raised it can go into questions which are admitted for the purpose of an alternative argument and give a finding against the appellant 6 But a party cannot claim as of right that the Court must exercise power given under this Rule 5

The power given to the appellate Court under this Rule does not extend to the making out a new case for either party and to grant them rehef on that basis6 or to go behind a hiding of fact which is accepted by the appellant? or to interfere with a part of the decree which is not appealed from 8 Thus in an appeal by the defendants where there is no cross objection by the plannift the appellate Court cannot while dismissing the appeal, enlarge the relief granted to the plaintiff by the lower Court 9 The Court will not also be justified in taking up a new question under this Rule unless there can be no reasonable doubt on the record that the evidence on the new point had been completely given on both sides of the point is a pure question of law and it is expedient in the interest of justice to consider and decide it 10 An appellant can give up any of the grounds of appeal at the hearing11 and the appella c Court is bound to give a decision only on those pleas which are urged and argued to

8 Party affected must have had an opportunity of contesting the case

1 May be rejected

The power to reject a memor indum of appeal under this rule is initied to cases where it is defective in point of form or in respect of the grounds which it must contain. It cannot be interpreted as enabling the Court to reject a memorandum of appeal on the ground that it is ansufficiently

Appellate Court is not justified in Note 8 holding that a touch has leen along the table has not justified in 1 (1914) doned incret), because the value has not appeal to the specified in the sp

stamped1 or on the ground that it is barred by limitation 14 But independently of the provisions of this rule, the Court can, under O 7, R 11 read with S 107, reject an appeal if it is not sufficiently stamped provided that an opportunity is given to the appellant to make good the deficiency and he fails to do so within the time fixed 2 See S (2), Cl (2), Note 13, O 7, R 11 Notes 6 and 11 and O 7, R 13, ante

The rule does not impose any duly on the appellate Court to examine every memorandum of appeal immediately on presentation, and add proper parties if the appellant neglects to do so 3

The Court can evercise us power of rejecting a memorandum of appeal under this rule at any stage4 though, as a general rule, the proper time to do so would be the time of its presentation and not after it has been admitted 5

Or be returned to the appellant for the purpose of being amended '

Where the memorandum of appeal consisted of two documents, one, in the vernacular, containing the names of parties, and signed by the appellant, and the other in English containing the grounds of appeal but not signed by the appellant, it was held that the defect, if any, could be remedied by an amendment under this rule 1 A memorandum of appeal which merely states that the proceedings of the lower Court are irregular and contrary to law is too vague and general and requires amendment before the appeal can be heard 2 In this rule there is no limitation as to the time or stage when the memorandum of appeal may be returned for ameadment 3 But whenever a memorandum of appeal is returned for amendment the Court should fix 3 time for its ie presentation 4 The time that the Court allows for re-presentation of a memorandum of appeal is only by way of concession and cannot be demanded as a matter of right, at any rate after the cypiry of the period of himitation within which the appeal can be filed 42

A memorandum of appeal from the preliminary decree can be amended so as to constitute an appeal from the final decree also 5

3 Defect of parties

Where the respondent is wrongly named owing to a clenical error in the decree, the mistake is not a fatal one but can be rectified 1 A single appeal by different persons having different defences and reasons for appealing is pregular 2 As to whether an appeal filed against a dead person can be rectified by adding the legal representatives, see S 153, Note 5 and O 1. I Scope and object of the Rule

The general rule is that on an appeal by one of several plaintiffs or defendants, the appellate Court can reverse or vary the decree of the trial Court only in favour of the party appealing. This Rule and R 33 provide exceptions to the general rule, and give the Court ample power to make the appropriate order needed in the interests of justice 14 While R 33 of this Order provides that the appellate Court has power to make the proper decree even in cases where the appeal is as to a part only of the decree,2 this Rule provides that where a decree proceeds upon a ground common to all the plaintiffs or defendants any one of the plaintiffs or the defendants may appeal from the whole decree and thereupon the appellate Court can reserve or vary the decree in favour of all the plaintiffs or the defendants as the case may be 3 In such a case the appeal by one is virtually treated as an appeal on behalf of all, though they may not be parties to the appeal 4 The Rule therefore will not apply where the appeal is directed only against that portion of the decree which affects the appellant.42 or where the appealing plaintift or defendant cannot, under the circumstances of the particular case, be considered as appealing on behalf of the non appealing plaintiffs or defendants, e. g. where one of the defendants appeals on his own behalf and impleads the non-appealing defendants as respondents 45 A decree passed by the appellate Court does not, as a matter of course, enure to persons who have not poined in the appeal merely because the lower Court's decree has proceeded on a common ground. The Rule will apply only where the Court consciously decides to apply it <sup>4c</sup>. The policy of the Rule is, firstly, to give the appellate Court full power to do justice to all parties, whether before it or not, provided the whole case is gone into at the instance of the parties representing all the necessary contentions in the case, and, secondly, to prevent contradictory decisions in the matter in the same suit.

The Rule does not become mapplicable merely because the non-appealing defendant has, in the meanwhile, obeyed the lower Court's decree? or because he has 'esparately appealed from the same decree and has failed in his appeal. But the Rule has no application where there are several suits, the decree in each of which, proceeds on a ground common to the defendants in alt the suits, unless such suits are consolidated. Nor will the Rule apply where the planniff who appeals has no locus stands to appeal. Where, for a suit under S. 92 of the Code, the consent of the Advocate-General has been given to three persons they all constitute in the eye of the law, one planniff and therefore one of them alone cannot appeal so as to make this Rule applicable 12.

Where a decree is passed against two defendants on a ground common to both and one of them appeals against the decree while the other files cross-objections to the decree, the appellate Court can transpose the latter defendant as an appellant and decide the appeal in his favour 13

Where there are several respondents before the lower appellate Court any one of them may maintain the second appeal on behalf of all under this Rule but he cannot represent a person who was not a respondent in the lower appellate Court <sup>18</sup> Nor can a person not a party to the first appeal prefer a second appeal under this rule <sup>18</sup>.

The Rule applies also to a cross-appeal by respondents 15 Decree

A decree may be reversed under this Rule in favour of all the defendants even if some of them allowed the decree to be passed ex parter against them, provided the other conditions laid down in the Rule are satisfied. But where a decree is passed against some of the defendants on

3 Common ground

It is essential for the application of this Rule that the decree appealed from should have proceeded on a ground common to all the plaintiffs or defendants. Otherwise the appellate Court has no jurisdiction to revirse or vary the entire decree except on the appeal of all the plaintiffs or defendants. Further the Rule does not apply unless the loner Court's decree proceeds on a common ground and not where the appellate Court wishes to proceed on a common ground and reverse or vary the lower Court's decree in favour of all the parties 1t is not necessary that all the grounds upon which the lower Court proceeds should be common to all the parties it is enough if it proceeds on any ground common to all the plaintiffs or defendants? It is not also necessary that all the defendants should claim an inforast in the property affected by the decree 3 The Rule will apply when the defendants put forward a common defence as against the plaintiff although they dispute each other sinchs.

In applying this Rule, the Court is entitled to consider the ground or finding upon which the judgment or decision is based, and not merely the operative portion of the decree 5

4 Ground common to all the plaintiffs

Where there are several plaintiffs and the suit is dismissed on a ground common to all of them the appellate Count may reverse the decree in favour of all the plaintiffs although only some of them have appealed  $^{1}A$  and B the alleged reversioners of one F such X for possession. The suit was dismissed as time-barred A alone appealed and the appellate Court came to the conclusion that the suit was not time-barred. The appellate Court reversed the decree in favour of B also although he had not joined in the appeal, maximuch as the lower Court's decree proceeded on  $\frac{1}{2}A$ .

5 Ground common to all the defendants

Under this Rule, where a decree is passed against several defendants and ille decree proceeds on any ground common to all the defendants, it is open to any of them to appeal from the whole decree and on such appeal the appellate Court can reverse or vary the decree in favour of all the defendants 1 A mortgaged certain properties to X and sold the same to B on 5--3-1925. On 10--3-1925, A paid X the whole of the interest due up to that date and it was arranged that the principal should be paid by 16-10-1925, failing which further interest would accrue from 10-3-1925 till payment. On 16-3-1925, B tendered to Y a certain sum as the principal amount due on the mortgage. On X refusing to receive the same, B deposited the amount in Court under S 84 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 on 22-10-1925 X thereafter filed a suit against A and B for the interest accrued due from 10-3-1925 to 22-10-1925 on the ground that no valid tender was made on 16-3-1925 A and B contested the suit on the ground that the tender was a valid one The trial Court passed a decree against both A and B overruling their plea B alone appealed against the decree It was held that the ground on which the decree of the lower Court proceeded, viz, that there was no valid tender Leing common to both A and B, the appellate Court could under this Rule reverse the decree against A also though he had not joined in the appeal 2

This Rule provides for-

- (1) A stay of proceedings under a decree or order appealed from and
- (2) A stry of execution of such decree or order

After an uppeal has been filed the appellate Court may order the star of proceedings under the decree or of execution of such decree? Where the application for stay is made to the appellate Court, it can grant stay of execution of the decree whether an application to execute it has in fact been made or not p oxided the conditions of sub-rule 3 are satisfied. ** *B-fore** an appeal

6 May reverse the decree in favour of all the plaintiffs or defendants

The word may in the Rule shows that the exercise of the power in der this rule is discretionary, and that the Court is not bound to exercise 11 1

There is a conflict of opinion as to whether this Rule applies to eases where one of the plaintiffs or defendants appeals without impleading the other plantiffs or defendants as parties to the appeal. The High Court of Calculta has held that it does,2 while the Lahore High Court and the Judicial Commissioner's Court of Peshawar hold that it does not 3 Opinion in the High tourt of Allahabad is conflicting, some cases holding that it does4 and some, that it does not 6 it is submitted that the Calcinta view is correct.

The Court may under this Rule, reverse or vary the decree in favour of all the plauntifs or defendants as the case may be. It does not enable a dictio to be passed against a person. Such a dicree may be passed under It is infru it the person against whom the decree is varied or reversed has been implested as a party to the initial 6. The reason is that it is a fundamental rule of law that no order can be passed against a person without his being given an opportunity of showing cause against it. It has however been held by the High Court of Bombay in the undermentioned case? that where A and If obtain a decree against C for a part of the cloun made in the suit, and in an appeal by R for the portion of the claim disallowed C filed crossobjections against the portion decreed, and the appellate Court dismissed the claim in tota, A was bound by the decision, notwithstanding he was not a party to the appeal, masmuch as B's appeal was on behalf of A also See also Note 13 to O 41, R 22 and Note 9 to O. 41, R 33, infra

Where a sult is partly decreed and partly dismissed and in an appeal by the plantiff against the part dismissed, no cross-objections are filed or agest the part decreed, the appellate Court cannot interfere with such portion. This Rule has no application to such a case 8 Where a decree is passed against A and H, and H alone appeals from the decree, the appellate Court cannot widle satting aside the decree against B pass a new decree against A.3

Where the appellate Court exencrates a particular defendant from the lower Court's decree and that defendant's interest is separable from that of the others, the appellate decree does not cours to the benefit of the latter 10

the appeal may be proceeded with by the latter 1 Where the right of appeal does not survive to the surviving appellant alone the appeal will abate so far as the deceased appellant is concerned if his legal representatives are not brought on the record within the prescribed period of limitation

If the case is of such a nature that it cannot be disposed of in the absence of the legal representatives of the deceased the whole appeal will abute But if the lower Court's decree pro ceds in a ground common to the deceased as well as to the survivors then the latter can under this Rule appeal from the whole decree and the absence of the legal representatives of the deceased is no bar to the disposal of the appeal. Hence in such a case if the legal repre entatives are not substituted within the period of limitation the appeal abates only so far as the deceased is concerned and not as a whole 2 and if the appeal succeeds the appellate decree or order entires to the benefit of all the appellants including the deceased 3

Where one of several respondents dies and his legal representatives are not brought on the record within the period of limitation and the right of appeal does not survive against the surviving respondents alone, the appeal will abate against him Sec O 22, R 4 But if the presence of the legal representatives of the deceased is essential for the determination of the appeal the entire appeal will above and must fail by reason of defect of parties. This Rule does not apply to such a case so as to prevent the abatement of the appeal as the Rule applies only to apprllants and not respondents to an appeal 4

The death of an unnecessary party does not affect the validity of a decree passed in the absence of his legal representatives 5

9 Application for execution by non appealing parties and the limitation therefor When a decree is appealed from, limitation for an application for its execution runs from the date of the appellate decree, [see Limitation Act, Art 182 (1 (2)) Where there are several plaintiffs or defendants and the appellate Court reverses or modifies the lower Court's decice on the appeal of some of the plaintiffs or defendants under this Rule, time for execution runs from the appellate decree even as regards the non-appealing parties i But where this Rule does not apply to the case the appeal does not postpone the starting of limitation for an application for execution by the non appealing parties -

- (2) A stay of execution of such decree or order

After an appeal has been filed the appellate Court may , of proceedings under the decice or of execution of such decree application for stry is made to the appellate Court, it can grant tion of the decree whether an application to execute it has in land or not provided the conditions of sub-rule 3 are satisfied to Bare Order 41 Rule 5-Note 2 is filed from an appealable decree, the Court which passed the decree may order the execution to be stayed but not of other proceedings under the decree. Nor, in such a case has the appellate Court any jurisdiction to order the stay of execution of the decree.

The object of the Rule is to see that the ultimately successful party gets not merely a burren success but is able to leap the fruits of his success. At the same time the decree-holder's right to leap the fruits of his decree should not be lightly interfected with 4. This Rule combines these two principles and, while it provides for the execution of a decree being stayed pending an appeal, it restricts the circumstances under which such stay may be granted.

The Rule applies to all decrees including decrees relating to moveable as well as immoveable property<sup>5</sup> and to decrees for the restitution of conjugal rights <sup>6</sup> But it does not enable the High Court to stay proceedings in a Court not subordinate to it <sup>7</sup>

This Rule is not oxhaustive of all the circumstances in which a stay of execution can be granted under the Code. Thus---

- (1) Under O 20, R 11 the Court which passed the decree can postpone the payment of the amount decreed 8
- (2) Under O 21, R 26 the Court to which a decree has been transferred for execution can stay execution under the circumstances mentioned therein
- (3) Under O 21 R 29 where a suit by the judgment-debtor against the decret-holder is pending execution of the decree mity be stayed
- (4) Under R 6 sub-rule (2), m/ra, the sale of immoveable property in execution of the decree appealed from may be stayed
- (5) Under O 45, R 13 the execution of a decree against which an appeal is preferred to the Privy Council can be stayed.
  (6) In cases not covered by any of the said provisions a sale or
  - execution can be stayed under the Court's inherent powers see also Note 2 to S 151 under the heading. Stay of execution and other proceedings.

3 Rule does not apply where decree has been executed

The Rule does not apply where a decree has already been executed?

3a Rule applies only when decree under appeal as capable of execution

This Rule will apply only when the decree under appeal is capable of execution. Thus, where an appeal is filed against an order overruling the objections of the judgment-debror to the execution of the decree and the appellant applies for stay of sale this Rule has no application. But the Court has power to stay the sale under its inherent powers apair from the proxisions of this Rule.

4 Stay of proceedings

Ŧ.

The mere thing of an appeal does not suspend the operation of a decree aid is no bar to proceedings being taken under the decree except so far its the appellate Court orders otherwise 1 Under the old Code there was no express provision for staying proceedings under the lower Court's decree, other than execution proceedings 2 It was, however, held that the appellate Court could, under its inherent power, stay such proceedings 3 The present rule now express-Is authorises the appellate Court not only to stay the oscention of the decice, but to stay proceedings under the decree as well 4 Thus in an appeal from an order directing the issue of a probate of a will, the appellate Court can pass an order staying the issue of probate 5 In an appeal against an order appointing a receiver, the appellate Court can hass an order duccting the receiver rot to act till further orders 6 In an appeal from a preliminary decree in a partition suit7 or in a mortgage suit8 further proceedings can be stayed under this Rule Similarly, in an appeal from a preliminary decree in a suit for iccounts an order can be made staying enquiry into the accounts pending the appeal though as a general rule no such stay will be allowed, unless ir-

3a Rule applies only when decree under appeal is capable of execution

This Rule will apply only when the deeree under appeal is capable of execution 1 Thus, where an appeal is filed against an order overruling the objections of the judgment-debtor to the execution of the decree and the appellant applies for stay of sale this Rule has no application? But the Court has power to stay the sale under its inherent powers apart from the provisions of this Rule

The mere thing of an appeal does not suspend the operation of a decree and is no bar to proceedings being taken under the decree except so far as the appellate Court orders otherwise 1 Under the old Code there was no express provision for staving proceedings under the lower Court's decree other than execution proceedings 2 It was, however, held that the appellate Court could under its inherent power stay such proceedings 3 The present rule now express-Is authorises the appellate Court not only to stay the execution of the decice, but to stay proceedings under the decree as well 4 Thus in an appeal from an order directing the issue of a probate of a will, the appellate Court can pass an order staying the issue of probate 5 In an appeal against an order appointing a receiver, the appellate Court can pass an order directing the receiver not to act till further orders 6 In an appeal from a preliminary decree in a partition suit7 or in a mortgage suit8 further proceedings can be stayed under this Rule Similarly, in an appeal from a preliminary decree in a suit for accounts an order can be made staying enquiry into the accounts pending the appeal though as a general rule no such stay will be allowed unless in

A proceeding for restitution on a decree being valied or reversed is ot a proceeding under the decre within the meaning of this Rule and cannot be stayed 12 But an application for possession is a proceeding under the order confirming a sale and the appellate Court can under this rule, order the same to be stayed pending appeal by the judgment-debtor against the order confirming the sale 13

Where proceedings as distinct from execution of a dicree, are stayed by an appellate Court, sub-rule 3 of this rule does not apply as such and theretere the furnishing of security is not compulsory though the Court has a discretion in the matter 134

The Court can make the payment of interest a condition for staying use up on of the decree 14

5 Stay of execution when may be granted

As has been seen in Note 2 above, an appellate Court has no power before an appeal is filed before it, to order the stay of execution of the decree of the lower Court It is the Court which passed the de ree that can in such a case, stay the execution of the decree 1 An application for stay of execution of a decree passed on the original side of the High Court in view of an intended appeal must ord name be made to the Judge who tred the case 2 It is, however, essential for the applicability of sub-rule (2) that the necree, the execution of which is sought to be stried should be an appealable one, and that the application for stay is made before the expiry of the period of limitat on for the appeal 3 Thus if a decree has become final and unappealable the Court has no power to stay the execution thereof in view of a pending application for review 32 The f ct that a preliminary decree has been appealed. aga not, does not empower the Court to order the stay of execution of the final decree in the suit from which no appeal is intended to be preferred to 4 Court cannot under this rule order the stay of evecution of the decree at the instance of a person not 1 parts to the suit, who claims immoveable properis Lable to be taken under the decree 3c

After an appeal has been filed from a decree it is only the appellate Court that can under this rule, stay the execution thereof, the lower Court has no power to do so,4 though it can grant time to the judgment-debtor to enable (1 10o) 33 C 11 927 (332)

h.m o obtain a stay order from the appellate Court 5 The appellate Court may grant a stay even where an appeal has been filed in forma pauperis and the application for leave to appeal as a pauper is pending disposal 6a. But in order that the appellate Court may exercise its powers under this rule, it is necessary that there should be an appeal pending against the decree the execution of which is sought to be stayed. Thus, where an appeal is filed against an crite, retusing to set aside an exparte decree, the appellate Court has no power to stay the execution of the decree,6 though the original Court can rostpone the sale in execution of such decree, under the provisions of O 21. R 69 Similarly, the appellate Court cannot, in an appeal against an order filing an a vard stay the execution of the decree on the award 8 It has been, however, held by the High Court of Bombay in the case cited below. 9 that, in an appeal from an order refusing to set aside an award, it has utherent power to stay the evecution under the award

Rule 6, sub rule (2), utra, provides that the Court which passed the decree may stay the sale in an execution of the decree. This, however, does not affect the powers of the appellate Court under this rule to stay such sale 10 Nor does the refusal of a stay under this rule bar an application under R 6 n A stay may be granted though the decree may have specified a date within which the judgment-debtor should comply with it and such date has passed without the judgment-debtor doing so 12

It has been held by the High Court of Labore that no order staying execution of the decree appealed from can be made when no execution applicat on has been made or is pending before any Court 13 It purports to rely upua the underment oned case of the High Court of Bombay14 which was a case of a stay of a sale under the section corresponding to R 6, which requires an application for execution to be pending before the lower Court. The said decision of the Lahore High Court cannot be accepted as laying down the correct Law

6 Sufficient cause '

A stay of execution under this Rule cuber by the appellate Court or by the Court which passed the decree, can be ordered only on 'sufficient cause being shown for such stay A stay will not be granted where the anneal does not raise fairly arguable questions? The mere fact that the period of h it mon for appeal from the decree has not expired is not a sufficient idering the stay of execution of the decree 3 The fact that the judgment debur his been constructively guilty of contempt of Court in not having complied with a decree which specified a certain time within which he should have done so does not disentitle him to an order for stay 4 See 11 (1900) 25 Loui 243 (744)

security for the performance of the decree that may be ultimately binding upon him 1 Thus security may be ordered to be given for the restitution of mesne profits which may be ultimately declared due to respondent 2 A stay order on condition of security being given comes into operation only on security being given 3

The Court should not accept any security without inquiring into its sufficiency 4 The judgment-debtor must be allowed an opportunity to show that the security offered is sufficient 5 A security, the enforcement of which is likely to lead to litigation should not be accepted 6

Stay of execution is often granted on condition that the appellant deposits the amount of the security in Court In such cases if the appeal is dismissed the money so deposited is held to the credit of the decree-holder. The depositor cannot withdraw it? even if the decree-holder has failed to apply for execution within the prescribed period of limitation 8 A decree-holder attaching the amount in execution of his decree is not entitled to claim any portion thereof in preference to the decree-holder with reference to whose decree the deposit was made 9 If the sum so deposited exceeds the sum ultimately awarded to the decree-holder at should be applied towards the payment of the costs 10 Where, however, the judgment-debtor satisfied the decree otherwise, the sum deposited as security should be returned to him 11 See also the undermentioned case 112

A security bond hypothecating immovable property is chargeable with stamp duty under Art 40 of the Stamp Act, 1899 12 According to the High Courts of Madras13 and Rangeon14 such a bond for a sum exceeding Rs 100 15 compulsorily registrable The High Courts of Lahore16 and Bombay16 have on the other hand held that it is not

14 When respondent is insolvent

Where the respondent decici-holder was an insolvent and the appellant judgment-debtor applied for stay of execution as to costs, he was ordered to pay the costs to the respondent's solicitor on his personal undertaking that he would return the amount, if the appellant succeeded in the appeal.

15 Insolvency of appellant and deposit

Where execution is stayed on the appellant depositing in Court the decretal amount and the appellant is thereafter declared an insolvent, the amount deposited in Court is payable, on the appeal being dismissed, to the decree holder and not to the Official Assignce 1

16 Effect of stay order

The jurisdiction of a Court to deal with further proceedings under the decree ceases when the appellant Court stays such proceedings, and an order passed while the stay order is in force is without jurisdiction. Where the stay order is conditional on security being given it does not come into operation till such security is given and does not affect the validity of a sale held after the order for stay and before the giving of the security? Where an order for stay is set aside on the ground of fraud the effect is, as if the stay had never been ordered at all. Therefore a sale held while the order was in force, is valid? The appointment of a receiver does not operate as a stay of execution.

17 Effect of uncommunicated order staying execution

There is a conflict of decisions on the question whether execution proceedings held by a Court after passing of an order for stay, but before the communication thereof to the Court, are valid. It has been held by the Calcuita High Court that an order for stay of execution takes effect as soon as it is passed and not after it has reached the executing Court, and that therefore, a sale held after an order for stay has been passed but before it reaches the execution Court is invalid. According to the Madras High Court an order for

The Bombay High Court has held that it is difficult to lay down a principle as to the moment of operativeness of the stay order According to that High Court a great deal depends on the nature of the order the question of good fath and other facts According to the Lahore High Court a sale held before the stay order reaches the anctioneer is valid 5 The Thigh Court of Kangoon has held that such a sale is illegal 6

18 Costs of application

It has been held by the High Centr of Bombay that in the absence of pecial circums in eathe general rule is that the class of the application for stry should be cests in the opport! The High Court of Calcutta has on the other hand held that the order for stay is only an indulernce shown to the appellant and therefore he should be made to pit the costs thereof even though he is su cossful in his application 2

19 Appeal

The question whether an order printing or refusing seas of execution is appealable or not depends upon the question whether such an order falls within S 47 \s to this see generally Notes 44 84 and 86 to S 47 and the undermentioned eases? It was held in the undermentioned case that an order reacting the se nexts offered and ordering execution to continue to 1 of on importing the refusal to stay the execution of the decree and is not, therefore uppenlible as a electee under S 472

2 Scope and applicability of the Rule

In order that this rule may apply it is essential that an anneal should be pending as must the decree under execution, and an order should have been made for the execution of the decree Where therefore, no appeal has been filed against the decree t or where no order for execution has been made,? there can be no order for security for restitution under this rule. Where an appeal is only against a part of the decree, an order for security for resultation cannot be passed with reference to the portion not appealed against 3 It is competent for the trial Court as well as the appellate Court to pass an order for security under this rule There is, however, a distinction between the powers of the two Courts. The Court which passed the electric shall, on sufficient cause being shown, require security, while the appellate Court may for like cause, direct the trial Court to take security. The rule applies only to parties to the suit 3s

Pending an appeal to the Press Council the trial Court has no jurisdiction to pass an order for security under this rule. The matter is governed by the provisions of O 45 and not by this order 4

3 Restitution - Sec 5 111 aute

4 Security.

A surety is not discharged merely by reason of the death of the decreeholder! Where under a decree for redemption, the mortgagor decree-holder deposits the mortgage money in Court and applies for execution of the decree the money so deposited can be accepted as security for restitution under this tule 2 Where the holder of a decree for money is willing to give security for restitution, the Court should not ordinarily grant a stay of execution of the decree 3 As to the extent of the halnhty of the surety, see Note 8 to S 145 and the cases cited below 4

  - 8 Stay of sale of immovable property

Sub-R (2) is a mandatory provision It is, therefore incumbent on the Court to stay the sale of immovable property, on such terms as to giving security or otherwise as it thinks fit. An order for sity of sale can be passed even where the sale has already taken place provided it has not been confirmed? The sub rule applies also to sale of immovable property in execution of amortgage decree. Where a person has become hable as a surety for the performance of a decree and an order for the execution of such a decree by the sale of immoveable properties is made against him under S. 148 ante, he is a judgment debtor within the meaning of this rule and is therefore citized to notly for stay of execution.

The expression on such terms as to giving security or otherwise in bit rule, 2 of thus Rule incluse that the terms may be either giving security or any other term such as the deposit of the decree amount in the Court ordering the star. The Court has therefore jurisdiction to make it a condition that the stay would be given only on the judgment-debtor depositing the decree amount in Court 25.

An order for the stay of sale of immovable property under this tule does not preclude the execution of the decree in other ways, c g by proceed-

The Court cannot, under this rule stay the sale in execution of a decree passed by another Court in another sunt 3

An order for security for costs can be passed under the rule only against the appellant. No such order can be passed against the respondent 8 Nor can the Court demand even from the appellant, security for the entire decree amount Thus the Court cannot while adoutting an appeal under R 11 of this Order issue notice to the respondent conditional on payment by the appellant of the decretal amount plus a sum of Rs 500 as security for the costs of the respondent 5

There is a contlict of opinion as to the applicability of the rule to appeals in forma pauperis According to the High Court of Madras' and Rangoon2 and the Judicial Commissioner's Court of Nagpur3 the rule applies to pauper appeals but the Court should not make an order for security except for very special reasons such as, the appeal being a speculative one and the pauper a mere puppet in the hands of persons well able to find security 4 The High Courts of Calcutta5 Bombay8 and Lahore7 have, on the other hand, held that O 41, R 10 does not apply to appeals by paupers

1 Registration of appeal

The registration of an appeal is a purely ministerial act. The Court can reject an appeal after it has been registered 1

A memorandum of appeal which has not been registered is not to be regarded as an appeal that is before the Court, but only as a memorandum of appeal presented to it. Therefore the provisions of law as to how an appeal can be dealt with after admission do not apply it the stage before registration of the appeal 2.

2 Ex parte admission of appeal-Power to dismiss appeal subsequently on ground of limitation

Where an appeal is presented after the expiry of the period of himitation along with an application to excuse the delay under S 5 of the Limitation Act, the question of excusing the delay ought to be determined at the stage of admission of the appeal after notice to the respondent 1 Where, however co. parte order is made admitting such an appeal the Court can argain go into the question of limitation at the hearing of the appeal and dismiss it if there is no sufficient ground for excusing the delay 2 Where a District Judge admits such an appeal ex parte, and the appeal is thereafter transferred to a Subordinate Judge for disposal the litter has power to dismiss the appeal on the ground of limitation 3

1 Scope and object of the Rule

In Lekha v Bhauna, 1 L R 18 All 101, which was a case under S 549 of the old Code corresponding to this rule, Edge, C J, observed as follows -

The object of that section was to secure the respondent in an appeal from the rik of having to meur lurther costs which he might never succeed in getting out of the It was intended under the first paragraph that the Court should have entire discretion in all cases not coming under the second paragraph in making or relusing an order for security for cost. Under the second paragraph which is the provise to the first, the Court is given no discretion in the matter In cases falling within that provise the Court has to follow the mandate of the statute and make an order for security for costs. An order for security for costs liaving been made under either the first paragraph or the second, it is by the third paragraph of the section enacted that if such security be not lurnished within

Compare O 25, Rr 1 and 2

Under this rule security for costs can be demanded either before or after the respondent is called upon to appear and answer? Further, the security may be for the costs of the appeal or of the original suit or of both?

An order for security for costs can be passed under the rule only against the appellant. No such order can be passed against the respondent hor can the Court demand even from the appellant, security for the enlire decree amount. Thus the Court cannot while admitting an appeal under R. 11, of this Order issue notice to the respondent conditional on payment by the appellant of the decretal amount plus a sum of Rs. 500 as security for the costs of the respondent.

2 To what appeals the Rule applies

This rule applies to appeals from decrees By S. 2, sub-S. (2) an order determinang any question under S. 47 is also a decree. It follows that this rule will apply to appeals from orders under S. 47 By vartue of O. 43, R. 2 mira this rule will apply also to appeals from orders other than those falling under S. 47.

3 Appeals in forma pauperis

There is a conflict of opinion as to the applicability of the rule to pipeals in forma pauperis According to the High Court of Madras¹ and Rangoom² and the Yuddical Commissioner's Court of Nagpur³ the rule applies to pauper appeals but the Court should not make an order for security except for very special reasons such as, the appeal being a speculative one and the pauper, a mere puppet in the hands of persons well able to find security ⁴ The High Courts of Calcutta³ Bombay³ and Lahore³ have, on the other hand, held that O 41, R 10 does not apply to appeals by paupers

The rule applies to appeals under Cl 15 of the Letters Patent1 unless the rules framed by the particular High Court are inconsistent therewith in which case the former will override the latter R 736 of the Bombay High Court which requires an appellant to deposit Rs 500 as security for costs in all cases is not inconsistent with this Rule and an appellant may be called upon under that Rule to furnish any additional security for costs that may be consudered proper 2 Similarly R 354 framed by the Madras High Court is not inconsistent with this Rule 3

6 Grounds for demanding security

As has been seen in Note 1 above the Court has in cases coming under the first paragraph of sub rule (1), a discretion in the matter of demanding security for costs. But in view of the fact that the Rule tends to restrict a party's right of appeal, it should be applied with great caution, and very satisfactory grounds should be shown before making an order for security under this Rule 2 The discretion is not an arbitrary one but must be exercised in accordance with sound judicial principles 3 The appellate Court may well be guided in exercise of such discretion by the provisions of O 25 R 14 The following have been held not to be sufficient grounds for making an order for security under this Rule -

> (1) The mere fact that the appellant may lose and may not pay the costs of the appeal5 or that the appellant is an undischarged insolvente or is a poor man from whom, if the appeal fails it would be difficult to recover costs of the appeal 7 It was never intended by the Legislature in enacting this rule to

- (2) The mere fact that a third person has incited the appeal? or that the appellant has parted with a portion of his interest in the subject-metter of the suit for the purpose of obtaining funds for the carrying on of the hitgauon<sup>10</sup> or that a relative of the appellant is assisting the appellant financially in the hitgauon<sup>11</sup> or that the appellant has rich relations who can afford to pay the decree amount <sup>12</sup>
- (3) The mere fact that the appellant has not paid the costs of the original sunt 12
- (4) The fact that one of the appellants as a female 14

From the above cases it is clear that mere poverty is no ground for ordering security. But poverty along with other circumstances may justify an order under this Rule 13. Thus where the appellant is proved to be a mere pupper in the hands of others who are promoting the hitigation from behind the secness of where there is evidence of facts which cast doubts on the honesty and bona fides of the appellant, or the appeal is vexatious, it the appellant may be ordered to furnish security under this Rule. Where the parties have agreed that security for costs should be given, the Court should pass an order for security under this Rule 14.

Although mere poverty of the appellant is no ground for ordering security for the costs of the appeal it is also on the other hand not a ground for dispensing with security where such security is necessary in the circumstances of the case 19

Security for costs should not be ordered where the consequences of such an order would be unduly penal  $^{20}$

8 Notice to show cause

It is a fundamental principle of law that no order can be passed against a person without giving him an opportunity to be heard in defence Hence, an order for security for costs of an appeal cannot be passed against a person without giving him notice to show cause why such an order should not be made 1 A mere notice to show cause does not amount to a demand and if the order for security is passed in his absence, he cannot be held to have failed to comply with the order if it was not communicated to him 2

9 Amount of security

An order under this Rule may direct specified amount to be paid into Court as security for costs 1 It is, however, not necessary in all cases to specify the sum for which security must be given. It is enough if the order directs security to be given for the costs of the appeal, or of the original suit or of both 24 A surety under thus Rule is discharged as soon as the appeal is allowed, the liability is not revived merely because the appellate order is reversed by a higher Court 2 The Taxing Officer's decision as to the amount for which security should be given is subject to revision by the High Court 3

In Bombay, the practice is not to require security proportionate to the estimated costs of appeal but to require generally a security of only Rs 500 4 See also the undermentioned case 5

10 Extension of time for furnishing security

The Court may, in its discretion, enlarge the time allowed for furnishing the security ordered1 and this may be done even though the period originally fixed has expired 2 (See S 148) But when once an appeal has been rejected for failure to give the security ordered, it is not thereafter open to the Court to extend the time for furnishing security 3

As to the circumstances which would justify extension of time it is a matter purely in the discretion of the Court 4 Thus, when the period fixed expires on a day on which the offices of the Court are closed for business, the security

11 Dismissal of appeal for failure to give security

On appellant's failure to give the security within the period fixed, the Court is bound under sub-R (2) to reject the appeal 1 A special application by the respondent to have the appeal rejected is not necessary, and he can raise the objection at the hearing of the appeal 2 Where the period fixed for giving security expired during the long vacation but the Court office was open during the vacation, it was held that it was not a compliance with the order if the security is given on the reopening day and that the appeal should be rejected? Where the security bond furnished was not drawn up in the terms of the Judge's order, it was held that there was a failure to give security and that the appeal should be rejected 4 But an appeal should not be rejected merely for a clerical error in the security bond and the error should be allowed to be corrected 5 In the underment oned case8 where it was objected that the executant of the security bond had not been duly authorised to execute it on behalf of the appellant, the Privy Council held that the case should have been adjourned till a proper bond was executed and that the appeal should not have been summarily rejected. The appeal should not be rejected if the order for security has been passed without giving notice to the appellant 7 (See Note 8 supra) A mere notice to show cause does not amount to a demand for security and where an order for security is passed in the appellant's absence, the order must be communicated to him before he can be held to have failed to comply with it 8 Reasonable opportunity should be given to the appellant to furnish the security and where it is not given and the appeal is dismissed for the appellant's failure to comply with the order for security, the High Court can interfere in sevision 9

Once an appeal is dismissed for failure to give security for costs, the Court cannot afterwards extend the time for giving security 10

13 Limitation for application for restoration

It has been held by the Madras High Court that Art 168 of the Limitation Vct applies to an application for the restoration of an appeal dismissed for failure to furnish security under this rule 1 Even if Art 168 be held not to apply the application ought to be made within a reasonable time and ordinarily would be too late after thirty days from the date of dismissal 2

The usual procedure followed when ordering security for costs under this rule is that the respondent first obtains a rule mist on affidavat as to the facts on which he rehes. But the remedy by suit is also available and a suit against the surety is maintainable though execution of the decree against the judgment-debtor is baried by limitation. ### 1 Legislative changes

The words in sub-r (1) after sending for the record if it thinks fit so to do are This makes it clear that the Court is not bound to send for the record in any case (See Note 3)

In sub r (2) the words the Court may make an order that the appeal be dis mis ed have been substituted for the words the appeal shall be dismissed for default make it clear that when an appeal is dismissed under sub r (2) the order is merely an order of di mi sal for default and not a decree and hence is not appealable (See S 2 sub s (2) )

2 Scope and object of the Rule

This rule refers to a stage after the memorandum of appeal has been admitted and the appeal has been registered under R 9, ante 1 lt applies also to Letters Latent Appeals where the rules of the High Court do not prohibit its application to them 2 But the rule does not apply to the summary dismissal of an appeal under S 476 of the Crampal Procedure Code 3 An order of dismissal for the appellant's failure to make the necessary deposit for printing may be covered by this rule or R 16 4 The procedure of the rule is not applicable to a case where notice of the appeal has been issued to the respondent 42 The rule contemplates the dismissal of an appeal. Hence pending an appeal by the defendant the summary dismissal by the appellate Court, of plaintiff's suit as not being properly stamped is irregular 5 The rule applies also to proceedings under the Agra Tenancy Act III of 1926 but the Board is not bound under that Act to hear any party before rejecting an appeal summarily it applies also to appeals under the Bengal Tenancy Act of 1885 6

3 After sending for the record

The words in sub-R (1) after sending for the record if it thinks fit so to do are new But even prior to the present Code it was held that it was not obligatory on the appellate Court to send for the record in every case in which it summarily dismissed the appeal 1 But when the record has been lost and the appeal has been dismissed in consequence, the appeal should be retried when the record is found 2

May diamies the appeal

The discretion given by this rule is a judicial discretion and not an arbitrary discretion 1 It should be very sparingly used and only in exceptional cases 2

A pre-emption suit was decreed on condition of plaintiff paying the pre emption money within a month from the decree. The plaintiff appealed against the condition but the appeal was dismissed on the ground that the money had not been paid within one month. It was held that the suit should not have been dismissed on that ground masmuch as the condition of payment of money within one month was itself the subject of appeal 3 Where the High Order 41 Rule 11-Note 2 Note 3

See Note 17 infra

5 Notice to appellant

An appeal should not be dismissed under this rule unless nouce of the day of hearing has been given to the appellant or his pleader? The mere fact that the appellant on the day of filmg the appeal may say that he does not intend to appear at the preliminary hearing, is no justification for the failure to mic notice 2

6 Judgment if should be written -Sec O 41, R 31 Note 9

7 Time barred appeal

An appeal cannot be rejected on the ground of lumitation at the time of admission, without fixing a date for hearing the appellant. If the Judgo thinks that the appeal is too late, he should admit the appeal if it is otherwise valid, and fix a date for hearing the appellant on the question of limitation under R 11 before assuing notice to the respondent ! The rejection of an appeal under R 11 as being time barred is equivalent to a dismissal thereof and such an order is appealable 2

8 Order of dismissal if a decree

The dismissal of an appeal under this rule is a decised and appealable as such2 even if a formal judgment is not written under the provisions of R 31. mira

9 Effect of dismissal-Amendment of decree

The dismissal of an appeal under this rule amounts to a decree which supersedes the decree of the lower Court Hence after the dismissal, the decree can be amended only by the appellate Court and not by the lower Court 1 The Bombay High Court has, however, held that the dismissal of an appeal under this rule leaves untouched the decree appealed from and the lower Court alone

11 Dismissal for default under Sub R (2)

If the appellant or his pleader does not appear when the appeal is called on for hearing, the appeal may be disnussed for default 1 But when no ronce of the date need for hearing has been given to the appellant the appeal cannot be dismissed for default under sub-R (2) 2 A dismissal for default implies the absence of the party or his pleader-so where the pleader of the appellant is present but is unable through a physical disability to argue the ease, and the appeal is dismissed, such dismissal is not for default 3 Where an appeal is dismissed for default, it is the lower Court's decree that is the executable decree in the case 4

12 Re admission of appeal dismissed for default

Under R 19, infra, an appeal dismissed for default under this rule may be re-admitted See R 19, infra

13 Review

The disnussal of an appeal under sub R 1 precludes the lower Court from entertaining an application for review of the decree because it cannot be said in such a case that no appeal was preferred within the meaning of S 114 and O 47, R 11

But it is open to the appellate Court to review its order dismissing an appeal under sub-R (1), and it is not necessary to send notice to the respondent before doing so 2 In order granting a review of such an order of dismissal without notice to the respondent cannot be questioned by a different bench from that which granted the review 3 When the dismissal of an appeal is set aside on review, the hearing of the appeal cannot be restricted to the grounds on which review was asked for 4 Conversely the grounds urged in the application for review which were not raised in the original memorandum of appeal, cannot be argued at the hearing of the appeal after its restoration on review b The summary rejection of an appeal as being time barred without fixing a date for hearing the appellant is in contravention of the law and forms a good ground for review 5

When a second appeal is dismissed under R 11 (1) no application is maintainable for review of the order on the ground of the discovery of new and important matter as the High Court in second appeal is bound by the

16 Second appeal

Summary rejection -At the time of admitting a second appeal the admission Judge is entitled to consider whether any of the grounds mentioned in S 100 and raised in the memorandum of appeal in fact exist and apply to the case before him, and if they do not, to reject the appeal summarily without fixing any date for hearing the appellant

17 Restriction of grounds of appeal on admission

A Court cannot on admission of an appeal under R 11, restrict the grounds on which the appeal is to be heard finally and any such restrictive order is ultra tires 1 Where an appeal summarily dismissed under R 11 is restored on review the appellant is not confined at the hearing of the appeal to the grounds taken by him in his application for review 2

18 Insolvency appeals

The High Court has concurrent jurisdiction with the District Judge to grant leave to appeal under S 46 of the Insolvent Debtor's Act (11 and 12 Vic C 21) and if the District Judge refuses leave to appeal the High Court may grant the same in which the appeal may be taken as admitted and there is no necessity to make a further application under O 41 1 There is nothing in the Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907) to interfere with any right of appeal to the Privy Council that might otherwise exist 2

Service of notice

An appeal cannot be heard and decided without fixing a date for such hearing or without giving the respondent due notice of such date 1 But failure to give notice to an unnecessary respondent does not viriate the appeal 2 It is the duty of the appellant to give the correct address of the respondent. The latter is not bound to communicate his address to the Court or to the appellant and his omussion to do so is not an abuse of the provisions of the Code 3

The service of nonce on the respondent should be in the manner provided for the service of summons on a defendant 4

2 Dismissal of appeal after return of notices as not served

Under O 9, R 5, af a summons is returned unserved and the plaintiff does not apply for fresh summons within three months thereafter, the suit must be dismissed unless within those three months, the plaintiff satisfies the Court that there is a sufficient cause for extending the period for applying for fresh summons. This Rule does not apply to appeals. Hence, although the appellant has applied neither for fresh nonces nor for extension of time within the time allowable under O 9 R 5, the appeal need not be dismissed and the Court can excuse the delay and order fresh notices to issue 1 Conversely, the appellant cannot claim to be entitled, as of right, to apply for fresh notices within the period allowed under O 9, R 5 If the appellant fails to take out fresh notices within the time ordered by the Court, the appeal can be disposed of under O 17 R 3 notwithstanding that the period allowable under O 9, R 5 has not expired 2 If after the return of a notice of appeal as not served the appellant makes undue delay an applying for fresh notices the appellate Court may refuse to issue fresh notice 3 Where an appeal against a decree for joint possession of land is dismissed as against some of the respondents for failure to serve notice of appeal on them the appeal cannot proceed even as against the others 4 See Note 5 to O 9 R 5 been held by the High Courts of Mlahabad, Calcutta, Madras and Rangoons that the fact that the Court is not bound to dismuss an appeal for default does not enable it to dismuss the appeal on the merits, but only to adjourn it to another date. The High Court of Patna has, on the other hand, held that the powers of an appellate Court under the present Rule as altered in the new Code are wide enough to include the power to dismuss the appeal on the merits if the appellate Court should think fit to do so 6

5 Compromise after dismissal for default

An appeal was dismissed for default of both the parties. Subsequently the appellant applied to the Court for restoring the appeal and pending the disposal of the application both the parties filed a pention of compromise praying for a decree in terms of the compromise. The Court subsequently rejected the application for restoring the appeal. It was held that in the circumstances of the case the Court ought to have restored the case and given effect to the petition of compromise filed.

6 Dismissal for default of prosecution

Where the materials essential for the progress of an appeal such as supplying translations of vertiacular documents preparation of Bench copies, etc. are wanting owing to the appellant's default the Court can dismiss the appeal for default of prosecution.

In the undermentioned case<sup>2</sup> the High Court of Madras has held that under R 105 of the Madras Appellate Side Rules, the High Court can dismiss a second appeal for failure to translate and print the necessary records Such an order of dismissal is not ultra vires and does not contravene the provisions of this order.

- 7 Dismissal for default if affects cross objections See Notes under O 41 R 22
- 8 Dismissal for default of appeal from ex parte decree—Application to set aside ex parte decree

The dismissal of an appeal for default is not a decree and therefore, the decree of the Court of first instance is not superseded by or merged in the order of the appellate Court. Hence after an appeal from an ex parts decree has been dismissed for default the first Court can allow an application to set aside the ex parts decree 1 See Note 11 to 0 9. R. 13. ante

9 Effect of diamissal for default

An order dismissing an appeal for default is not a decree and hence the decree of the lower Court is not superseded by or merged in it <sup>1</sup> see Note 16 to S 2 sub S (2) It will follow from this that the decree to be executed in such a case is the decree of the lower Court <sup>2</sup> (see Note 5 to S 38)

It will also follow that an application for amendment of the decree must be made to the lower Court and not to the appellate Court 3 A contrary view has, however, been expressed by the High Court of Madras in the undermentioned case 4 It is submitted that the view is not correct. On the dismissal of an appeal for default a fresh appeal from the same decree may be entertained, provided the period of limitation has not expired 5

The decision of the lower Court operates as res judicata although the appeal against it has been dismissed, not on the merits, but for default 6

10 Notice of date for hearing appeal

The appellant must have due notice of the date of hearing 1 Where no date has been fixed for the hearing of an appeal the appellate Court has no power to dismiss the appeal for default (See R 12 mira) 2 Where an appeal has been remanded for hearing, it is the duty of the parties to apply to the Court to fix a date for the hearing of the appeal or to ascertain from the Court what date has been fixed therefor 3 An appeal may be taken up and disposed of before the appointed day if the pleaders of the parties are present and argue the case without objection 4 Notice of the date of hearing must be given to the respondent before the appeal can be decided er parte (See R 14 ante)5 cases I olding contrary view 2. The definition of a decree in S. 2 (2) in the present Code expressly provides that an order of dismissal for default does not amount to a decree Also, in the present Rule the words 'the Court may make an order that the appeal be dismissed have been substituted for the words the appeal shall be dismissed for default which occurred in the old section Reading S 2 (2) and O. 41, R 17 together, it is clear that an order dismissing an appeal for defau is not a decree Nor is it one of the appealable orders referred to in S 104 Hence no anneal lies from such an order 3 The proper procedure to set aside the order is to apply under R 19, infra

Where an appeal is dismissed on the ments, the order is a decree and is ap, calable as such notwithstanding that the Court ought to have dismissed the appeal for default and not on the ments 4 But in some old decisions it was held that in such cases, the order, though dismissing the appeal on the ments, must nevertheless be regarded as an order dismissing the appeal for default *

An an cal was dismissed as a cainst some of the respondents on the ground of want of proper service of nouce on them. When the appeal came on for hearing against the other respondents it was dismissed on the ground that it was not maintainable against them alone Held that in an appeal against the decree of dismussal the previous order dismissing the appeal against some of the respondents could be attacked under S 105 8

An order dismissing an appeal for failure to pay the deficiency in the stamp for the appeal is an order of rejection of the appeal and as such constitutes a decree 7 See S 2 (2) It has been held by the Oudh Judicial Commissioner's Court's that when an appeal is dismissed under an erroneous impression as to procedural law, an appeal lies from the order of dismissal because the effect in such case is that of dismissal on a preliminary point (Sce Notes under R 11 supra )

Dismissal for failure to supply identi Re admission of appeal dismissed Sco R 19 belo v Appeal Revision

1 Dismissal for default in depositing cost of notice

This Rule enables the appellate Court to dismiss an appeal only when the process fees for service of nonce on the respondent have not been deposited But it does not warrant the dismissal of an appeal merely because the appellant has not filed the notice required to be filed by the circular orders in the Court for the purpose of issuing process 1 An appeal is liable to be dismissed for default in depositing the cost of notice although the default was committed by an ignorant business agent of the appellant 2

An order of dismissal cannot be made under this Rule unless the appellate Court has fixed a date by which the cost of notice is to be paid?

2 Appeal cannot be dismissed before day fixed for hearing

An order of dismissal cannot be made under the Rule before the da e need for hearing, merely because the appellant has failed to deposit the cost of not counting the time timed by the Court 1

3 Effect of dismissal of appeal against one of several respondents

Where a decree for joint possession is passed in favour of three respordents, and the appeal from the decree is dismissed as against one of them for failure to serve notice on limit the appeal cannot proceed against the other two respondents the reason is that even if the decree is set aside in the appeal against them the entire decree which is a joint one, can be executed by the other respondent so its mullify the decree of the appellate Court?

4 Dismissal for failure to supply identifier

The default referred to in the Rule is default in prying the cost of rotice before the time fixed. Hence an appeal crannot be dismissed under the Rule on account of the appellant's failure to supply an identifier for identifying the re-pondent to the pro-ess serier.

6 Appeal  $\sim$  oppoal les against an order under this Rule. The proper remedy is under R  $~19^{\,3}$

7 Revision

Before an appellate Court can dismiss an appeal under this Rule it must fix a date by which the process-fees are to be paid. If it does not do so, its order of dismissal can be set aside in reusion. Where, however the appellant fails to pay the process-fees even on the date of the hearing of the appeal and also omiss to plead that the non payment was due to the fact that he had not been directed to pay by any fixed date, the order of the appellate Court will not be interfered with in revision.

R. 19. [S 558] Where an appeal is dismissed under O Rule 11, sub-rulo (2) or Rule 17 or Rule 18, the appellant may apply to the Appellate Court for the re-admission of the appeal, and where it is proved that ho was prevented by any sufficient cause<sup>3</sup> from appearing when the appeal was called on for hearing or from depositing the sum so required, the Court shall re-admit<sup>2</sup> the appeal on such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks ht

1 Scope and applicability of Rule

This rule applies only where an appeal has been dismissed under any of the rules specified therein 1 O 41 R 17 does not apply when the arguments have been heard. Hence the dismissal of an appeal in default when the arguments have been heard is not covered by Rule 17 and this rule does not therefore apply to such a case 2

Shall re admit the appeal

The expression used in the corresponding section of the former Code, S SS8 was may re admit the appeal Nevertheless it was held by the Madras High Court under the old Code that the Court was bound to restore the appeal if sufficient cause was established 1 In the present rule legislative offect is given to this view 2

3 Sufficient Cause - See Note 8 to 0 9 B 9 ante

When an application is made to restore an appeal dismissed for default the Court should not reject the application summarily, but should give the applicant an opportunity to substantiate his allegations, as to sufficiencause A summary reject on without enquiry is improper 1

5 Notice

Order 9, R 9 lays down, that notice must be given to the defendant before a suit dismissed for default of plaintiff's appearance is restored. In the underment or ed casel it was held by the Allahabad High Court that even if O 9, R 9 be held to apply to appeals by force of S 107 sub-S (2), not ce is not necessary for the restoration of an appeal dismissed for default owing to the absence of both the parties. But the propriety of an ex parte order setting aside an order of dismissal for default may be questioned at the hearing of the appeal 2 The dismissal of an appeal for failure to pay the deficit Court-fee on the memorandum of appeal is not a dismissal for default. An application for restoration in such a case is not covered by this rule but is an application for review under O 47 and notice to the opposite party is nece-sary 3

6 Dismissal for failure to deposit cost of paper book or to pay Court fees 19

This Rule applies, as has been stated in Note I above only where the dismissal has been under any of the rules specified therein. Hence the Rule does not apply where an appeal has been dismissed under the High Court rules for failure to deposit the cost of preparing the paper book. The remedy in such a case is not by an application under this rule but an application for review 1 Similarly, where an appeal is dismissed for failure to pay deficit Court-fees within the time allowed by the Court, the appeal cannot be restored under this rule 2

7 Inherent power to restore appeal dismissed for default -See S 151 Note 2

When an appeal is dismissed for default the applicant may present a fresh appeal provided the period of limitation for an appeal has not expired He is not confined to his remedy under this rule 1 An appellant whose appeal has been dismissed for default may also apply for review in a proper case The Allahabad High Court has held that when the appellant has allowed his remedy under this rule to become time-barred, he cannot come by way of an application for review 2 But the Puniab Chief Court has held a contrary view 3 In an application for restoration under this rule the only thing that the Court can consider is whether there was 'sufficient cause for appellant's default. Questions as to the legality of the order of dismissal can only be raised in an application for review 4

9 Limitation

An application for restoration of an appeal under this rule is governed by Art 168 of the Limitation Act and must be filed within 30 days from the date of the dismissal of the appeal 2 The Court has no power to enlarge the said period 2 Proceedings taken on an application filed after the period of limitation are invalid 4 An application for re-admiss on made not under

Where the order of dismissal is ultra ures Art, 168 does not apply of Thus, an appeal cannot be dismissed for default where the appellant is dead. Where an appeal is dismissed for default under such circumstances, the appellant's legal representatives need not apply for restoration within the period of 30 days allowed under Art, 168. The order of dismissal is no bar to the application of the legal representatives to be brought on the record and such an application is governed by Art. 176 of the Limitation Act 7 The provisions of S 5 of the Limitation Act or of S 6 of that Act 9 do not apply to an application under this rule.

See, however, the amendments of this Rule by the High Court of Madras.

2. 'Any person who was a party to the suit'

I.

The rule applies only when the proposed party respondent was a party to the suit in the Court from a hose decree the appeal is preferred 1 On the question whether, apart from R 20, the appellate Court has power to add as respondent to the appeal persons who were not parties to the suit in the Court below, there is a conflict of decisions. According to the High Courts of Calcutta2 and Patna3 the appellate Court has such power independently of this Rule to add as respondents to the appeal persons who were not parties to the suit in the Court of first instance. The High Courts of Allahabad,4 Bombays and Lahores have, on the other hand, held that the appellate Court has no such power The High Court of Rangoon also seems to be of the same view? It is submitted that the Calcutta and Patna view is correct However, there is nothing to prevent the appellate Court, in a proper case, to remand the case to the lower Court with a direction to add the omitted part es 8 Further in a case where a person can be added as a respondent to an appeal by virtue of the provisions of O 22, R 10, there is no objection to his being so added though he was not a party to the suit in the lower Court.º Persons who were parties to the suit in the lower Court originally but whose names were struck off before the passing of the decree are nevertheless part es to the suit within the meaning of R 20 10

20, Interested in the result of the appeal

Before the Privy Council decision in Chokalingam v Seethar there was a conflict of decisions as to the meaning of these words. One set of decisions proceeded upon the view that the fact that the presence of the proposed party respondent before the Court was necessary for the adequate disposal of the appeal or cross objections on the merits was enough for making him a respondent under this Rule Thus, it was held that where the constitution of an appeal was impeached on the ground that the recessary parties lad not been impleaded, the defect could be cured by their being added under this Rule 12 Similarly where in a suit filed by A against B and C, a decree was passed against B but was dismissed against C and B appealed from the decree making A alone a respondent, and the appellate Court finds that C and not B is hable to A, it was held that the appellate Court could make C a respondent to the appeal under this Rule and that, in allowing B's appeal, it can pass a decree against C 2 On the other hand it was held in another set of cases that the Rule was intended to protect parties to the suit who had not been made respondents in the appeal from being prejudiced by modifications made behind their backs in the decree under appeal, and that the party whom it was sought to bring on record must be shown to be interested in the result of the appeal before he is brought on the recorded. Hence where a defendant had been exonerated in the lower Court and no appeal was filed against him, it was held that he was not interested in the result of the appeal filed against other parties and could not be added as a respondent to such an appeal under this Rule unless it could be shown that the decree that might be passed in the appeal as framed might projudice his interests in some way or other 3 According to this group of cases the mere fact that the presence of a party before the Court is necessary for the disposal of the appeal or cross objections on the ments was not sufficient justification for making him a party respondent under this Rule

In this state of the authorities it was held by the Privy Council in Chokalingam v Scithar that where a defendant had been experated in the O lover Court and no appeal had been filed against him within the period of Lustat on, he was not interested in the result of the appeal filed by the plaintiff against other defendants, and that in any event, it was for the plaintiff appellant who sought to make him a respondent to show what was the nature of the interest he had in the appeal. Their Lordships reached this view in spite of the fact that the presence of the proposed party respondent was necessary to enable the Court to decide on their merits certain questions that arose in the appeal. This shows that in their Lordships' view the test for the addition of a party respondent under this Rule was not, whether his presence before the Court was necessary for the adequate disposal of the appeal on its ments, but whether the proto ed party is one whose interests are likely to be prejudiced by the determination of the appeal as framed So interpreted, their Lordships judgment accords with latter of the two views set forthabove. Hence the o her view viz. that it is enough for the application of this Rule that the addition of the proposed party is necessary for the adequate disposal of the appeal on the merits should be regarded as no longer good law. It may be noted in this connection that their Lordships judgment confirmed the judgment of the Rangoon High Court in the undermentioned cases and that in this judgment the Ran geon High Court followed the Madras decision in Subramania v Veerabhadras which contains the clearest exposition of the second view referred to above so that the Privy Council may be taken to have adopted this view in preference to the other view 7 Some decisions of the High Courts8 though pronounced subsequent to the above Pray Council case have adopted the view overruled by the Privy Coun il and hence must be regarded as not correct. The decisions in the undermentioned cases accord with the view approved by the Privy Council and may be taken as correctly representing the law on the subject now But where a person can be added as a respondent under any other provision of law, his not being interested in the result of the appeal within the mun ng of this Rule is no objection to lus being so added 10 (See Note 8, inira)

Appeal in this Rule includes also cross objection 11

It will not be exercised in favour of an appellant where he has deliberately3 or out of extreme negligence4 failed to implead any party. But where he has not been gulty of any neglect the appellate Court may very well exercise its power under this Rule in his favour.5

The power under this Rule cannot be exercised so as to negative the provisions of O 22. Hence, where a respondent has died and the appeal has abated as against him owing to his legal representatives not being brought on the record within the period of limitation, the legal representatives cannot be added under this Rule. Where, however, the legal representative was actually brought on the record in the suit, but was not impleaded in the appeal, he may be added under the provisions of this Rule.7 There is a conflict of opinion as to whether this Rule can be applied where a party who is necessary for the very constitution of the appeal is not impleaded in the appeal with the result that the period of limitation for an appeal against him has expired. According to the High Court of Patna and the Judicial Commissioner's Court of Peshawar the Court has no power to add the non-impleaded party, as a party to the appeal 8 The Lahore High Court has held that the Court has such power 9 The High

The power under the Rule may be exercised by the Court on its own motion or on the application of any party. If the Court finds the presence of any party not already joined necessary it may direct the appellant to apply for bringing him on the record and if he fails to do so may dismiss the appeal. 14

5 Adding Annella

Ĭ

The present Rule provides only for the addition of a party as a respondent. On the que tion whether an appellant can be added or substituted under O 1 R 10 read with S 107 see S 107 Note 16 and O 1 R 10, Note 11

6 Adding Respondent

In appellate Court can add a person as respondent who in the trial Court, was arrayed on the same side as the appellant 1

7 Adding party for the purpose of cross objections See Note 22 to O 41 R 27

8 Inherent power to add parties

The power of an appellate Court to add party respondent is not confined to eases falling under O 41 R 20 In cases to which this Rule does not apply the appellate Court can under O 1, R 10 read with S 107 or by virtue of its inherent power, add parties respondents to the appeal? Thus where owing to a bena fulle mistake caused by a similarity of names of two persons who were part es in the lower Court the names of those persons were left out in the appeal, it was held that the appellate Court had power to correct the mistake and have the memorandum of appeal amended by inserting the proper name 2 But the inherent powers of the Court should be invoked only in exceptional circumstances 3

In this connection, reference may be made to the difference between proper parties and necessary parties (Vide Notes under O 1, R 10) If the non-joinder is not of necessary parties, the appeal may proceed with reference to the parties actually before the Court 2 But if necessary parties have not been joined, the effect of the non-joinder on the appeal is fatal to the appeal, because in such case there is no proper appeal before the Court at all 3 In such cases, the Court may in its discretion add the necessary parties under this Rule and then proceed with the appeal 4 (See Note 4. cnte and O 1, R 10)

A person who is not joined as a party to an appeal is not bound by the decree passed in the appeal. But the assignee of a decree is, in the absence of fraud, bound by the decree of the appellate Court though he has not been made a party to the appeal against the decree 5

11 Limitation

The power of the Court under this Rule is not subject to the provisions of the Limitat on Act and a party who is interested in the result of the appeal may be added as a respondent under this Rule though the period of limitation for an appeal by or aga not him may have expired 1 The Privy Council decision in Chokalingam v Seetharla does not affect the correctness of this proposition which is accepted as settled Law by all the High Courts But the powers under this Rule should be exercised very cautiously masmuch as a person in whose favour the lower Court has passed a decree against which an appeal is not filed within the period of Limitation has a substantive right of a valuable kind which should not be lightly treated 2 Where a respondent is added, not under R 20, but under O 1, R 10 read with S 107, the provisions of Limitation Act will apply 3 But where a party is added in the exercise of the Court's inherent power to preserve the ends of justice from being defeated, it seems, no limita-

12 Addition of parties in second appeal

The Rule requires that the propo ed party respondent must have been a party in the suit in the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred Suppose, a person was a party to the suit in the Court of first instance but was not a party in the first appellate Court, has the High Court in second appeal power to make him a respondent? On this question there is a conflict of decisions the Ulahabad High Court holding that he cannot be added as a respondent and the High Courts of Calcutia Lahore, Madras' and Patina' the Judicial Commissioner's Court of Oudh's and the Chief Court of Lower Burma holding a contrary view 7 It is submitted the Allahabad view is not correct (See Notes 2 and 8 surpea and 4 so, Note 11 to 0 1. R. 10)

The High Court in second appeal can remand the case to the lower Court with a direction to it to add fresh parties.

Legislative changes

This Rule corresponds to S 561 of the Code of 1882 The chief changes intro duced are -The words upon the bearing which occurred after the word may and before the words not only support the decree in sub rule (1) have been omitted See Note 17 12 fra The words the jurty who may be affected by such objection substituted for the words the appellant in sub rule (9) See Noto 13 infra Sub-R (4) is new See Note 17 infra.

la Applicability of the Rule

The provisions of this Rule apply also to appeals under the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act VI of 1908 from the decisions of the Deputy Commissioner or of a Revenue Officer As regards the applicability of sub rule (1) to proceedings under the Agra Tenancy Act III of 1926, see List II No 16 of the Second Schedule of that Act

2 Respondent may support decree without filing cross objections

A respondent may support the decree appealed from, not only on any of the grounds decided in his favour1 but also on grounds decided aguinst him, and for this purpose, it is not necessary for him to file any cross objecttions 14 There is a conflict of views as to whether this Rule will enable 2 res-pendent to attack any portion of the decree passed against him so long as he does not ask for a variation of the decret. According to the High Courts of Calcutta," Madras 3 Lahore, and Rangoon 43 and the Judicial Commissioner's Court of Nagpur to the respondent cannot do so. Thus the respondent cannot make out a case for a decree for the same amount by attacking the decree in respect of a right decided against him. The High Court of Patna5 and the Judicial Commissioner's Court of Oudhe have, on the other hand leld, that the expression 'support the decree does not merely mean support the decision but permits the respondent to show by reference to a ground decided a ainst him, that the appellant has at least secured by the decree as nuch as, if not more than he is entitled to

A point taken in the lower Court bur not decided by it may be urged in support of the decree under appeal 7 But as a general rule a respor dent cannot take a point not taken by him in the lower Court 8 Similarly, the rule does not apply to a hading which does not affect the point at issue as the re-pondent cannot support the decree with reference to such a finding 9 In appellate Court will not of uself raise a pourt which the respondent does not raise 40

3 What objections can be raised by way of cross objections and when

The test to determine whether any particular objection can be taken by way of cross objections under this rule is to see whether if the respondent had annealed against that portion of the decree which is against him he could have raised such objection in his memorandum of appeal. If he could,

22, then he could also raise it by way of cross-objections14 An objection as to any error, defect or irregularity in any order affecting the decision of the case, which may be taken in an appeal against the decree under S 105 of the Code can, therefore, be taken by way of cross-objections also. Thus where an ex parte decree is passed against a defendant for a portion only of the claim made by the plaintiff and the plaintiff appeals against the portion disallowed the defendant-respondent can file cross-objections in respect of the portion decreed and may therein contend that the order placing him ex parte in the sut was wrong 1 It was held by the Oudh Chief Court in the undermentioned case2 that in an appeal against a decree, the respondent earnot raise, by way of cross-objections the plea that an order granting a review of the judgment originally passed was wrong. The same Court has held in another ease22 that a respondent cannot, by way of cross-objections, attack a nonappealable order. It is submitted that the said decisions are not correct

Where a party could not have appealed from a decree he cannot file any cross-objections in respect of it 26 Thus where a decree is # holly in farour of a party he cannot file any cross-objections against it by way of criticism of the judgment, though he can support the decree on any of the grounds decided against him 3 But where a decree is partly in favour of, and partly against a party, he can take any cross objections to it which he could have taken by way of appeal 4

The cross-objections must be directed against the particular decree under appeal 42 though they need not be confined to the particular portion of the decree appealed against but may refer to any part of the decree and it need not also be confined to the subject-matter of the appeal 8 See also Note 7, Pt (3), infra

10 Cross objections in revision

This rule does not apply to Civil revision petitions 1 But the High Court's powers of revision may be exercised even without any application by an aggreed party and when a case is already before it, and the necessary parties are also before it it has ample powers to entertain any questions that may be raised by the respondent 8

11 Who may file cross objections

As has been seen in Note 3 ante this rule provides that any respondent may take any cross objection to the decree which he could have taken by way of appeal it follows that a person cannot file cross-objections unless he is a respondent to the appeal and unless he could have taken such an objection by way of an appeal 2.

Does the mere fact that a respondent has filed an appeal against the same decree, preclude him from taking cross-objections against it in the appeal filed by the opposite party? The answer to the question depends upon the further question whether the appeal so filed by the respondent had been decided, at the time of the hearing of the cross-objections if it had been O decided, then he cannot be heard on his cross-objections under this rule 3 He would, in fact, be barred by the principle of res judicata 34 But where his appeal had not been decided on the date of the hearing of the cross-objections, he is entitled to be heard on his objections 4 in this view, the decision of the Labore High Court in the undermentioned case 5 where it was held broadly that a respondent who has preferred an appeal cannot file cross objections under R 22 seems to state the proposition too widely

12 Cross objections by pauper respondent

Sub-Rule (5) expressly provides for the filing of cross-objections in forma pauperis. This supersedes the following decisions under the previous Codes.

13 Against whom cross objections may be filed

The principle that no decree can be passed against a person who is not a party to the proceedings applies to cross objections also and hence cross-objections cannot be allowed against a person who is not a party to the appeal. But in the undermenuoned case<sup>2</sup> where it was impossible to give relief against the appellant without giving relief against the absent party also the Bombay High Court held that the decision on the respondent's cross-objections bound the ron-party also as, otherwise in all such cases coming under O 41 R 4 one of several defeated parties can appeal on behalf of all and defeat the respondent's rights under this rule. It is submitted that this decision is not correct. The respondent could have preferred an appeal against all if he was dissatished with the decree Further the appellate Court has power o add should be appeal under R 20 above, whenever it considers it necessary to do so, and the difficulty mentioned by the Bombay High Court can thus be obvaited (See O 41 R 20 and the notes thereunder and also O 1, R 10 and S 161)

14 Cross objections against co respondent It has been held by the High Courts of Allahabad. Bombay. Calcutta3 and Patna4 and the Judicial Commissioner's Court of Upper Burma5 that as a general rule the right of a respondent to urge cross-objections should be limited to his urging them against the appellants, and it is only by way of exception to this general rule that one respondent may urge cross-objections as against the other respondents, the exception holding good among other cases, in those in which the appeal of some of the parties opens out questions which cannot be disposed of completely without matters being allowed to be opened up as between co-respondents. Thus when the questions raised by the cross-objections are common both to the appellant and corespondent the cross-objections may be entertained as against both 6 P sucs Q and R for Rs 10,000 alleged to be his share of the profits of certain lands A decree is passed against Q and R for Rs 7,000 Q appeals from the decree making P and R respondents. In such a case, P may prefer cross-objections not only against Q but also against R with reference to the Rs 3,000 in respect of which his claim was dismissed by the lower Court 7 Similarly in suits for dissolution of partnership and for accounts, accounts are taken as between all the partners and not as between the plaintiff on the one hand and the defendants on the other. Hence the appeal of one of the partners opens out the whole case and cross-objections can be urged not only against the appellant but also against co-respondents 8 According to the High Court of Madras cross-objections may be allowed to be taken against co-respondents in all cases 9 Opinion is divided in Lahore, Nagpur and Oudh, some cases farouring the view first mentioned above10 and others Note 14 (1864) 1864 Suth W R Gap 234 (205)

I party in whose favour a decree has been passed has a substantive right of a valuable kind which should not be lightly interfered with 1 Hence, as an ordinary rule, in the absence of a cross-appeal or cross-objections by a respondent, the appellate Court has no power to disturb the decree of the lower Court as far as it is in the appellant's favour2 and cannot grant any relief to the respondent except in so far as such relief is incidental to the relief granted to the appellant 3 This Rule, however, is only a general rule and the power of the appellate Court to pass any order or decree that may be necessary in the interests of justice is now expressly saved by O 41, R 334 and was recognised by the following decisions under the former Code. The ger etal rule mentioned above applies also in cases where the decree of the lower Court is such that a remand by the appellate Court is necessary 54 It follows from 22, what has been said above that the appellate Court cannot as a general rule dispose of the appeal on a point not raised by either party 6 (See howers O 41, R 2) Where, however, the case is such that the respondent could not have filed an appeal or cross-objections, the appellate Court can grant him the necessary relief without any cross-objections. Thus where the suit in first Court was for e ther of two reliefs in the alternative and the first Court passed a decree granting him one of the reliefs, the plaintiff having got what he asked for, can neither appeal nor file cross-objections. But if on the appeal of the opposite party the appellate Court considers that the plaintiff was not entitled to the relief granted by the decree it may, while setting aside the decree of the lower Court, pass a decree in favour of the plaintiff granting him the other relief? Similarly, where the trial Court has not dealt with the respondent's claim to set off at all the absence of cross-objections by the respondent is no bit to the entertainment of the point in appeal.

16 Grounds not raised in cross objections not to be raised at the hearing

17 Effect on cross objections of withdrawal of appeal or its dismissal for default.

S 561 of the former Code provided that a respondent may mpon the hearing, take any objection to the decree which he could have taken by way of appeal if he had filed cross-objections. Hence, it was held that if the appeal was withdrawn before the hearing, the respondent could not prosecute his cross-objections! but that once the hearing had commenced the appellant could not withdraw the appeal so as to prevent the respondent from urging his cross-objections 2 Similarly it was held that if the appeal was dismissed for default the cross-objections could not he heard 2 Under the present Rule the words 'upon the hearing' in sub-R 1 have been omitted and sub-R (4) has been added, making it clear that the withdrawal of an appeal for the dismissal of an appeal for the dismissal of an appeal for default§ does not affect the hearing of the respondent on his cross-objections

Dismissal of appeal as time-barred —Under the former Code it was held O the Allahabrd High Court that the entertainment of the cross-objections was contingent and dependent upon the hearing of the appeal and when the appeal was dismissed as being time-barred the cross objections could not be heard of The same view has been held under the present Code also by the High Courts of Lahore<sup>7</sup> and Midraso notwithstanding the omission in sub R (1) of the words upon the hearing which occurred in the former section

Dismissed of appeal was dismissed for failure to pay Court fees—Effect—Under the former Code where an appeal was dismissed for failure to pay Court-fees it was held that there heing no hearing of the appeal the cross objections could not be heard. Even under the present Code it has been held by the Lahorei® and Rango mil High Courts and the Nigpur Judicial Commissioner's Court! that K. 22 (4) should be interpreted strictly and that on the dismissal of an appeal without a hearing on account of the appellant's failure to pay the requisite Court fees, the cross-objection eannot be heard. But it has been held by the High Court of Madras<sup>13</sup> that the dismissal of an appeal for failure to pay Court fees is only a dismissal for default and does not affect the maintainability of the cross objections.

Dismissal of appeal for failure to pay Court fees—Effect—I nden the been held by the Patia High Court that the dismissal of an appeal for fulure to furnish security for costs is a dismissal for default and the respondent is entitled to have his cross objections heard and disposed of on the ments not-withstanding, such dismissal 18 But the Oudh Court has taken a contrary tiew 18

Dismissal of appeal after licaring does not affect cross objections—
The respondent is entitled to have his cross-objections heard and disposed of on the merits notwithstanding that the appeal is rejected on the ground that no appeal hes, because in such a case the appeal does not fail for an extra cous reason but fails after hearing is Similarly, where an appeal is dismissed for failure to join the necessary parties, after hearing the appeal on the question of non joinder the cross objections may be heard in

18 Effect on cross objections of abatement of appeal

Cross-objections cannot be heard when the appeal has abated. The reason is that there is no dismissal for default or withdrawal of the appeal in such a case.

19 Limitation for cross objections

Cross-objections must be filed within one month from the date of the service of notice of the date fixed for hearing the appeal 1 Otherwise they cannot be heard 2 The appellate Court has no power to hear the appeal before the expiry of this period of one month so as to deprive the respondent of his right of filing cross objections 3 Where a respondent in a High Court appeal was merely served with a notice of the appeal in the usual form fixing a period of 25 days for appearance but was not served with any notice fixing the date of hearing, a memorandum of cross objections though filed long after one month from the receipt of the former notice, is not out of time 4 A transferee from a respondent is bound by the same period of limitation as would have applied to his transferor and cannot file any cross-objections after the expris of that period 5 It has been held that the nonce referred to in the Rule means only the notice of the original day fixed, and the fact that a subsequent notice is given of a postponed date does not give the respondent a fresh opportunity of fi ing a memorandum of cross objections 6

When the period of one month expires on a holiday the cross-objections may be filed on the re-opening day 7 (See S 4 of the Limitation Act) The appellate Court may, in its discretion, extend the period within which the cross-object ons are to be filed.8 and this may be done even after the objections have been filed 9 The extension of time may also be implied from the circumstances of the case 10

II Art. 17 refers only to suits and memoranda of appeals. In such cases the valuation placed by the respondent on his cross-objections must be accepted if not unreasonable 3

Where the decree is entirely in respondent's favour and he files objections against the findings but supporting the decree the objections are not cross objections and are not hable to stamp duty under Sch. I Art. 14

Cross-objections as to costs -In Kamal Lumare v Rangpur Bank 5 the Calcutta High Court has held that a memorandum of cross-objections as to costs alone requires to be stamped only as a petition under Sch 2 Art 1 and not ad valorem under Art 1 Sch 1 the reason given being that costs do not form the subject-matter of dispute within the meaning of Art 1 of Sch 1 The Patna High Court has, on the other hand, held that even if the crossobjections are as to costs only an od jalorem Court-fee should be paid 8

Under the repealed S 16 of the Court-fees Act it was enough if the Court-fee on cross-objections was paid at any time before the hearing? But now S 6 of the Court-fees Act applies to the case and the Court fees should be paid at the time of filing the cross objections

22 Adding party for purposes of cross objections

It has been seen in the Notes under O 41, R 20 that since the Privy Council decision in Chokkalingam v Seethor, 1927 P C 252, the mere fact that the presence of a party before the Court is necessary for the complete disposal of the appeal or cross-objections is not enough to make him interested in the result of the appeal within the meaning of R 20 unless he stands to be prejudiced by the determination of the appeal as framed behind his back Hence a party cannot be added as a respondent to an appeal under R 20 merely for the purpose of filing cross-objections against him 1 As to the Courts power to add parties to an appeal apart from the provisions of R 20 see Notes under R 20 Assuming such power exists, the Court will not direct the addition of a party who is an unnecessary party for the appeal merely for the purpose of enabling a respondent to file cross objections against hum 2

23 Second appeal

A decree of an appellate Court disallowing the cross objections of a respondent is a decree passed in appeal within the meaning of S 100 and a second appeal hes therefrom 1 But where the cross-objections are rejected in limine2 as for instance, on the ground of the respondent's failure to pay the deficit Court-fees within the time ordered,3 the order does not amount to a decree and hence is not subject to a second appeal

R. 23. [S 562] Where the Count from whose decree an appeal is preferred has disposed of the suits Remand of case by upon a preliminary point3 and the decree is Appellate Court reversed in appeal the Appellate Court may, if it thinks ht by order remand the case,8 and may further direct what issue of issues shall be tried in the case so remanded and shall send a copy of its pidgment and order to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, with directions to re-admit the suit under its original number in the register of civil suits, and proceed to determine the suit; and the evidence (if any) recorded during the original trial shall, subject to all just exceptions be evidence during the trial atter remand

The words and the evidence remand at the end of the Rule ato new Loro S 502 was amcuded by Act VII of 1888 the sect on only apple of where the lower Court had d pe ed of the suit on a preliminary point so as to exclude any evidence of fact which appears to the appellate Court essential to the determination of the ughts of the parties. The words were consisted by Act VII of 1889 which also substituted the words. We determine the suit on the ments for the words meetingate the suit on the ments which occurred originally

2 Distinction hetween Rules 23 and 25

This rule empowers the appellate Court to remand the case only when the lower Court has disposed of the suit upon a preliminary point. If the trial Court decides the suit on the merits, it is not open to the appellate Court to order a remand under this rule. It may, however, act under Rr. 24 or 25 intin.

The following are the points of distinction between Rr 23 and 25. ınfra

- (1) Where an order of remand is made under this rule, the whole case goes back for decision to the lower Court (except on the point on which the appellate Court has reversed the finding of the lower Court) Whereas in the case of an order under R 25, the case is retained on the file of the appellate Court and only issues are remitted to the lower Court for findings 14
  - (2) An order of remand under this rule is appealable but not an order under Rule 25
  - (3) An order of remand under this rule is a final order which cannot be re-considered by the Court which passed it except on review whereas an order under R 25 is an interloculory order which it is open to the Court to re consider 2

Preliminary point meaning of

A point can be said to be a preliminary point within the meaning of this rule, only where it is such that the decision thereon in a particular way is sufficient to dispose of the whole suit, without the necessity for a decision on the other points in the case 1 The point may be one of fact or of law 12 Thus a suit will be held to be disposed of on a preliminary point if it is disposed of on any of the following grounds -

- (1) That the suit is barred by res judicata 2
- (2) that the suit is barred by limitation3 or by any other rule of law.4
  - (3) that the document on which the suit is based is inadmissible in evidence *
  - (4) that the plaintiff is estopped from proving his case 6

- (5) that the plaintiff has no cause of action.
- (6) that the suit is bad for defect in the description of the defendant.8
- (7) that the matter is concluded by a valid award.9
- (8) that the case raised at the hearing is different from that raised in the plaint.10
- (9) that the suit has abated 11

Ī.

There is a conflict of opinion, however, as to whether the point should be one not relating to the ments of the case. It has been held in one class of cases that a point is not a prehiminary point where it relates to the merits of the case, although its decision may dispense with the necessity for a decision on the other points in the case 12 Thus according to this view a suit cannot be said to have been disposed of on a preliminary point in the following cases -

- (1) Where in a suit for ejectment and damages, the Court finds that the plantiff has failed to establish the title alleged by him and dismisses the suit 13
- (2) Where in a suit for mesne profits, the Court finds that the defendant was not in possession during the period in guestion and dismis es the suit 14
- (3) See also the undermentioned cases 15

According to another class of cases a point may be a preliminary point although it relates to the ments of the case. Thus, according to these decisions a preliminary point means some point either collateral to the ments which precluded their determination altogether, or some particular question which, though relating to the ments, precluded their general determination 16 Thus,

cording to this view, in a suit for damages for breach of contract, the estion as to the factum of contract is a preliminary point although it relates the mer t of the case 17 Similarly, in a suit based on an award, the question the validity of the award has been held to be a preliminary point 18 So also e quest on of the validity of the contract on which the suit is based 10 See so the following cases for other instances 20

The question whether a point is a preliminary one does not depend on the degree of unportance which it may assume during the hearing of the se 1 Nor is it necessary that the suit should have been dismissed as a result the finding on the preliminary point A suit may also be decreed on a climinary point. Thus where a decree is passed, not after trial on all the sues but on the basis of an award22 or on the consent of the parties23 or on e basis of a commissioner's report,24 the suit may be said to be disposed of a prelminary point See also the undermentioned cases 25

4 Where Court decides on all the issues

Where the Court has adjudicated on all the issues involved, the disposal cannot be said to be on a preliminary point merely because one of the issues is of a preliminary nature and the suit has been dismissed on the basis of the decision thereon2 or because it has decided the case with reference to the admissions made by both the parties without taking other evidence 3 or because other points, which might have arisen if the stat had been differently framed, or if an amendment of the plaint had been allowed, have not been

But the mere fact that the Court has recorded evidence on all the issues does not make its decision other than a disposal on a preliminary point if it has, in fact, decided the suit with reference to its finding on a preliminary issue without deciding the other issues in the case ?

S Entire suit must have been disposed of on a preliminary point

In order to attract the application of this Rule the entire suit must have been disposed of on a prehimmary point and not only a portion of  $n^1$  A sues B for an injunction restraining B from interfering with A's enjoyment of his lands and for a declaration of his right of easement over B's land The Court decrees the claim for injunction but dismisses the suit so far as the claim for easement is concerned on the ground that, on the face of the pluint, the statement of the easement claimed is so madequate and unsatisfactory that it is impossible to enter into the question thereby raised. In such a case, only a portion of the suit having been disposed of on a preliminary point, this rule does not apply  $^2$  Similarly where several questions have been traved and decided, the suit cannot be said to be disposed of on a preliminary point merely because one or more of the issues have not been decided on the ments but have been disposed of on a preliminary point of recovery of arrears of rent and for ejectment from certain plots of lands, one of the questions was as to the amount payable by the planniff as the value of improvements effected by the defendant on the planniff's land. The trial Court held that the planniff should pay Rs. 10,000 as decided in a prior litigation between the parties. On appeal the appellate Court held that the prior decision was not resuld cata and remanded the case to assess the their value of the improvements Held that this rule did not apply to the case as the decision of only one of the issues in the case and not of the whole suit was based on a preliminary point, I in this view the underinentioned decision of the Patina High Court, seems to be open to question. In that case, the lower Court had superseded an award on the ground that it was submitted too late and had disposed of the suit on the ments. In appeal it was held that the suit had been disposed of on a preliminary point, because the result of the lower Court's decision had been that the award had not been considered on the ments.

Where a suit has not been disposed of on a preliminary point in the sense described above, no remand can be made under this rule * Thus no remand can be made under this rule prerely because —

6 Order returning or rejecting plaint whether disposal on preliminary point

It has been held in some cases that an order returning a p aint for presentation to the proper Court under O 7, R 10 s not a disposal of the suit on a preliminary point within the meaning of O 41, R 23 s Similarly at has been held in some cases that the rejection of a plaint under O 7, R 11 does not amount to a disposal of the suit on a preliminary point The rationale of these cases would seem to be that a suit cannot be said to be disposed of when the deals on in no way affects the rights of the parties $(See S 2 (2)) Notes 6 and 13). But in the cases cited below 11 has been held that even when a plaint is rejected the suit can be a d to be disposed of on a preliminary point. These cases proceed on the ground that as the rejection of the plaint precludes the Court from deciding the point arising in the case, the suit may be regarded as disposed of on a preliminary point.

7 Decision of lower Court must be reversed

No remand can be ordered under this Rule unless the decision of the lower Court on the prel minary point is reversed in appeal. The decision of the lower Court must be defin tely iccersed. Where such is not the case it is not a good ground for ordering a remand under this Rule, that the lower Court has decided the issue on a wrong view as to the burden of proof 2 or that the appellate Court is not able, on the materials before it, to agree with the findings

Under this Rule it is not competent to the appella's Court to affirm the decision of the tover Court regarding one part of the suit and remand the sult regarding the other part, be ause, otherwise there would be two final judgments in the same case-a thing opposed to the provisions of the Code and because there is only a partial reversal of the lower Court's decree 8 The Rulo contemplates that the whole case except as to the preliminary point, is remanded to the lower Court Hence where the appellate Court not only reverses the decision of the lower Court on the preliminary point but also gives its fundances on the other issues in the case excepting one, it should not remand the case under this Rule for the decision of that single issue but may remit it to the lower Court for a finding under R 25 9

8 The appellate Court may, if it thinks fit by order remand the case

These words show that the appellate Court is not bound to remand a suit under R 23 merely because the circumstances of a case fall within the provisions of the Rule at may either do so or proceed under R 24 or R 25 1 The question is one of discretion 2 The appel ate Court should not, however, rashly and w thout sufficient cause, order a retrial in any case in which this can possibly be avoided, a remand should not thus be made under this Rule in a case which could efficiently be dealt with under R 253

But if any limits are imposed by the appellate Court in remanding a case, the lower Court has no power to travel beyond those limits (See note 30, Point 4) In an old case decided under the Code of 1859 it was held that an appellate Court carnot remand a case for retrial with instructions to frame new issues <sup>2</sup> See also Note 27.

Where the appellate Court set aside the order of the trial Court and re-Court that in cases not falling within the scope of O 41, R 23 an appellate Court to take additional evidence on the issue, it was held that the order was illegal and not one under this Rule 3

10 Inherent power of remand

It is now settled law in all the High Courts except the Aliahabad High Court that in cases not falling within the scope of O 41, R 23 an appellate Court has an inherent power ex debito justituse to remand a case for retiral. In the Allahabad High Court, the point is unsettled 2 Under the previous Code

there was a section, 112, S 564 which prohibited the appellate Court from making a renand except as provided by S 562 (O 41, R 23) 3 This section was found to be extremely embarrassing in practice as for instance, when the appellate Court felt a remaid to be urgently needed in view of the amendment of the plaint or the addition of new parties. The repeal of this section in the present Code leaves the way open for remaid in such cases, 4 although the Legislature has thought it safer not to formally enact that the appellate Court has power, in cases not covered by R 23 to remaid 5

But the inherent power of remand should not be exercised except when it is clearly necessary for the ends of justice to do so <sup>8</sup> When there is any specific provision of the Code which would meet the necessities of the case of when the circumstances are such that the appellate Court can itself dispose of the case <sup>8</sup> (Sec O 41 Rr 24 to 29) no remand should be ordered A remand should not generally speaking be ordered when the defect in the proceedings has been due to the neghrence or default of the party who asks for remand <sup>9</sup>

Subject to the general principles stated in Note 10 supra Courts have an inherent power to remand in the following, among other cases:-

- (1) When the appellate Court directs an amendment of the plaint,1 or the addition of fresh parties.2
- (2) When the appellate Court finds that the suit is bad for misjoinder of parties and causes of action. In such a case the appellate Court may remand the case and direct the lower Court to return the plaint for amendment 3
- (3) When the lower Court has dismissed a suit on the ground that the suit has been brought in the name of the wrong person as pla.ntiff4 or defendant.5
- (4) When the lower Court has musunderstood the whole cases and when the suit has been disposed of on an erroneous issue 7
- (5) When the lower Court has failed to determine material issues in the case 8

12 Wrong onus of proof

Where the trial Court has thrown the burden of proof on the wrong party, the appellate Court may if necessary, remand the case for re-trial 1 But where the error in casting the burden of proof has not affected the evidence produced on e ther side and both part es have given all the evidence that they had, the quest on of burden of proof becomes immaterial and no remand can be ordered merely because the lower Court has wrongly east the onus of proof 2

13 Exclusion of evidence

An erroneous exclusion of evidence by the lower Court may be a good ground for remand under the inherent power of the Court 1 Similarly the failure to give a party an opportunity to produce evidence will be a good ground for remand 2 So also, whe e the appellate Court is unable, on the materials before

14 Basing decision on inadmissible evidence

Where the lower Court's judgment is vitiated by the admission of inadmissible evidence, the case may be remanded for re-trial under the inherent power of the Court 1 But a remand is not necessary if the finding of the lower Court is amply supported by the other evidence in the case 2

15 New plea is not a ground of remand

As a general rule, a remand cannot be ordered to enable a new plea raised for the first time in appeal, to be tried 1 (See Notes under O 41, Rt 1 and 2) But this may be done in exceptional cases 2

The ap, cliate Court in an appeal from an order rejecting an application for setting aside an ex parte order can treat the appeal as one from the ex parte decree itself and decide the whole case finally 3

19 Remand by consent

A case may be remanded with the consent of parties though a remand may not be permissible otherwise 1 Thus a case may be remanded on the agreement of parties for trial on issues not raised in the memorandum of appeal 2

20 Remand in second appeal

O 41. R 23 applies also to second appeals (See S 108 and O 42, R 1) Hence, where a first appeal has been disposed of on a preliminary point the High Court may, in second appeal, remand the case if it reverses the decision on the preliminary point or it may itself dispose of the appeal 2 But even if a case has not been disposed of on a preliminary point, the High Court in second appeal may remand the case in the exercise of its inherent power to prevent the ends of justice from being defeated 3 (See Note 10.

3, supra) But generally speaking, a case will not be remanded for re-hearing on an issue raised for the first time in second appeal 4 Further, unless it is absolutely necessary in the interests of justice, to remand a case, a remand will not be ordered under the inherent power of the Court 5 (See Note 10 supra )

Moreover, the powers of the High Court in second appeal are carcumscribed by the provisions of S 100, and hence the High Court cannot in second appeal reverse a finding of fact of the lower appellate Court, however erroneous it may be, and cannot remand a case on the basis of such reversal, unless the finding is vitiated by any such illegalty or defect as is mentioned in S 100 6 It should also be noted that the power of the High Court to decide questions of fact from the materials on record bave been considerably extended by S 103 and the amendments to that sect on made by Act VI of 1926, and the High Court may itself decide such questions where it is in a position to do so sat sfactorily from the mater als on the record For further information see 5 103 and the notes thereto and also the follow ng cases ?

Can an order of remand be appealed from after it has been carried out and the lower Court has decided the suit on the ments in accordance with the order of remand? On this question there is a conflict of decisions. The High Courts of Allahabads and Rangoon,62 the Chief Court of Punjab7 and the Judicial Commissioner's Courts of Nagpurs and Oudhs have held that an appeal is not barred under such circumstances and that if the order of remand is set aside in appeal the proceedings based on the order of remand fall to the ground This view proceeds on the ground that there is nothing in the Code to limit the right of appeal against an order of remand under such circumstances On the other hand, the Calcutta High Court has held that an appeal against an order of remand must be filed before the lower Court has decided the suit on the ments in accordance with the order of remand 10 The reason

This view proceeds on the reasoning that the right of appeal depends on what the Court purports to have done and not on what it ought to have done 22 It has been held in the undermentioned cases3 that where the order appealed from 15 silent as to whether 1t was passed under S 151 or under this rule, it should be held to have been passed under this rule and not under S 151 even though the circumstances of the case do not bring it within the scope of this rule. The reasoning on which these cases proceed is this An order of remand can be passed under the Court's inherent power only in exceptional cases Therefore where the Court intends to remand a case under its inherent power it may be expected to show in its order that it considers the case to be of an exceptional nature and that it therefore applies the provisions of S 151 Where this is not done the order may be presumed to have been passed as under O 41, R 23 and not under S 151 If such a presumption is not to be made, many an illegal order of remand would be incapable of being appealed against. It is submitted that this reasoning is not correct It involves a presumption that the appellate Court illegally applied the provisions of Rule 23 to a case to which it does not apply when it was legally open to it to achieve its object by applying S 151 The Madras

The reasoning on which these cases proceed is this. An order of remand can be passed under the Court's inherent power only in exceptional cases Therefore where the Court intends to remand a case under its inherent power it may be expected to show in its order that it considers the case to be of an exceptional nature and that it therefore applies the provisions of S 151 Where this is not done the order may be presumed to have been passed as under O 41, R 23 and not under S 151 If such a presumption is not to be made, many an illegal order of remand would be incapable of being appealed against. It is submitted that this reasoning is not correct It involves a presumption that the appellate Court illegally applied the provisions of Rule 23 to a case to which it does not apply when it was legally open to it to achieve its object by applying S 151 The Madras

One of the tests usually relied on for determining whether the order of remand was intended to be made under It 23 is to see whether the Court fee nas ordered to be refunded, because under S 13 of Court fees Act an order for the refund of Court fee can be passed only in the case of a re mand under R 23-See the following cases -

25 Powers of High Court in appeal from order of remand

In an appeal from an order of remand under this rule the High Court may not only consider whether the lower appellate Court's order satisfies the requirements of this rule but may also enter mito the ments of the decision of the first Court on the preluminary point and if possible, may dispose of the case itself is Similarly, in an appeal from an order of remand purporting to be under Rule 23 (though that rule did not apply to the case), the High Court may enter into the ments of the lower Court's decision in respect of which the order of remand was made and may either dispose of the case utself or remand it to the lower appellate Court according to the necessutes of the case. But the High Court has no power in an appeal from an order of remand, to go into any questions unconnected with the correctness of the order of remand.

26 To what Court remand could be made

Ordinarly the case should be remanded to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred and to no other Court, But if the sppellate Court has power to transfer a case from one Court to another there is nothing illegal in remanding the case to a Court to which the case could have been transferered? But a remand cannot be made to a person who has no jurisdiction to decide the case 3 (See also Note 30, infra and 8, 24, ante).

28 Effect of improper order of remand

Where an order of remand is passed in circumstances which do not warrant it, the defect involved in the order is one of procedure and not of substantive law and comes within the purview of S 99 of the Code But the question arises whether such an order is one affecting the murisdiction of the Court within the meaning of S 99 On this question there is a conflict of opinion According to the High Courts of Bombay1 and Calcutta2 such an order is not one passed without jurisdiction and hence, does not, in itself, affect the jurisdiction of the Court and neither the order of remand nor the subsequent proceedings based thereon can be interfered with unless the decision of the case on the merits or the jurisdiction of the Court in any other respect has been affected But according to the High Courts of Allahabad,3 Madras' and Patna42 such an order of remand is one made without surisdiction, the term 'jurisdiction being understood not in the sense of the power to deal with a certain matter but in the sense of the power to pass a given kind of order in such matter, and therefore the order of remand and the subsequent proceedings based thereon may be set aside although the decision of the case on the merits or the jurisdiction of the Court in any other respect has not been affected

If an appellate Court passes an order of remand in a matter over which it has no jurisdiction, the order is ultra vires 5

28 Effect of improper order of remand

Where an order of remand is passed in circumstances which do not warrant it, the defect involved in the order is one of procedure and not of substantive law and comes within the purview of S 99 of the Code But the question arises whether such an order is one affecting the jurisdiction of the Court within the meaning of S 99 On this question there is a conflict of opinion According to the High Courts of Bombay1 and Calcutta2 such an order is not one passed without jurisdiction and hence, does not, in itself, affect the jurisdiction of the Court and neither the order of remand nor the subsequent proceedings based thereon can be interfered with unless the decision of the case on the merits or the jurisdiction of the Court in any other respect has been affected. But according to the High Courts of Allahabad.3 Madras and Patna42 such an order of remand is one made nithout jurisdiction, the term 'jurisdiction being understood not in the sense of the power to deal with a certain matter but in the sense of the power to pass a given kind of order in such matter and therefore the order of remand and the subsequent proceedings based thereon may be set aside although the decision of the case on the merits or the jurisdiction of the Court in any other respect has not been affected

If an appellate Court passes an order of remand in a matter over which it has no jurisdiction the order 15 ultra vires 5

33 Refund of Court fee on remand

Where a remand is made under this Rule the appellate Court is bound under S 13 of the Court Fees Act 1870 to order a refund of the Court-Fee 1

There is a difference of opmon, bowever, as to whether a refund can be ordered in cases in which a remand bas been made, not under this Rule but under the Court's inherent powers. The Judicial Commissioner's Courts of Nagpur and Peshawar have held that a refund cannot be ordered in such cases? According to the High Court of Pains also S. 13 of the Court-Tees Act, 1870 applies only to cases of remand under this Rule? The High Court of Lahore has, on the other hand, held that a refund could be ordered in such cases but that the power is a discretionary one.

When an appeal is remanded as to a part, the appellant is entitled to a refund of a proportionate part of the Court-Fee 6

33 Refund of Court fee on remand

Where a remand is made under this Rule the appellate Court is bound under S 13 of the Court-Fees Act 1870 to order a refund of the Court Fee 1

There is a difference of opinion, however, as to whether a refund can be ordered in cases in which a remand has been made, not under this Rule but under the Court's inherent powers. The Judicial Commissioner's Courts of Nagbur and Peshawar have held that a refund cannot be ordered in such cases 2 According to the High Court of Patna also S 13 of the Court-Fees Act 1870 applies only to cases of remand under this Rule 3 The High Court of Lahore has, on the other hand held that a refund could be ordered in such cases4 but that the power is a discretionary one 5

1 Scope of the Rule

Ţ.

This Rule enables the appellive Court to dispose of a case finally without a remand if the evidence on the record is sufficient for the purpose not withstanding that the appellate Court proceeds on a ground entirely different from that on which the lower Court proceeded Prior to Act, VII of 1888 the word 'shall' occurred after the words 'the appellate Court' and so it was held that the appellate Court was bound to decide the case itself in the circumstances mentioned in the Rule 2 The word 'shall' has now been replaced by the word 'may and the appellate Court may now, if necessary, remand a case under the present Code notwithstanding that the decision of the lower Court has not resulted in the exclusion of any material evidence

There is a conflict of opinion as to whether an appeallate Court can, under this Rule, decide a case without a remand on an issue not raised in the Court below. According to the High Court of Calcuita, the framing of a new issue is not a resulting? of the issues, and the appellate Court cannot, under this Rule frame such issue and decide it? The High Court of Bombay, has on the other hand, held that though the point was raised for the first time in appeal, a remand was not necessary where it could be decided on the evidence on the record. It is submitted that the latter view is correct. There is no reason why the framing of a new issue should be regarded as necessarily different from "resetting issues within the meaning of this Rule. The true view appears to be that when a new case is pleaded in the appellate Court, it will not act under this Rule unless the case arises on the facts stated in the pleadings and the opposite party is not taken by surprise.

In an appeal against an order returning a plaint for presentation to the proper Court, the appellate Court, cannot decide the suit on the ments under this Rule—the reason is that such a decision would be outside the scope of the appeal the same not being against the decree in the suit.

5, to try any issue or to determine any question of fact. Hence where the lower Court has not omitted to decide any issue or any question of fact a remand cannot be ordered under this Rule1 merely for the purpose of enabling a party to produce evidence which ought to have been given in the lower Court 2 It has however, been held that a remand can be made under this rule where the lower Court has not arrived at its findings after a full and proper trial, masmuch as, in such a case, the issue cannot be regarded as having been tried by the lower Court 3

The omission by a plaintiff to press a certain point is, generally speaking, no ground for refusing to remit an issue on the point, if the lower Court has omitted to frame or try the same 4

But where a point is newly raised in the appellate Court it should not be dee ded without Living the opposite parts an opportunity to meet the new case 5 A remand will not, however be ordered if the excumstances are such that even f the remand is granted it is unlikely that the party asking for the remand, would be able to establish the case he wants to make out 54 In ordering a remaid under this rule the appellate Court should specify the issues to be tried by the lower Court 6

Shall direct such Court to take the additional evidence required

These words additional evidence required leave a discretion to the appellate Court not to direct the lower Court to take further evidence when it remards a case for a finding on a specific issue on a consideration of the evidence in the case 1 Where the appellate Court has not directed the lower Court to take further evidence the lower Court may2 but is not bound to do 503

7 What Court may try the usues remitted

Where issues are referred to the Court from which the appeal was preferred no other Court has power to try them ! It has been held by the Punjab Chief Court that an order remitting issues to a Court other than that from which the appeal has been preferred as not one without surisdiction but is only an error of procedure 2 Where during the pendency of an appeal to the High Court the lower Court had lost jurisdiction over the suit area pwing to a redistribution of areas but the High Court directed the lower Court to submit findings on certain issues, Held that the lower Court should be considered to have retained the jurisdiction as regards pending suits and that even assuming that the lower Court had lost its jurisdiction to try the

In the undermentioned case4 the Court of first instance omitted to try a certain issue. The case went up in appeal before a Court which had no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal. The appellate Court, however entertained the appeal and remanded an issue under this rule to the Court of first instance On the return of the findings, the appeal was returned for presentation to the proper Court The appeal then came before the proper Court It was held that though the order of remand was made by a Court which had no jurisdiction to deal with the case, this was not a fatal objection to the result of the enquiry made in pursuance of the order and that the appellate Court which subsequently dealt with the case could take it into consideration 42 It has also been held in the case cited below that where an additional District Judge has remanded the case to a subordinate Judge, the District Judge has power to transfer the proceedings to another subordinate Judge 46 See also the un dermentioned case 5

But where a point is newly raised in the appellate Court, it should not be dec ded without gruing the opposite party an opportunity to meet the new case <sup>5</sup> A remand will not, however, be ordered if the circumstances are such that even if the remand is grained it is unlikely that the party asking for the remand, would be able to establish the case he waits to make out <sup>5a</sup>. 1 Appellate Court to fix time for presenting memo of objections

The appellate Court must by a time within which objections to the firdings returned by the lower Court should be filed 1 But the fulure to fix a time is a mere technical pregularity and may be ignored if it does not in any way prejudice the party complying of the same 2 Where ito time is fixed for film, objections, they may be filed at any time before the hearing 3 The period for tiling objections may be fixed at the time of remitting the issues It is not necessary that it should be fixed only after the return of the findings 4

Where no objections to the findings are filed within the time fixed the Court may in its discretion allow or decline to allow the objections to be taken afterwards 1 But this does not mean that the appellate Court can treat the findings received from the lower Court as final and binding merely because objections are not filed in time. The appellate Court must examine the findings on their ments masmuch as the rule says that after the expiration of the period fixed for filing the objections the appellate Court shall proceed to determine the appeal "(Sec O 41 R 31)

Where objections to andings were not taken in the lower appellate Court which remitted the issues, they cannot be raised for the first time as grounds of second appeal 3

3 Shall proceed to determine the appeal

Upellate Court is not compete it to

At the hearing after the remand, the appellate Court is to determine the appeal on the whole of the material on the record, including the evidence and findings returned by the lower Court under the remand order 1 It is not onen to the appellate Court to consider only the findings returned by the lower Court under the remand, and samply confirm the other findings without examin-

It has been held in cases under the old Code that the Court which passed the order of remand under this Rule has no power to transfer the case to any other Court for disposal whether before or after the return of the findings It is submitted that under the present Code S 24 is wide enough to enable such transfers to be made.

Where the lower Court makes its return without giving its findings on any of the issues the appellate Court can remit the issues again for a proper finding being given.

It has been held by the Punjab Chief Court<sup>7</sup> that before the return of findings by the lower Court the appellate Court has no jurisdiction to dismiss the appeal for default (See also Note 4, ulfra)

4 Unnecessary remission

Is it open to the appellate Court when the appeal comes on for hearing after the receipt of fresh findings from the lower Court to reconsider the views expressed by at before the remand and to hold that the remand was improper or unnecessary? On this question there is a conflict of decisions. According to the great majority of cases! there is no final decision on any matter when an appellate Court remits issues under R 25 and the entire appeal including matters on which the Court may have expressed its views before the order of remand, is open for consideration at the hearing after the remand Under this view it is open to the appellate Court to hold that the order of remand previously made was unnecessary or improper and to disregard the findings returned by the lower Court Thus it may dismiss the appeal, after the findings are received on the ground that the appeal as originally filed was itself incompetent 2 It has also been held that when a single Judge of the High Court makes an order of remand under R 25 and the case subsequently comes on for final disposal before a Bench of two Judges, the latter can go back upon the order of re mand and the views expressed therein 3 But it has been held by the Calcutta High Court in the undermentioned case that an order of remand under R 2515 an interlocutory order which, under the principle laid down by the Privy Council in Administrator General of Bengal v Hooks and Ram Kirnal v Run kuars

VI Discovery of fresh evidence

The general principle is that the appellate Court should not travel outside the record of the lower Court and cannot take any evidence in appeal This rule elucidates the provisions of S 107, Cl (d) of the Code1 and is an exception to the general rule stated above in that it enables the appellato Court to take additional evidence in the circumstances mentioned therein 2 Therefore, the appellate Court is entitled to call for fresh evidence only when the conditions laid down in this rule are found to exist 3 On the other hand, the Court is not bound under the circumstances mentioned in the rule, to allow additional evidence and the parties are not entitled, as of right, to the admission of such evidence, the matter is entirely in the discretion of the Court 4 It has, however, been held in some cases that apart from this rule, an appellate Court can, under general principles of laws or under its inherent towers admit additional evidence. But these decisions cannot be accepted as correct in view of the decision of the Privy Council in Keson it Issur v G 1 P Ry which lays down clearly that this rule can alone be looked to for taking additional evidence and that the Court has no jurisdiction to admit such evidence in cases where this rule does not apply. This rule does not ap, ly so as to prolubit the appellate Court from doing any of the following thinks -

- (a) To take into consideration admissions by the parties before the appellate Court :
- (b) To issue a commission for local investigation or to examine and adjust accounts 10
- (c) To refer to books on lustors, etc., which may have a bearing on the facts of the case 11 (See Evidence Act. S 57)
- (d) To send for papers from its own records or from the records of
- any other Court and inspect the same 12 (See O 13 R 10)
- (c) To examire parties present in Court 124 (O 10, R 2) See also the undermentioned case 13

Additional evidence may be admitted even in an appeal against an cx parte decree 14 The rule is made applicable so far as may be to second appeals by O 42, R 1142 But the rule must be applied to second appeals subject to the conditions under which a second appeal is maintainable. Hence the High Court has no power, in second appeal, to admit additional evidence for the purpose of entering into oursnons of fact 146 But the High Court may. under its inherent powers, remand a case for retrial with a direction to take additional evidence 146 The rule applies also to appeals in income-tax proceedangs,15 but does not apply to proceedings under S 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code 16

2 When additional evidence may be admitted in appeal - See Notes 1 4 7 8 and 9 3 Has refused to admit evidence which ought to have been admitted '

Under Cl 1 (b) of the rule, it is only when the Court requires it (e e, finds it needful) that additional evidence can be admitted 1 it may be required (a) to enable the Court to pronounce judgment, or (b) for any other substantial cause but in either case it must be the Court that requires it upon its appreciation of the evidence as it stands 2 The legitimate occasion, therefore, for the exercise of the discretion under this rule, is not, whenever before the appeal is heard a party applies to adduce evidence but when, our examining the evidence as it stands some inherent lacina or defect becomes apparent to the Court 3 it follows that additional evidence cannot be admitted

It was held in the undermentioned ca-es<sup>5</sup> relying upon certain observations of the Pray Council in Intrast v. Aniar Singh<sup>6</sup> that additional evidence could be admitted in appeal for reasons independent of the existence of any lacuia or defect. These decisions are no longer good law since the accessor of the Pray Council in Parsotium Thakur v. Lat Mohar Thakur<sup>7</sup> in which the sind view has been definitely repudated.

5 The appellate Court requires any document to be produced '

Where a Court termits documentary evidence to be produced under this rule it should also permit oral evidence to be adduted in order to prove the c do unjents!

For mean no of the word 're jures' see Note 4 above

6 Where appellate Court requires any witness to be examined

The appellate Court should not take additional evidence which impugns the testimony of a witness who was called in the Court below unless that witness is given an opportunity to clear up the mistake Otherwise, no witness, whatever his standing, would be safe from adverse judicial comment.

7 To enable it to pronounce judgment

When the appellate Court finds uself unable to pronounce judgment owing to a lacuna or defect in the evidence as it stands, it may, as has been in Note 4 above admit additional evidence. The ability to pronounce a judgment refers not to the ability to pronounce any judgment but to the ability to pronounce any judgment but to the ability to pronounce any judgment deliver-

Court to decide point conclusively was held proper in the circumstances of the casel 7, mg it 2 But the appellate Court should not, ordinarily, allow new evidence to be adduced in order to enable a party to raise a new point in appeal 3 Similarly where a party on whom the onus of proving a certain point lies fails to discharge the onus, he is not entitled to a fresh opportunity to produce evidence, as the Court can, in such a case, pronounce judgment against him and does not require any additional evidence to enable it to pronounce judgment 4

8 Or for any other substantial cause

The words for any other substantial cause must be read with the requires in the beginning of the sentence. So that it is only where for any other substantial cause, the appellate Court requires additional evidence that this rule will apply 1 The words or for any other substantial cause need not be construed in the narrow sense suggested by the doctrine eursdem generis2 and power to allow additional evidence may be overcised when any point is required to be cleared up in the interest of justice 3 But at the same time it should be remembered that it is a power to be exercised cautiously and sparingly4 and only in exceptional cases 5 Further, the new evidence should have a direct and important bearing on a main issue in the case 6 Subject to these general rules, additional evidence may be admitted in the following cases ---

(1) When the party wishing to produce the additional evidence was unable, through no fault of his, to produce it in the trial Court 7

10 Record of reasons

Whe ever the appellate Court admits additional evidence it should record its reason for doing $1.1 It is a salutary provision which operates as a check against a too cast reception of evidence at a late stage of linguinon and the statement of reasons may inspite confidence and disarm objection. Let this provision is only directory and not mandatory? and the failure to record reasons does not make the evidence inadmissible? A contrary view has, however, been expressed in the undermentioned cases? It is submitted that it is opposed to the decision of the Prvy Council in Ganga Gobind Mandal's case? Where, it is laid down that the provision as to the record of reasons is not a condition precedent to the reception of the evidence, and cannot, therefore, he accepted as correct

The reasons need not be recorded in a separate order provided they are embodied in the judgment of the appellate Court $\[ \]\$ mere reference to the 'pecular circumstances of the case $\[ \]\ or a mere statement that the endence i necessary to pronounce judgment' is not enough compliance with the requirement as to recording of reasons. The issue by the appellate Court of a commission for Iseal Investigation is not the same thing as the admission of additional enderce, and no reasons need be recorded for issuing such commissions.

27. your an order for the admission of additional evidence is made, cannot subsequently attack it 2 Similarly, a party who has taken advantage of the order for the admission of additional evidence and lets in such evidence cannot himself subsequently question the order 3

12 Procedure to be adopted under this Rule

The formalities as regards the admission and recording of evidence in the original Court apply to additional evidence taken in the appellate Court 1 The appel'ate Court is not authorised merely to send a document to the thumb impression bureau and act upon their report 2 The issue of a general commission to try an issue is not warranted by this Rule. If additional evidence is required, it should be taken by the appellate Court itself or the appellate Court should direct it to be taken by the lower Court 3

There is nothing illegal in an appellate Court first ordering additional evidence and then cancelling the order and remanding the case for re trial, for, there is no decision of finality in the exercise of the discretionary power conferred by the Rule 4

13 Application to put in evidence

The Rule does not require an application for the admission of additional evidence. But such an application is not prohibited, for, although the test of admissibility of additional evidence under this Rule is the requirement of the appellate Court on an appreciation of the evidence as it stands, it is open to a party to point out to the Court any defects in the evidence on the record (See Note 4) In fact the existence or otherwise of such an application seems to have been regarded as an indication of whether the Court required the additional evidence 1

14 Opportunity to opposite party to contest admissibility of or rebut the fresh evidence

When additional evidence is sought to be admitted in the appeal, the opposite party should be given an opportunity to contest the admissibility of the evidence1 and to adduce rebutting evidence 2 But failure to give such opportunity does not vittate the proceedings if it has not caused any prejudice to the opposite party 3

15 Remand for trial de novo

The Rule contemplates a distorted of the case on the metris by the appellate Court itself. Where the appellate Court desires to take further evidence the ployer course is to follow the procedure laid down in Rr 27 and 28 and not to remaind the whole case. But in exceptional cases the appellate Court has an inherent power to remaind the case for taking additional evidence.

Additional evidence admitted in contravention of this Rule should be disregarded as inadmissible? But the decree should not be reversed or varied on that ground unless the decision, on the ments, has been affected thereby 8 (See C P C, S 99 and Evidence Act, S 167)

Where the lower appellate Court has admitted additional evidence the second appeal cannot, on that account, be treated as a first appeal so as to enable questions of fact to be gone into 9

19 Privy Council

There is no restriction on the powers of the Privy Council to admit additional evidence in appeals before it 1 The rejection of an application for the admission of additional evidence does not involve any substantial question of law within S 110 so as to give a right of appeal to the Privy Council2

26 Revision

Where an appellate Court admits additional evidence which it is not competent to receive in accordance with the provisions of the Code, the defect in its order amounts only to an error of law, and not a want of jurisdiction and hence, no revision lies from such an order,1

Compare O 20, R 1 ante

The Rule authorises a judgment to be pronounced only after hearing the parties or their pleaders. A judgment pronounced without hearing them is unauthorised by the Code Hence where before the hearing of an appeal a party to the appeal dies and it is heard and disposed of without his legal representatives being brought on the record the decree is a nullit, whether it is adverse to the deceased or is in his favour.

Where a party does after the hearing but before the judgment is pronounced, it is not valuated by the absence of his legal representatives on the record See O 22 R 6

2 In open Court etc

Where the provisions of this Rule as to the judgment being pronounced in open Court and after notice to the parties were not complied with it was held that an appeal field within 90 days of the appellant coming to know of the decision against him was within time and that in any case there was sufficient cause for the delay within the meaning of 5 5 of the Limitation Act 1 The judgment may be given at once after the hearing is over or on some future day? 1 Object and applicability of Rule

The objects of requiring an appellate Court to record in its judgment the particulars mentioned in this Rule are two fold, namely (a) to afford the parties an opportunity of knowing and understanding the grounds of the decision with a view to enable them to evercise, if they see fit and are so advised the right of second appeal conferred by S 1002 and (b) to enable the High Court in second appeal to Judge whether the lower appellate Court has properly appreciated the case and has decided it after applying its mind to it and considering the evidence 2 See also Note 3 to O 20, R. 3.

The provisions of this rule as also R 30 supra apply also to proceedings under the Agra Tenancy Act, III of 1926, but a judgment of the Board need not be dated, signed or pronounced in open Court See List II. Sch 2 of that Act

2 Contents of judgment of appellate Court-General

A judgment of the first appellate Court must be complete and selfcontained and must state the points for determination, the decision thereon and the reasons for the decision 2 Compare O 20, R 3

3 Judgment of affirmance 11.

The Rule makes no distinction between affirming judgments and reversing judgments, and in either case it is obligatory upon the appellate Court to comply with the requirements of the Rule Hence, where an appellate Court affirms the decision of the trial Court, a mere general expression of concurrence with the trial Court's judgment without giving any reasons, is not a sufficient judgment under the law 1 But an affirming judgment need not erter into detailed reasons to the same extent as a judgment of reversal 2 Further, where the case is comparatively a simple one, and a trial Court has dealt with it fully and accurately, and it is evident from the appellate Court's judg ment, that it has appreciated the case properly and has decided it after considering the evidence, the mere fact that it has not repeated the reasons given by the trial Court which it approves of, does not vitiate the judgment 3 See also Note 10, infra

4 Judgment of reversal

It is specially important that an appellate judgment reversing the underment of the lower Court should be adequate and sausfactory 1 It must contain definite findings on the questions involved,2 and must give reasons for reversing the decision of the irial Court,3 It must come into close quarters with the judgment appealed from and must express an opinion on all the points on which the lower Court has based its conclusions 5 It has, however, been held in the cases cited below that it is not necessary for an appellate Court when reversing the decision of the trial Court, to meet the reasons given by such Court, and that it is enough if the appellate Court gives its own reasons for us our decision

5 Points for determination

This rule requires the appella e Court to state in its judgment the points that arise for determination 1 These points must cover all the important quesnons involved in the case2 and must not be general and vague 3 The object of the legislature in making it incumbent on an appellate Court to raise points

Under this rule the appellate Court must state in its judgment the reasons for its decision. It must set forth the evidence relied upon? and must come to its own independent conclusion on a consideration of such evidence. It must not proceed on the assumption that it is, in any way bound by the views of the trial Court though it must not forget that the trial Court has had the opportunity of watching the demeanour of the witnesses in Court. Nor should the judgment be based on mere conjectures and presumptions or on evidence not legally admitted 9

But the whole evidence on the record need not be reviewed. It is enough if the evidence discussed is reasonably adequate for a proper decision of the case 10 Nor is it necessary to discuss a document not brought to the notice of the appellate Court 11

In the undermentioned case12 it was remarked by Markby, J., that reasons in S 359 of the Code of 1859 (new O 41, R 31) meant not the reasons for any conclusion of fact, but reasons showing the point of fact or of law upon which the decision runs. Having regard to the foregoing discussion this view seems to be wrong

8 Where the decree appealed from as reversed etc. Cl (d)

Where an appellate Court reverses or modifies the decree appealed from it must specify in its judgment the relief to which the appellant is entitled it is not enough merely to say, that the appeal is decreed, or that the decree is reversed Where the conclusions in the appellate judgment differ in important points from those of the trial Court, the appellate Court must specify in its decree the modifications necessitated by its conclusions 2

9 Summary dismissal of appeal under O 41 R 11

1, that the Rule applies to such cases and the appellate Court is not exempt from writing a judgment in the manner prescribed by R 31 In the special circumstances of any case, however, a short judgment merely expressing con currence with the views of the lower Court without entering into reasons may be held sufficient 6 On the other hand, it has been held by the High Court of Patna62 and the Judicial Commissioner's Courts of Nagpur7 and Sind3 that the Rule does not apply and that the appellate Court is not bound to write a formal judgment in such cases. The Bombay High Court inclines to the latter views but holds that under Civil Circular No 51 of 1890 of that Court issued under the Indian High Courts Act, appellate Courts are bound to comply with the requirements of Rule 31 even in cases falling under Rule 11 10

10 Non compliance with Rule-Effect-General

This Rule is imperative and a judgment which is not in accordance with it, is not one according to law 1 But a substantial compliance with the rule is enough. What is substantial compliance depends on the facts and circumstances of each case 2 The important point is that it must be evident from the judgment of the appellate Court that it has properly appreciated the case, has applied its mind to it and has decided it after considering the evidence on the record 3 If the judgment satisfies this requirement, the appellate Court will be deemed to have substantially complied with the Rule, and its judgment will not be interfered with merely because it does not strictly fulfil the formalities laid down therein 4

13 Appeal in proceedings under S 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code

The judgment in an appeal in proceedings under 5 476 Criminal Procedure Code must, according to the general rule, give reasons for the decision 1

14 Applicability of rule to High Court

In the undermentioned case1 the High Court confirmed the decree of the lower Court but failed to give in its judgment any reasons for its decision An application was made to the High Court for leave to appeal to the Privy Council on the ground that the requirements of the present rule were not complied with On this application, Edge C J, said that the present Rule was not intended to apply to cases where the High Court, after hearing the judgment of the lower Court and the arguments thereon comes to the conclusion that both the judgment and reasons given by the lower Court for its decision are complete and satisfactory The learned Chief Justice gives no reason for his view, and it is not clear why the present rule or at least the principle thereof should not apply to the High Court 2 On the other hand the Privy Council itself has held that the High Court must give reasons for its decision in its judgments 3 See also Cl 42 Letters Patent But under O 49 R 2 where at the commencement of the present Code there were, in force, any Rules for the recording of judgments by Chartered High Courts, the present rule cannot in any way, affect the operation of such Rules 4

R. 32. [S 577] The judgment may be for confirming, varying or reversing the decree from which the appeal is preferred, ei, if the parties to the What judgment may direct appeal agree as to the form which the decree in appeal shall take, or as to the order to be made in appeal, the

1 Scope object and applicability of Rule

This Rule is new and is based on O 58, R 4 of the Rules of the supreme Court in England. It is wider than O 41. R 4 Its object is to enable the appellate Court to do complete justice between the parties1 and to avoid contradictory and inconsistent decisions on the same questions in the same suit 2 For this purpose a discretionary3 power is conferred on the appellate Court to pass such decree or order as ought to have been passed or as the nature of the case may require notwithstanding that the appeal is as to part only of the decree or that the party in whose favour the power is proposed to be exercised has not filed any appeal or cross-objection. The discretion conferred is wide, and in a proper case, the appellate Court should not hesitate to exercise it 42 But as the power is in derogation of the general principle that a party cannot avoid a decree against him without filing any appeal or cross-objection at must be exercised with care and caution 5 No hard and fast rule can however

The appellate Court considers that the appeal must be dismissed but that the trial Court should not have passed a decree for one fourth in favour of the second defendant as he was a defendant and not a plaintiff. The appellate Court therefore in dismissing the appeal pas cs a decree for the entire sum in favour of the plaintiffs declaring at the same time that as to one fourth it is for the second defendant a share. 3 'Such further or other decree or order as the nature of the case may require"

The appellate Court has power to pass not only any decree or order which ought to have been passed but also such further or other decree or order as the nature of the case may require. Accordingly the appellate Court has power to deal with the case in any way that may seem equitable to all the parties concerned.1

1 A property, the subject of two mortgages, one in favour of S and the other in favour of B, is sold for arrears of revenue and purchased by T S sues for the enforce ment of his mortgage against the surplus sale proceeds and makes B, a defendant to the suit claiming priority over him The suit is decreed B appeals against the decree In the meanwhile there is a suit by B for setting aside the revenue cale and this suit is also decreed T, (the purchaser at the revenue sale) appeals against this decree Both appeals are heard together and are dismissed. The appellate Court can in dramissing the appeals, direct that S s rights should be enforced against the property matead of against the sale proceeds 2

2 A suit is erroneously dismissed on the merits instead of for default. An appeal is filed by the plaintiff The appellate Court can not only pass the order which the lower Court ought to have passed tar, an order of dismissal for default, but also a further order that the aut do stand restored and that the lower Court do

proceed to try the suit according to law 3

3 Where on an application to set aside an execution sale on the ground of the price being less than that payable under certain Rules, the lower Court refuses to set aside the sale, and on appeal, the appellate Court considers that the sale should be set aside, it has power to accept the purchaser a offer of a higher price, and to leave the sale undisturbed . 4 Power of appellate Court to take cognisance of aubsequent events

See also Note 4 to O 7 R 7 and Note 16 to O 41, R 27 for a full discussion As a general rule a Court of appeal, in considering the correctness of the judgment of the Court below, will confine itself to the state of the case at the tune such judgment was rendered and will not take notice of any facts which may have arisen subsequently 1 But the Court wall in exceptional cases, depart from this rule, especially where, by so doing, it can shorten huganon and best attain the ends of justice. In such cases it is not only competent to a Court of appeal, but it may be its duty to take nonce of events which have happened subsequently to the passing of the decree or order appealed against 2

5 Power may be exercised notwithstanding that appeal is as to part only of the

But where there are several suits and a separate decree is passed in each of them the appellate Court has no surisdiction in an appeal against one of them to set aside the other decrees ?

6 Power may be exercised in favour of respondents or parties who have not filed appeal or cross objections

The general principle is that a decree is binding on the parties to it. until it is set aside in appropriate proceedings 1 A party who wishes to have a decree against him modified or reversed, must comply with certain requirements as to filing of appeals, objections and so forth 2 Hence as an ordinary rule, an appellate Court must not reverse or vary a decree in favour of a party who has not preferred any appeal or cross objection against it, and this general rule holds good notwithstanding the enactment of R 333 But in exceptional cases the rule enables an appellate Court to pass such decree as ought to have been passed, or as the nature of the case may require, even if such decree would be in favour of parties who have not filed any appeal or cross-objections against the lower Court's decree 4 Ordinarily the power con-N . 1

- In overcising the power under this rule, the Court should not lose ight of the other provisions of law such as the Court-fees Act or the imitation Act which are likely to be infringed by the exercise of such power 16 are and judicial discretion must, therefore, be exercised in view of all the ircumstances of the case 17 The following conditions should be satisfied before uch power is exercised in favour of a party -
  - (a) The Court must be satisfied that there are good reasons for such party not having filed any appeal or cross objection 13
  - (b) Interference in favour of such party must be rendered necessary by the conclusions to which the appellate Court comes in deciding the appeal 19

which the judgment of the trial Court proceeds, the appellate Court considers O that the decree should be modified in order to do justice to all the parties concerned including such as have not set the law in motion. If these remarks were intended to lay down that under this rule an appellate Court has no pover to vary a decree in favour of a respondent who has not filed an appeal or cross-objection if it has upset the grounds upon which the lower Court's judgment is based, it is submitted that the view is incorrect 224

The appellate Court can exercise its power under this rule in favour of parties to the suit who were not impleaded as parties to the appeal 1 A contrary view has however been taken in the undermentioned cases 2 It is submitted that this view is not correct as it is inconsistent with the express provisions of the rule which uses the words respondents or parties 3 See alsa Notes to R 4 ante

Where a decree is passed against two defendants, against one of whom it is passed on confession of judgment, and against the other, after contest, and the latter appeals against the decree, the appellate Court cannot set aside the decree in favour of the former 6

1t Illustration to the Rule

The illustration to the Rule indicates a type of cases for which provision is intended to be made 1 But it is not exhaustive of the classes of cases to which the Rule applies, and does not restrict the scope of the Rule 2 Thus though the illustration contemplates that the person in whose favour the appellate Court interferes is a party to the appeal and that there is interference in favour of the appellant, these two conditions are not essential for the apparability of the Rule See Notes 6 and 7

12 Proviso

I

The proviso to the Rule was added by Act 1X of 1922. Its effect is that the appellate Court cannot make an order for compensatory costs under S 35-4 where the trial Court has refused to do so See also Note 3 to S 35-A, ante

13 Limitation

A sues B for Rs 1000 The claim is decreed for Rs 600 A appeals from the dismissal of his suit for the balance. It is competent to the appellate Court to dismiss his whole suit if it comes to the conclusion that it is time barred 1 But it has been held that if the appellate Court is not in a position to reject the whole claim, as for instance, where the defendant has confessed judgment as to a part of the claim, the appellate Court should not dismiss even that part of the claim which is the subject-matter of appeal 2 The reason given is that the obligation to dismiss a suit as time-barred under S 3 of the Limitanon Act arises only when the appellate Court is in a position to dismiss the aho'e claim 3

When a suit is decreed partially and the plaintiff appeals against the disallowance of the balance of his claim, the entire decree is imperilled because the appellate Court can in such appeal dismiss the whole suit and hence limita tion for execution of the decree runs from the date of the appellate decree 4 When a decree imposes a separate hability on each of the several defendants, and one of them appeals against that portion of the decree which affects him. is limitation postponed under Art 182 Cl (2), even for the execution of the decrees against the other defendant? On this question there is a conflict of dec s ons some cases holding that time runs from the appellate decrees and others halding that time runs from the lower Court's decree 6

14 Res Judicata 33.

A sues B and C in the alternative for a certain sum of money The suit is decreed against B and dismissed against C B appeals making A and Crespondents. The appellate Courts sets aside the decree against B It can at the same time pass a decree against C But its failure to do so does not operate as res judicata under S 11 Explanation 5 because it was not obligatory but only discretionary on the nart of the appellate Court to grant relief to A1 (See S 11 Note 25) Similarly the failure of A to ask for rehef being granted to him under R 33 does not operate as res indicata under S 11. Explanation 42

Where a defendant appeals as to a part of the decree against lum it has been held by the Madras High Court in the undermentioned case3 that he is precluded by res iudicata from urging in support of his appeal a point which goes to the root of the whole decree including the portion of it from which he has not appealed. It is submitted that this decision is inconsistent with the Full Bench decision of the same High Court in Panchanada v Vythinathas and other cases cited in S 11 Note 29 Foot-Note 10 Further the decision seems to overlook the provisions of the present Rule which enable the appellate Court to reverse the whole decree though the appeal is as to a part of the decree alone (See Note 5)

16 Second Appeal

A sues B and C The suit is decreed against B but dismissed against C B appeals from the decree but A does not file any appeal or cross objections Bs appeal is allowed and As entire suit is therefore dismissed A files a se cond appeal impleading B and C as respondents. He is not entitled to file a second appeal against C because to allow him to do so would be to allow him to prefer an appeal directly to the High Court from the decision of the trial Court 1 The decisions to the contrary2 are not good law in view of the Povy Council case mentioned below 3

A sucs for Rs 1000 The trial Court passes a decree for Rs 600 The defendant appeals but A does not file any appeal or cross objection The defendant's appeal is allowed and As suit is dismissed in its entirety A files a second appeal. He cannot contend in the second appeal that his whole suit should be decreed. The utmost he can claim is the restoration of the trial Court's decree 4 The authorities to the contrary5 are not good law as they are opposed to the Privy Council decision in Nobinchandra v Chandra Madhab But where the omission to grant a rehef is due to a mere slip of the pen it

decree of the first Court?

The mere fact that a decree might have been passed in favour of a party to the sunt who was not impleaded as a party to the appeal does not make him constructively a party to the appeal so as to enable him to file a second appeal against the decree in the appeal 8 No second appeal hes against an order of remand passed not under R 223 ante, but under the present Rule 8. The refusal to take action under R 33 in the everage of its discretion by a lower appellate Court is not an error of law within S 100 so as to sustain a second appeal 9.

17 Privy Council Appeal

A sues B and C. The claim is decreed against B dismissed against C B appeals to the High Court but A does not file any appeal or cross objections B is appeal is allowed A appeals to the Privy Council implicating both B and C. His appeal against C is not maintainable because it amounts to a direct appeal to the Privy Council from the decree of the trial Court which is not allowed under the law!

18 Revision

on the ground that it has no jurisdiction to do so in the absence of cross objections it fails to overcise a jurisdiction to do so in the absence of cross objections it fails to overcise a jurisdiction vested in it by law within S 115° It has been held that no revision lies against an order refusing to add certain persons as parines to the appeal, as such an order is interlocutory in its nature 2

R. 34. [S 576] Where the appeal is heard by more C Judges than one, any Judge dissenting from the judgment of the Court shall state in writing the decision or order which he thinks should be passed on the appeal, and he may state his reasons for the same.

1 Date of decree

Under this Rule, the date which the appellate decree shall bear is the date on which the judgment was delivered. Hence, the date of the decree for purposes of limitation for filing a second appeal is the date on which the judgment is delivered 1 Compare O 20, R. 7, ante.

2 Specification of Relief

The Rule requires that the appellate decree must contain a clear specification of the relief granted. But where the decree did not specify the sum due to the appellant except by reference to the judgment and decree of the lower Court, it was held, that though the decree was informal, as the amount due to the decree-holder was ascertainable from the record, it was capable of execution and execut on should be allowed as a matter of equity, the defect in the decree being due to the mistake of the officers of the Court. As to the construction of the appel ate decrees, see the underment-oned cases?

3 Costs

See generally S 35 and the notes thereon. The appellate decree must provide for costs of the appeal as well as of the suit 1 As regards the costs of the appeal, the appellate decree must state the amount of costs meurred by eather party in the appellate Court. A party cannot recover any sum as costs of the appeal if it is not entered in the decree 2 But the amount3 or particulars4 of the costs incurred in the lower Court need not be specified in the appellate decree and the same may be ascertained from the lower Court's decree 5

The appellate Court must finally determine by which of the parties the costs are to be paid it cannot declare that the costs shall be borne by the party who will be unsuccessful in a suit to be hereafter brought 6

The appellate Court can deprive a successful party of his costs for sufneight reasons. Thus where a decree is confirmed on grounds wholly different from those on which it was based by the lower Court the appeal may be dismissed without costs

4 Decree in appeal supersedes that of the lower Court

See S 38 Note 5 and S 148. Note 9 and the undermentioned case 1

5 Court fee

S 33 of the Code provides, that after judgment a decree shall follow In the undermentioned case it was held by Oldfield, I, that even after the isposal of the appeal and pending the preparation of a decree, a Court had power to direct the plaintiff-appellant to correct the valuation and to pay additional Court-fee. ### 2. 'Who is unable to pay the fee required" - See Notes to O 33 R 1 ante

3 Application accompanied by a memorandum of appeal

Unlike the plaint in a pauper stut which forms an integral poron of the pauper application itself the application for leave to appeal as a pauper is a distinct document from the memorandum of appeal accompanying the application. The memorandum of appeal itself cannot be treated as an application for Icave to hopeal as a pauper 1

4 Subject to the provision relating to suits by paupers

The granting of leave to appeal as a pauper is subject to the provisions relating to suits by paupers as provided in O 33. Thus if the appellant has entered into an agreement with reference to the subject-matter of the appeals or has not stated with the utmost good faith, in his application, the whole of his assets2 then his application for leave to appeal is hable to be resected.

The application for leave to appeal as a pauper should be verified at its foot as required by O 33 R 23 But though it is not so verified if it is accompanied by an affidavit in which the statements contained in the application are stated to be true and there is no falsehood or concealment in the application the Rule will be deemed to have been sufficiently complied with 4 It has been held that the presentation of an application under this Rule without a list of properties as required by R 2 is n t invalid and the same could be sunpied after the limitation period 5

5 In all matters including the presentation of such application

In the absence of these words in the corresponding section of the old Code it was held by the High Court of Madras1 that the Rule as to prosentation in person by a pauper applicant now contained in O 33 R 3 did not apply to pauper appellants. It is now clear that the application should be presented in the same manner as the case of a person summe in forma pauperis e, in person But a pardanashin lady is however exempled from personal appearance under S 132 of the Code and therefore she need not present the application to appeal in forma pauperts in person 2 It has been held by the Chief Court of Oudh that the memorandum of appeal need not be presented in person 3

ng 92 from videac. usu falls within the proviso

(1932) 1933 All 712 (712) Applicant entitled to be heard only if Judge after read ing judgments thinks it to be wrong

That proviso is a very necessary safeguard introduced by the legislature for the benefit of htigants who find themselves opposed by paupers and in our opinion the Court should be careful to see that the proviso is satisfied It is to be noticed that the Court must come to its conclusion upon a perusal only of application, the judgment and the decree This proviso is apt to be overlooked, but it would provide a safeguard against this, if the Judge or Bench admitting a pauper appeal were to express and record very briefly the reasons for granting leave so that the Bench before whom the appeal ultimately comes may have an assurance that the leave was properly given "

A party cannot therefore be allowed to appeal as pauper unless the decree appealed from appears to be contrary to law or to some usage having the force of law or is otherwise erroneous or unjust 2 But unlike R 11 of O 41 which empowers the Court to call for the records, the Court is restricted under this proviso to a perusal of the judgment and decree appealed against and has no discretionary power to go into the record 3 The High Courts of Allahabad,4 Patna5 and Lahore8 have held that a mere issue of a nonce to the respondent under App G, Form No 11 is no ground for holding that the Court is satisfied as to the conditions laid down in the proviso, and that the respondent appearing in answer to the notice is entitled to urge that the application should be rejected on the ground that the conditions of the proviso have not been sausfied The High Court of Madras? has, on the other hand, held that a nonce issued to the respondent under Form No 11 is only to state the objections of the respondent in respect of the pauperism of the applicant, and that the respondent has no locus stands to urge at that stage that the proviso is not satisfied

This rule contemplates the appellate Court perusing the judgment of a subordinale Court, and not the Court where judgment is appealed from perusing its own judgment of 44 does not therefore apply to appeals to His Majesty in Council and the High Court has no jurisdiction to grant leave to appeal in Jorma paupers to the Privy Council But the pentioner may apply in England for such leave in accordance with the rules that govern such applications 3

13 Limitation

Under \(\text{VII}\) 170 Schedule I of the Limitation Act the period of limitation for presenting an application for leave to appeal in forma paupers is 30 days from the date of the decree appealed against \(^1\)

R. 2. [S 593] The inquiry into the pauperism of the applicant may be made either by the Appellate Court or under the orders of the Appellate Court by the Court from whose decision the appeal is

Provided that, if the applicant was allowed to sue or appeal as a pauper in the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, no further inquiry in respect of his pauperism shall be necessary, unless the Appellate Court sees cause to direct such inquiry

1 Inquiry into pauperism

If the pauper applicant-appellant had been allowed in the trial Court to sue as a pauper no fresh inquiry as regards his pauperism is necessary unless the appellate Court sees reason to require it. Otherwise enquery into his pauperism is necessary and such enquiry may be made by the appellate Court itself or under its direction, by hie trial Court in the latter case, the report of the trial Court as regards pauperism does not operate as a final disposal of the application, and does not affect the power of the appellate Court to consider and decide whether leave should or should not be granted.

2 Appeals in forma pauperis

See Note 13 to O 44. R 1

An order for leave to appeal in forma pauperis takes effect from its date and has no effect whatever on costs incurred before that date 1

3 Limitation

An application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council must be filed within 90 days of the date of decree or order appealed from, under Art 179 of the Limitation Act, 1908 Where the decree is modified on review, the time will begin to run from the date of the decree passed on review 1

Where the Court is closed on the last day prescribed for the application it may be presented on the next re opening day 2 In calculating the period of limitat on the day on which the decree or order appealed from is pronounced or dated should be excluded 3 S 12 sub-S (2) of the Limitation Act of 1877 was restricted to applications for leave to appeal as a pauper and hence it was held that the time spent in getting a copy of the decree could not be excluded in computing the period of him auon 4 Under the present S 12, sub S (2) of the Limitation Act 1908 such time can be clearly excluded in computing the period of linutation for an application for leave to appeal under thus Rule 5 Sub-S (3) of S 12 of that Act is however not applicable to applications for leave to appeal and therefore the time spent in obtaining a copy of the judgment cannot be excluded $

See also Note 8 to S 109 and the undermentioned cases 8

R. 3. [S. 600] (1) Every potition shall state the grounds of appeal and pray for a certificate either that, as regards amount or value and nature, the case Certificate as lo value or fitness fulfils the requirements of S. 110, or that it is otherwise a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council.

(2) Upon receipt of such potition, the Court shall direct notice to be served on the opposite party to show cause why the said cortificate should not be granted.

wishing to file an appeal to His Majesty in Council should file a petition to the

the requirements of S 110 or is otherwise fit for appeal.\footnote{1}

such certificate, which the Judicial Committee will consider and act upon and unless the certificate upon which leave to appeal is based is in such a form as to justify that leave, it will be held not to have been properly given 1 in Radhakrishna Ayyar v Swaminatha Ayyar2 their Lordships of the Judicial Committee pointed out that where an appeal is certified to be otherwise fit it is of the utmost importance that the certificate should on the face of it show clearly the grounds upon which it is based. There should be an indication of the nature of the question that is involved in the appeal and that the discretion conferred by S 109, Cl (c) was invoked or was exercised. Their Lordships think it should be brought to the attention of the Indian Courts that these certificates are of great consequence, that they semously affect the rights of lingant parties, and that they ought to be given in such a form that it is impossible to mistake their meaning upon their face. Even if the High Court refuses a certificate it is desirable that the reasons for such refusal should be stated 2

The respondent can raise a prehumary objection before the Judicial Committee on the ground that the order granting leave is ulira vires and that hence the appeal is not maintainable 4 But objection as to valuation, should be taken at the earliest possible opportunity 5 The Privy Council will not interfere with any question of valuation unless it can be shown that some i cm has improperly been made the subject of valuation, or excluded therefrom, or that there is some fundamental principle affecting the valuation which renders it unsound 6

Certificate if can be granted after final adjudication by the Indicial Committee - The ceruficate under this Rule cannot be granted after there has been a final adjudication in the matter by the Judicial Commutee In Vekt v Cheun Ram? the planniff's stat which was decreed in the trial Court was reversed by the High Court The plaintiff then filed a petition for leave to appeal to the Judicial Committee as also an application for review. The latter application was granted and the High Court reversed its original judgment The defendant took the matter in appeal to the Privy Council which held that the application for review was not maintainable and dismissed the suit restoring the first judgment of the High Court Subsequently the plaintiff pressed his original peution for leave to appeal and the High Court granted leave holding that the petition was still alive, and not disposed of The Pravy Council reversed the order granting leave holding that there was no suit existing after the decas on of the Judicial Committee and that no leave could therefore Le granted

1 Consolidation of suits

There was no provision under the old Code corresponding to this rule and there was a conflict of opinion as to whether, and when two suits could be consolidated together for the purpose of reaching the pecuniary limit necesary for an appeal to the Privy Council According to the High Court of Al'ahabad suits though decided by separate judgments could be consolidated provided the questions involved in them were substantially the same, and the property affected by the suits were also the same 1 According to the High Court of Calcutta such consolidation was not permissible unless the suits had been decided by the same judgment 2 The present rule gives effect to the latter view and no consolidation is permissible under the present Code unless the suits have been decaded by the same judgment. The object of the rule is that where there are appeals from one judgment involving substantially the same question for determination before the Privy Council, they may be consolidated if, in the aggregate, the value of the appeals amount to the appealable minimum 3 But in interpreting the words 'same judgment," the spirit of the rule should be observed and a narrow interpretation should not be given to it 4 Where the judgment in one suit is merely a copy of the others or where the judgment in one suit merely refers to the judgment in the other, and, adopting its reasons passes a decree accordingly,6 the suits must for the purposes of this rule be regarded as having been decided by the same judgment. Where the evidence in the two suits was, at the request of the parties considered as a whole, and the Court came to a decision on the whole of the evidence in favour of a party, it was held by the High Court of Allahabad that it was a proper case to which the procedure sanctioned by this rule should be applied 7 But the rule allows consolidation only for the purpose of making good a defect in pecumary valuation, and not a defect of any other kind In the case cited below the same judgment affirmed the lower Court's judgment in part relating to one defendant and modified it in part relating to another defendant. In regard to the former part, there was no substantial question of law involved and in regard to the latter part the appealable value was less than Rs 10,000 Both defendants applied jointly for leave to appeal It was held that leave should be refused $

The rule applies only to appeals to the King in Council and not to appeals to the High Court 9

2 Inherent power to consolidate

The rule does not limit the inherent power of the High Court to consolidate appeals to the Privy Council for the purpose of security for the costs and for saving expenses though such power cannot be exercised for settling pecuniary valuation when the rule forbids it in cases governed by different judgments 2

3 Judgment meaning of

The word judgment refers to the judgment appealed against and not the judgment of the Court below 1 The fact that there was a common judg ment in two suits in the trial Court is no ground for consolidating the sin's under this rule unless there is a common judgment in the High Court also

The effect of an order of consolidation of several appeals under this rule is to make them a single appeal, and if costs are awarded against the rese

1 Remission of dispute as to amount or value of the subject matter

This rule gives effect to the practice followed under the old Code a practice sanctioned by the Judicial Committee of ascertaining by evidence and enquiry as to the true value of the subject matter in appeal when there is a d spute regarding the same 1

I remand under this Rule is unnecessary and should not be made when an issue as to valuation was raised and decided in the trial Court and the parties acquiesced in the finding on that issue "

Where there is a remand under this rule the Court to which the remand is made should uself carry out the investigation and cannot remit it to some other officer 3 But it has power to hold a local enquiry for the purpose of determining the value of the subject matter 4 See also the undermentioned case •

Where a question of the value of the subject matter of the suit has been raised in the High Court and a report with reference to value has been made under this rule it is desirable that full information with reference to these proceedings be included in the record to be sent to the Privy Council 6

The appellant should furnish security for the costs of the respondent. The security should after the amendment of the section by Act XVVI of 1920 be in cash or in Government securities unless the Court acting under the provisor orders that some other form of security may be furnished. Where Government securities are furnished as security, the market value thereof at the time of deposit should be taken into consideration 2 Solicitors for the respondent in England can claim payment of their bill of costs from the money deposited as security 3 A Full Bench of the High Court of Allahabad' has held that it is open to the decree holder by way of caution to attach the security deposited by the judgment-debtor so as to prevent him from dealing with it any further.

5 Security in case of consolidated appeal

When two appeals are consolidated for valuation, security has to be furnished in respect of each of the appeals. It is not enough if security is given in one appeal alone 1.

6 Form of security-Provise

If an appellant to the Pray Council wishes to furnish a security in any other form than in cash or in Government bonds, he must apply for a special order to that effect and obtain it simultaneously with the order granting the certificate. It cannot be applied for or granted afterwards 1

The period of six months has, under the Rule as now amended, been reduced to 90 days; but the Court may extend the said period by a further period of sixty days "on cause shown" Under the Rule, as it originally stood, it had been held by the Privy Council and by the High Courts that the period of six months could be extended by the High Court for "cogent reasons.'1 It was held that the misapprehension of the appellant as to the date of the re-opening of the High Court could not be considered to be a "cogent reason" justifying an extension of time 2 As to whether the poverty of the appellant was a "cogent reason," it was held by the High Court of Madras and the Chief Court of Lower Burma that it was not;3 while the Chief Court of Punjab held that it was a sufficient ground for extending time 4 Even under the present Rule, the High Courts of Madras and Rangoon have followed their earlier view on the point 5

Can the period of six weeks or the period of sixty days be extended by the High Court? It has been held that the period of six weeks cannot be extended by the High Court 6 There is a conflict of opinion as to whether the period of sixty days could a clt be enlarged by the High Court. According to the High Court of Bombay, the High Court has by virtue of R 9 of the Prive Council rules, such power, while according to the High Courts of Allahabad 8 Lahore 84 Madras, 9 Patna, 10 Rangoon 11 and the Chief Court of Oudh 12 the High Court has no such power and cannot extend the time beyond that which is provided in this Rule.

2 Court

The word Court in this rule means the High Court and not the Subordinate Court of original jurisdiction A subordinate Judge or a District Judge has no jurisdiction to stay execution of a decree of the High Court The provis ons of this Rule are meant entirely to govern all questions regarding the execution of the decree under appeal before the Privy Council and the provisions of O 41 R 6 do not apply thereto 1

3 Stay of execution if can be ordered before the granting of certificate

In cases decided under the old Code it was held by the High Courts of Allahabad 1 Calcutta2 and Madras3 that an application for stay of execution could not be granted before the appeal to the Privy Council was finally admitted. The reason for such a view was the wording of para 1 of the corresponding S 608 of the old Code which referred to the Court admitting the appeal. The High Court of Bombays on the other hand held that the words admitting the appeal had no reference to le time when the Court was to give directions but merely descriptive of the Court which was to give them and that the High Court could stay execution of 15 decree although the appeal had not yet been admitted. The words admitting the appeal have now been omitted in this rule but the omission has been held not to affect the construction of the rule and that even now no stay can be ordered under this rule before the certificate is granted 5 It has been held in the cases cited below that the High Court has inherent power to stay execusor in appropriate cases even before the certificate is granted

4 Taking such security from the respondent

Under CI (b) of the rule the Court may allow execution of the de cree directing the respondent to furnish security for the due performance of any order which the Judicial Committee may make on appeal 1 The object of the se unity is to indemnify the appellant for any loss that may be occa ioned by the execution being taken out 2

5 Stay of execution on taking security from the appellant Cl (c)

The grant of an order for stay of the execution of the decree pendano, appeal is in the discretion of the Court and the appellant should show p call cad c for the exercise of the discretion in his favour. As a general rule execution ought not to be stayed unless it would so upset things that in the event of the appeal being sulcessful the status quo ante could not be restored or culd be restored only with great difficult. The principle underlying the granting of stay of execution is that the successful party in linguition and for obtain merels a barren success.

Proceedings between a prelimitary decree and the final decree as for instance in partition suits are proceedings in the suit and not in execution. The High C art has therefore no power to stay such proceedings under this ru! The Privy Goune I which has sersin of the appeal can alone a asy such proceedings. ### 8 Stay of execution by Privy Council

As a general rule, in appeals pending before the Privy Council an application to stay proceedings in execution ought always to be made in the instruction to the High Court which has ample power to deal with the matter according to the circumstances of the particular case, and has knowledge of the detruls which the Judicial Committee cannot possess on an interlocutory application. But if the High Court refuses to grant stay, the Privy Council may if it thanks it, either order stay itself? or direct the appellant to apply again to the High Court with its opinion as to the advisability of granting stay?

9 Security after execution

The High Court can under sub-R (1) direct the respondent to furnish security for the due performance of any order which may be made by His Majesty in Council, even in cases where the decree his been executed <sup>1</sup>. But the party seeking to obtain such security must show special cause such is waste or improper dealing with the property on the part of the respondent <sup>2</sup>.

10 To give such other directions

Where a mortgage suit decreed ex parte was directed by the High Court to be re heard and during the pendency of an appeal to the Prity Council against that order one of the parties applied for stay, it was held by the C-leutta High Court that it had power under this rule as well as under in inherent powers to stay further proceedings in the suit.

11 By the appointment of a Receiver

Under Cl (d) of the rule the Court has power to appoint a Receiver to safeguard the interests of the appollant. But the principles on which a Receiver should be appointed are the same as those contuned in O. 40. In the abete of any allegation of waste or risk of loss, no Receiver ought to be appointed under this rule. The High Court has power to appoint a Receiver even in cases where special levie to appeal is granted by the Judicial Committee.

Poucr to add parties -The High Court has no power to direct the addition of parties after leave to appeal to the Privy Council is granted 4 (Compare also Note 32 to O 1, R 10)

Power to implead legal representatives or to order abatement -Where legal representatives have to be brought on record on the death of a party penging appeal to the Prive Council, the practice of the Judicial Committee is that, on an application, the High Court will make an enquiry, take evidence and transmit the same to the Privy Council with its own opinion as to the substitut on of parties 5 The same rule of practice would appear to hold in the case of abatement 6

Power to stay proceedings - This rule has no application where the party applies for stay of proceedings in the Court below as distinct from the say of the execution of a deerce See also points 3 and 4 in Note 5 ante.

Power to record compromise - Where after the certificate has be n granted and the appeal declared to have been admitted, the parties compromise the suit and apply to the High Court to pass a decree in accordance therewith, it has been held by the Court of Bombay that it has no power to do so 8 The reason is that the Court having once made a decree cannot even by consent make a second one superseding the first

- Whoever desires to obtain execution

It is not necessary in all cases that each person interested in the execution of a particular order of His Majesty in Council should obtain a separate transmission of the order when it has been already transmitted to the lower Court at the instance of one of the successful parties 1 Under O 21. R 15 it is open to some of the decree holders who have obtained permission. to execute the Privy Council decree on behalf of all the decree-holders 2 But where the decree is in favour of several persons declaring that each is entitled to a separate and distinct share each plaintiff is bound to apply separately for execution and an order of transmission obtained by some of the plaintiffs alone cannot be taken advantage of by the others 3 Where a party having obtained an order in council delays or refuses to lodge the order, the opposite party can apply under this rule asking for a summary order against that party

3 Shall apply by petition

The provisions of the rule are mandators and an execution application filed without having filed a potition for transmission under this rule is incompetent. But where no such objection was taken in previous execution proceedings it cannot be allowed at a later stage of the proceedings.

4 Accompanied by a certified copy

A certified copy of the decree sought to be executed should be filed along with the pention 1 A production of a copy of the udsment is not enough? But the object of the requirement of a certified copy of the decree is only to ensure that proper intumation upon the subject of any order in council should be supplied to the Courts in India. The rule should not be construed as restretting the only possible evidence of the decree or order to the certified copy. Where, therefore, along with an application for the execution of the decree of the Privy Council a plain print copy of the decree was filed with an affidant showing that it was the decree of the Privy Council, it was held that it must be held to be a true copy of the decree within the meaning of this rule 4.

The practice in regard to Pray Council decrees is that the original decree is given to the successful party or to one of the successful parties and it is the duty of that person to file that original decree in the High Court 2

5 'To the Court from which the appeal to His Majesty was preferred

The application under sub-R (1) should be made to the Court from whose decree the appeal was preferred to the Privy Council An application made to any other Court is not competent 1

6 Jurisdiction of Patna High Court

The High Court of Patna has no jurisdiction to execute an order in Council passed in an appeal from the Calcutt High Court The proper Court to which an application for execution should be made is the High Court of Calcutta.

7 Functions under the Rule merely ministerial

The duties of the High Court in receiving and transmitting orders of His Majesty in Council under this rule are purely ministerial. It is this not competent for the High Court to consider and discuss the effect of propriety of the order in Council and disallow costs or interest or to hold

2 (1,00) . ... --

Note 5 1 (15"4) 22 Suth W R 102 (102) that the decree of the Privy Council is void and incapable of execution on the ground that one of the appellants died during the pendency of the appeal 3 If a party feels aggreed by the order, the proper course for him is to apply to the Privy Council for redress,

S To what Court order should be transmitted

The High Court should transmit the order for execution to the Court which passed the decree Where hosever, such Court ceases to have territorial juried enton over the matter the order can be transmitted to the Court which has unfad chorn to execute it 1

8a. Shall sive such directions etc.

Under Sub R (2) of the Rule it is the High Court that can give necessary directions in relatin to execution. But it has been held that neither the High Court nor the Subordinate Court has power to stay execution or adjourn an application for execution on the ground that an application for review of the de rec was pending before the Privy Council.

9 Application by assignee of order in Council

Where an order of the Prny Council is transmitted under this rule to the District Court as the Court which passed the first decice the latter Court has jurisdiction to entertain an application made by an assignce of the decree under O 21 R 16 to recognise the assignment and to allow him to execute the decree 1

10 Liability of surety

The hability of the surety can be enforced under S 145 of the Code But the surety is not precluded from questioning the validity of the security bond in execution proceedings. Where the surety bond amounts to a mortgage it should be enforced by a separace stat and not by way of execution.

11 Restitution

Where during the rendency of an appeal to the Privy Council certain property which had been decreed to the plaintiff and which had been delivered to him was attached and sold away in Court auction in execution of another decree against the plaintiff and subsequently the Privy Council allows the appeal of the defendant and dismisses the suit the defendant is entitled to recover back the property by way of restitution. His right to restitution is not affected by the fact that the auction purchaser is not a party to the Privy Council appeal. The fact that the party applying for restitution is not a party

A party who is dispossessed of immovable property in pur uance of a decree of the High Court is entitled to get buck, by way of restitution in t increby the property of which he was dispossessed, but also mesne profits for the period for which he was out of possession.

13 Interest

No interest on costs can be allowed by the High. Court or the Court of the first instance, when the order of the Pray Councils silent as to interest. But if interest is awarded by the Pray Council but no rate is specified the executing Court can grant interest at the rate granted in the decree of the High Coverat a reasonable rate? (See also Note 17 to 5 34 and Note 35 to S 35)

14 Costs

When the successful party in appeal before the Priv Council is warded the costs of the appeal in England and also the costs neutred in the Indian Courts, he is entitled to get also the costs of translating the records of the appeal and of transmitting them to England 1. The amount of such costs is left to be accertained by the High Court and is not assessed by he Privy Council office 4.

- 1 Legislative changes
  - 1 The word final which occurred in the old section has now been substituted by the words not subject to appeal (See Note 4)
    - 2 The words or the construction of a document . . . ments have been omitted
  - 2 Scope of the Rule
- À right of reference is fundamentally distinct from the right of appeal the former vests in the Court and the latter vests in the sudor 1 The object of the provision for reference is to enable the subordinate Courts to obtain, in non appealable cases, the opinion of the High Court in advance on a question of law and thereby avoid the commission of a nerror which could not be remedied later on 2 But the right of reference is subject to the conditions prescribed by this Rule and unless they are fulfilled, the High Court cannot entertain a reference from a subordinate tribunal 3 The Rule requires the following conditions to be satisfied to enable a subordinate Court to make a reference.—
  - There must be a pending suit or appeal in which the decree s not subject to appeal or a pending proceeding in execution of such decree (See Note 3)
  - (2) A question of law or usage having the force of law must arise in the course of such suit, appeal or proceeding, and
  - (3) The Court trying the suit or appeal or executing the decremust entertain a reasonable doubt on such question (S27 Note 7)

The provisions of this Order are made applicable to proceedings under the special or local Acts mentioned hereunder 4

3 Reference has only where question arises in suit appeal of execution of decree A reference can be made only in a suit ar appeal or in execution of a decrect and only on a matter about which the parties are litigating that is on a matter wherein the Court is called on to adjudicate on the opposite

The question on which a reference can be made must have arisen before of of the herring of a suit or an appeal or in a pending proceeding in execution of a decree. A question arising absent in the hearing of a suit or appeal or in the hearing of a suit or appeal or in the subject of a reference under this Pule unless it arises in execution of the decree.

The quest in mu t all o be one which actually arises for decision in the proceedings before the Court. The Rule is not intended to provide for suppositions cases which do not actually arise for decision <sup>10</sup>

The right of reference is analogous to a right of appeal in that it is not a more ma or of procedure, and, consequently cannot be exercised in proceedings other than those referred to in the section by the application of S 141 of the Code which only makes the procedure of the Code in respect of suits applicable to miscellaneous proceedings. (See No e 7 S 141)

Decree not subject to appeal

No reference can be made in a suit or appeal unless the decree that might be pased there n is one against which no appeal lies <sup>1</sup> Similarly no reference can be made in a proceeding in execution of a decree unless the decree is a non-appealable one <sup>2</sup> The reason is that in appealable cases a remedy to correct possible errors is provided by the appeal.

1, Court, meaning of

The word Court in this Rule means a Court of Civil Judicature . Thus a Collector executing a decree transferred to him under S 68 of the Code2 or a Rent Con roller enguiring into an application under S 15 of the Coleuta Rent Act3 or a Registrar acting under the Indian Registration Act4 is not a Court and cannot make a reference under this Rule. Where a Court refuses to entertain an appeal on the ground that it has no jurisdiction to do so it has no power to make a reference on that matter under this Rule 5 (See also Note 1 to S 114, ante )

I reference is allowed only on a question of law or usage having the force of law. No reference can be made on a question of fact 1

7 Reasonable doubt

A reference can be made on a question of law only if the Judge entertains a reasonable doubt about it 1 There cannot ordinarily be a reasonable doubt on a question clearly decided by the rulings of the High Court to which the Judge making the reference is subordinate unless the authority of those rulings can be questioned in view of a more recent decision of the Privy Council 14 Where however, the rubing of a High Court is doubted in a later decision of the same Court and has been dissented from by the other High Courts, there may be room for a reasonable doubt sufficient to enable a subordinate Court to make a reference on the question 2 But even in such a case the referring Court must entertain a reasonable doubt about the question and the mere fact that there are conflicting rulings is not by itself sufficient 3 Similarly the Court cannot make a reference on a question on which it entertains no doub merely because the part es apply for it 4

A reference is not bad merely because the question arises out of the action of a third person not a party to the suit $

8 Statement of facts and Court's opinion

In making the reference the Court should draw up a statement of the facts of the case formulate the precise question of law or usage having the force of law on which opinion is sought for and must also give its opinion on the aucstion 1

1 Dispuse of the case in conformity with the decision of the High Court

Upon receipt of the decision of the High Court, it is the duty of the r feiring Court to dispose of the case in conformity therewith. Thus where a Small Cause Court passed a decree for the plantiffs, contingent on the oversion of the High Court and the High Court gave the opinion that the Lumbifs could not recover, it is not open to the referring Court after the receipt of the opinion to allow the suit to be withdrawn by the plaintiff, judgment should be entered for the defendant 1 The judgment by the High C urt on a reference under this rule is not, by itself a decree but simply a st tement of the grounds in conformity with which the referring Court is to dispose of the case as provided by this rule. Therefore the High Court cannot review its indement passed on a reference made to it 2

Costs of reference to High Court

R. 4. [S 620] The costs (if any) con sequent on a reference to the decision of the High Comt shall be costs in the case

[1877-S 620, 1861-S 34]

1 Costs of reference

The costs of reference to the High Court cannot be dealt with separately but must be dealt with when awarding the costs of the suit 1 The High Court of Calcutta is however, of opinion that the award of the costs of the reference is in the discretion of the Court 2 This does not seem to be correct on principle. The rule requires that the costs of reference shall be costs in the case and S 35 which gives the Court a discretion to award costs is expressly made subject to the conditions and limitations prescribed by the rules of the first schedule making the reference has passed or made in the case out of which the reference aroso, and make such order as it thinks fit

1 Scope of the Rule Where the lower Court has not complied with the conditions lad down in R 1 of this order the High Court has poter under this rule to return the case for amendment in proper form 1 The rule is also wide enough to enable the High Court to quash the order of reference itself made by the lower Court 2

1 Scope of the Rulo

S 16 of the Prov Small Cause Courts Vet, 1887 provides that a suit cognisable by a Court of Small Causes shall not be tried by any other Court having jurisdiction within the limits of the jurisdiction of the Court of Small Causes by which the suit is triable. Where an ordinary Court emertains a suit cognisable by a Court of Small Causes it exercises a jurisdiction not vested in it and if it refuses to entertain an original suit on the ground that it is cognisable by a Court of Small Causes, it refuses to exercise a jurisdiction vested in it. A reference under this rule is limited to those cases where the District Court is of the opinion that the Subordinate Court has held 7, that it has no jurisdiction over the suit, and that such order is erroneous?

The rule 1s only an enabling one and does not in any way cut down the jurisdiction of the appellate Court <sup>2</sup> But a District Judge has power under this Rule to make a reference whether the case is, or is not, pending in appeal before him <sup>3</sup> Where a District Munsif returned a plaint as being cognisable only by a Court of Small Causes and the latter Court, however, returned it back as being cognisable only by the Munsif's Court, it was held that the correct procedure was either to pioceed under R 6 of this order itself or send the case to the District Judge for making a reference under this rule <sup>4</sup>

2 Court subordinate thereto'

The Court of Small Causes is a Court subordinate to the District Judge and O 46, R 7 contemplates and allows a reference to be made by the District Judge in cases tried by the Court of Small Causes 1

Before a reference could be made under this rule it is a necessary condition that it must appear to the District Court that the subordinate Court has erroneously held upon the point of jur sdiction. Where it does so appear and a party requires the District Court to make a reference, it is bound to do so?

4 District Court should state its reasons

A District Court when making a reference under this rule should state its rea-ons for considering the opinion of the subordinate Court to be crioneous?

5 Powers of the High Court under this Rule

Where a sur which is cognisable only by a Court of Small Causes is tried as an original suit by a District Munsif and the decree is reversed by the Suberdinate Judge on appeal there are two remedies open to the aggreed parts

- (1) A revision under S 115 of the Code
- (2) A reference under this rule

Where a reusion is preferred to the High Court the latter is bound to set used the decree of appellite Court as being prised in an appeal which was moompletent and therefore without jurisdiction. It can also set used the decree of both the Courts and return the plaint for presentation to ille proper Court.

1 Legislative changes Section 623 of the old Code provided that an application for review could be made to the Court which I used the decree or made the order, or to the Court (if any) to which the bisiness of the former Court has been transferred These lates words have been amilted in the present section in aley of 5 1.0 of the Cole newly introluced

Ť

It has been seen in Note 2 to S 96 anie, that a right of appeal does not exist and cannot be assumed unless expressly given by statute or by rules having the force of statute. The same principle applies to a right of review also Such a right do s no therefore exist unless granted by statute 1 S 114 of the Code and this order expressly give such a right in certain cases the former being the substantae section continuing a brief sintement of the Court's general power of review and the latter providing the details of procedure 2 These plous ons constitute an exception to the general rule that when once a judgme it is signed and pronounced it cannot afterwards be altered or added to (see O 20 R 3), and as such a right of review is exercisable only in the circumstances where it is distinctly provided by the statute 3

This rule is in itself definitive of the limits within which a review is permited by the Code and it follows from what has been stated above that where a case falls within the class of cases contemplated by this rule, the Court cannot have an inherent power of review apart from the provisions of the rule 5 Where however a case falls outside the class of such cases the Courts have of course inherent power to review their orders for the ends of justice or to prevent an abuse of the process of the Court 6

The eastness of a right of review does not bar a suit for the same rchef 7 Nor does the fact that an appeal can be filed against the decree afford any ground for refu ing a review. The reason is that where there are two remedies open to a party, they should not as a rule be construed so as to operate in derogation of each other 8 But the availability of an appeal as an obvious remedy will be a ground for refusing in the exercise of the Court's discretion, an application for review 9

3 Review and appeal-Distinction

A review is not the same thing as or a substitute for an appeal 1 The ty o proceedings differ in very many particulars

1,

A review and an amendment differ in the following particulats -

- (1) In the case of a review the correctness of the judgment and the decree is questioned, while in the case of an amendment of a decree the correctness of the judgment is assumed but the jurisdiction to amend arises from the fact that the decree is not in accordance with the judgment 1
- (2) Where an application for an amendment is allowed there is no need for a re hearing of a suit, while if an application for review is allowed, a re hearing of the suit becomes necessari "
- (3) Where an application for review is granted the result is a ne / decree superseding the original decree and not merch some amendment thereof 3

Person considering himself to be aggreed?

It is only a person aggreed by a decree or order that can apply for a review A person aggricaed means a person who has suffered a legal grievance a man against whom a decision has been pronounced which his wrongfully deprised him of something or wrongfully affected his title to some thing, it is not sufficient that he has lost something which he would have obtained if another order had been made 1 A decree or order against a person not a party thereto, is on general principles of law, not binding on him Such a person therefore cannot have a legal grievance against the decree or order and, consequently cannot apply, for a review of the decree or order under this rule 2 The Judicial Commissioner's Court of Nagpur has however, held that where an order has been made in a proceeding against a company which was

4 Review and amendment-Distinction

A review and an amendment differ in the following particulars -

- (1) In the case of a review the correctness of the judgment . the decree is questioned, while in the case of an amendo of a decree the correctness of the judgment is assumed but jurisdiction to amend arises from the fact that the decree not in accordance with the judgment 1
- (2) Where an application for an amendment is allowed there is need for a re-hearing of a suit, while if an application ! review is allowed, a re hearing of the suit becomes necessar
- (3) Where an application for review is granted the result is a no decree superseding the original decree and not mercly 507 amendment thereof 3

10 Discovery of new and important matter or evidence

Where a laugant has obtained a judgment in a Court of justice he is by law, entitled not to be deprived of that judgment without solid grounds. Where therefore a review of a judgment is asked for by a party, the greatest care ought to be exercised by the Court in granting a review especially where the ground of review is the discovery of fresh evidence. It is so easy to the party who has lost his case to see what the weak part of his case was, and the temptation to lay and procure evidence which will strengthen that weak part and put a different complexion upon that part of the case must be very strong 1 The rule that permits a new trial to be granted on account of he discovery of new evidence has, therefore, been fenced round with many limitaicw trial must show that there was no toor (193a) 1935 Nag 174 (176) 5

remissness on his part in adducing all possible evidence at the trial 2 Further, the new evidence must be such as is presumably to be believed and such that, if adduced, it would practically be conclusive, i. e. evidence of such a class as to render it probable almost beyond doubt that the judgment would be different? Where it is very doubtful whether the evidence if produced, would have had any effect on the judgment, there is no ground for review 4 In Maliab r Prasad v Collector of Allahabad s where a suit was dismissed on two grounds namely, want of no ice as required by law and the plaintiff being illegitimate and a review was applied for on the ground of discovery of new evidence tending to establish the legitimacy of the plaintiff, it was held that a review should not be granted masmuch as the suit would still have to be dismissed on the ouestion of notice. But the case would be different where the effect of the evidence of adduced, would be to alter or cancel the decree. Thus the discovery of a document containing an admission of liability by the defendants or the discovery of fraud 7 would be a good ground for review Similarly where a decree for resutution of conjugal rights was passed and subsequently it was discovered that the parties were related as cousins such relationship rendering the marriane a nullity it was held that there was a good ground for resiew 4 Igain where the parties were not aware of a previous judgment passed in another case between them which if it had been placed before the Court would have resulted in different judgment there is a good ground for review 9

In the undermenuoned cases to the been held that it is not necessary for granting a review on the ground of the discovery of new and important mat er that such evidence if admitted would be conclusive to show that the decision is wrong. This view is against the general trend of decisions and cannot be accepted as correct.

There is a conflict of opinion on the question whether the decision in another case between the same parties after the da e of the judgment sought to be reviewed would be a sufficient ground for review in cases where such decision if it had been given before the date of the judgment sought to be reviewed would have resulted in a different judgment Before the date of the Privy Council decision in Kotaguri v Vellanki<sup>100</sup> the Bombay High Court answered the question in the affirmative while the Allahabad and Calcutta High Courts

There are however several decisions <sup>14</sup> which have purported to follow the Bombay view, but no reference was made in any of them to Kotagin's case. In the undermentioned case <sup>15</sup> the High Cour. of Rungoon has further held that the Bombay view cannot be said to have been overruled by the decision of the Prity Council in Kotagin's case and that it is still good law. The reasoning is, however, not very clear it is submitted that these decisions cannot be accepted as laying down the correct law. The word evidence in this rule is not confined to documentary evidence but includes oral evidence.

11 Discovery of important matter of law

The words new and impostant matter in this Rule refer to evidence or other matter in the nature of evidence, and not to a legal authority in evisience at the date of the judgment but not brought to the notice of the Court. Hence no review can be asked for on the ground of the discovery of new authorities which show that the decision is not correct? The contrary view expressed in the cases cited below? is, it is submitted not sound

But the discovery of a former decision between the same parties which operates as res juilicata is a discovery of new and important matter within

in Kesson Issur v G I P Railnay1 their Lordships of the Privy Courcil observed as follows - Now the Code of Civil Procedure permits such applications for review on the ground of such discovery, (i.e., discovery of new and emportant matter or evidence) 'but it enacts very strict conditions so as to prevent langants lying on their cars when they ought to be looking for their evidence-i enjoins the Judge to require the facts as to the absence of negligence to be streetly proved. Applications for review on the ground of discovery of fresh syndence ought, therefore, to be refused when such evidence could have been produced if reas mable care and diligence had been exercised 2 There mu t be strong evidence of diligence in getting all available evidence 3 When the trial had lasted three years the Privy Conneil refused to admit fresh cyclence as there was no reason shown as to why the new cyclence was not turcously submitted 4. The fact that evidence was found subsequently cannot uself be taken to show that due diligence could not have been exercised otherwise there could not be any case coming within this Rule 5 The grounds or granupg a review on account of the discovery of fresh evidence, may in cerain cases be grounds for exending the time under S 5 of the Lm. aun Act 6

13 Was not within his knowledge and could not be produced by him at the time? It must be shown that after the exercise of due diligence the evidence was not within the applicant's knowledge or could not be produced by him at the time 1 The Court in fact, has no power to grant a review without calling for strict proof of such allegations 2 In the undermentioned case3 the High Court of Patna has expressed the view that the words 'or could not be produced by him at the time must refer to the words was not within his knowledge and that the whole clause means that the new matters alleged were not within the applicant's knowledge and as such could not have been produced by him at the trial In other words, it seems to be of the opinion that the availability of a piece of evidence within the knowledge of the applicant, but which, even after the exercise of due diligence, could not be produced by him at the trial is not a ground for review. It is submitted that this view is against the language of this Rule and cannot be accepted as correct 4

In order that an error may be a ground for review it must be one apparent on the jace of the record 1 te, an evident error2 which does not admit of extraneous matter to show its incorrectness 3 The word error is not limited to errors of fact but includes also errors of law 4 But the law must be definite and capable of ascertainment 5 An erroneous view of the law on 2 debatable point<sup>6</sup> or a wrong exposition of the law<sup>7</sup> or a wrong application of the laws cannot be considered a mistake or error on the face of the record

Where the Court granted a claim for personal relief a prayer for which could not on a proper construction of a doubtfully worded clause in the plaint be made out, the error is not one apparent on the face of the record justifying a grant of review 28 So also is the failure to give a formal finding on an issue tried and decided or allowing the petitioner to prove fraud which was not pleaded 20 So also the consideration of the evidence by the Court in second appeal does not amount to an error apparent on the face of the record 0.

It was held in the undermentoned cases that the fact that the Court had overlooked a previous ruling of the High Court on a point of law, may be an error appricant on the face of the record A contrary view has been taken in the cases noted below 2 It is submitted that the latter view is correct As was observed by the Madras High Court in Babu Vaidy an v Muringe sam Pillai 33 It is difficult to see how an error can be said to exist on the face of the record where you have to travel outside the record to see if the judgment is correct or not

Where the view of the law on which a judgment is based is subsequently overruled or modified by a superior Court it cannot be a mistake or error on the face of the record.

17 Review on the ground of subsequent events

As has been seen in Note 10, ante, the happening of a subsequent event is not a valid ground for review. Thus a subsequent legislation altering the liw 2 or a subsequent idmission of a party as to the matter lingated? is not a ground for review. Where a suit is decreed on condition of the plaintiff complying with certain requirements within a particular time and it is subsequently found that the period allowed by the decree is insufficient for the fulfillment of the conditions imposed, it has been held that the Court has juri-diction to review the judgment and enlarge the period.

17a No review on ground of decision being erroneous on merits

A review cannot be granted on the ground that the decision is erroneous on the ments, such a ground being appropriate for an appeal and not for an application for review <sup>1</sup>

19 No review of fact after decision in second appeal

The High Court in second appeal cannot enter into questions of fact (see 5 100) it follows from this that after the disposal of a second appeal no review thereof will lie on the ground of a discovery of a new and important evidence as to a question of fact.

bound by the provisions of this Rule 3 There is no provision in the Code empowering the Court when passing a decree against a minor, to reserve to the minor the right of questioning the decree after attaining majority, and the absence of such provision is not a ground for review of the judgment otherwise properly passed 4 (See also O 32, R 3, Note 5 and O 32, R 7, Note 5)

23 Consent decree

Where facts are brought to the notice of the Court showing that a compromise ought to be treated as a nullity an application for review is a proper mode of raising the question whether the compromise should be treated as a nullity or not 1 A compromise decree entered into by a valid or agent might be set aside on the ground that the valid or agent had no power 2 There is conflict of opinion as to whether the discovery of fraud or undue influence in obtaining the consent decree can be a valid ground of review, some cases holding that it is and some that it is not 4. The true view, however, seems to be that in such cases a suit is the proper remedy in the generality of cases though motions for a new trial may be convenient in some cases 4. An application for review may be made when the consent decree is sought to be impeached on the ground of a clerical error or when it does not represent what the Court intended to d'ende 6.

24 Ex parte decrees and orders of dismissal for default

See also Notes 8 and 9 to 0 9, R 13 The rule applies to all cases whether they are disposed of in the presence of the parties or exparted in the absence of the defendants 1 As to whether the fact that an application under 0 9 R 13 could have been preferred and that it was barred on the date of the review application is a bar to review s.e. #### 26 Review of decision before signing decree

Where in order to be consistent in the decree finally passed the Court has to pass orders under O 41, R 33 the same relief can be given in a petition put in by way of review.

27 Commissioner cannot review

A Commissioner app inted for taking accounts may, in his discretion and on proper grounds respect the inquire unts my one or more of the items before this report is made for until then he decides nothing that is final and conclusive.

28 Limitation

The period of limitation for applications of review of judgments of Provincial Small Cause Courts the High Courts in the exercise of their Original Cau. Jurisdiction and other Courts are respectively 15 20 and 90 days from the date of the decree or order sought to be reviewed (See Arts 161 162 and 173 of the Limitation Act 1908) In computing the period of linitation the applicant is entitled to deduct under S 12 of the Limitation let 1908 the time spent in obtaining a copy of the decree or order? though as will be seen in Note 29 m/rs such time cannot be evcluded for the purposes of the Court-fee payable on the application. But he cannot exclude the time occupied by a previous application for review. The Court may also under S of the Limitation Act 1908 admit the application after the expirit of the period of limitation on sufficient cause being shown for not making the application within the presented period. No definite set of rules can be laid down to govern the discretion of a Court under S 5 of the Limitation 4ct.

1. It depends on the circumstances of each case <sup>2</sup> The fact that an appeal is pending<sup>3</sup> or that the applicant is a minor<sup>4</sup> or that applicant's legal advisers were ignorant of the contents of a document in their possession at the time of the original hearing<sup>5</sup> or that a new exposition of the law has been made since the decision<sup>6</sup> is not a sufficient cause for excusing the delay in filing the application within time

There is nothing in this order to suggest that the application for review must be within the same period which is allowed to a party for the alternative remedy by way of appeal or application for restoration of suit which has been dismissed for default of appearance?

29 Court fee

An application for a review of a judgment of the trial Court if presented on or after the 90th day from the date of the decree is chargeable with the same fee as is leviable on the plaint. An application for review of an appellate judgment if presented on or after the 90th day from the date of the decree is similarly chargeable with the same fee as is leviable on the memorandum of appeal 1 Such applications presented before the 90th day from the date of the original or appellate decree, as the case may be, are chargeable with one half of the fee leviable on the plaint or the memorandum of appeal 124 (See Articles 4 and 5 of Schedule I of the Court-Fees Act, 1870 ) Under S 14 of the said Act the Court may, even in a case where the application is presented on or after the 90th day, order the refund of so much of the fce paid on the application as exceeds the fee which would have been payable had at been presented before such day 1a As to refund of Court-fees an other cases see S 15 of the Court-fees Act and also the undermentioned case 16 The fact that an application, filed actually beyond the 90 days, may be within the time for the purposes of limitation by virtue of the application of Ss 5 and 12 of the Limitation \ct, does not exempt the applicant from paying the full fee chargeal le on the plaint or memorandum of appeal the two Acts are not in nari materia 2 Is to the fee payable where a portion of the judgment is sought to

is not a val d presentation $

No Court fee need be paid on an application for review presented in a ut in forma pauperis See O 33 R 8 of the Code But the applicant must have been declared a pauper in the suit at the time of the application Otherwi e he would have to pay the full fee char_eable on the application under tan 7

30 Appeal by one party review application by another-Clause (2)

The fact that an appeal has been preferred by one party does not preclude the other parties from applying for review! except where-

1) The grounds of such appeal are common to the applicant and the appellant or 2) being a resp ndent he can present his case in the appellate Court The expression where the ground of such appeal is common to the applicant and the appellant means that the grounds of appeal and the grounds of review are the same. Where a party who has not appealed applies for review on the ground of discovery of new and important matter after the appeal by another party is summarily dismissed the ground of review is different from the grounds of appeal and therefore the application is maintainable 2 Where the applicant has the opportunity to present his case before the appellate Court. the lower Court has no jurisdiction to proceed with the application 3 A respon dent in an appeal has the right to apply for review of appellate Court judg ment 4

To whom applications for review may

R. 2. [S. 624.] An application for review of a decree or order of a Court, not being a High Court, upon some ground other than the discovery of such new and important matter or evidence as is referred to in Rule 1 or the existence of a clerical or arithmetical mistake or error apparent on the face of the decree, shall be made only to the Judge who passed the decree or made the order sought to be reviewed; but any such application may, if the Judge who passed the decree or made the order has ordered notice to issue under Rule 4, sub-rule (2), proviso (a), be disposed of by his successor.

1 Legislative changes

There was no section in the Code of 1859 corresponding to this section The cases decided under that Codel are now only of academic importance

2 Review by successor in office

This rule must be read as a proviso to R 11 The policy underlying the rule is that an application for review should be entertained and considered by the very Judge who made the decree or order.2 Reading Rr 1 and 2 as they ought to be, it follows that-

(1) every application for review on which notice has been ordered to issue by the Judge who passed the decree or made the order may be disposed of by his successor in office 3

(2) an application based on the ground of the discovery of new and important matter or evidence or the existence of a clerical or arithmetical mistake or error apparent on the face of the
